Take Good Care of This Textbook

This textbook is the property of your school.

Take good care not to damage or lose it.

Here are 10 ideas to help take care of the book:

1. Cover the book with protective material, such as plastic, old newspapers or magazines.
2. Always keep the book in a clear dry place.
3. Be sure your hands are clean when you use the book.
4. Do not write on the cover or inside pages.
5. Use a piece of paper or cardboard as a bookmark.
6. Never tear or cut out any picture or pages.
7. Repair any torn pages with paste or tape.
8. Pack the book carefully when you place it in your school bag.
9. Handle the book with care when passing it to another person.
10. When using a new book for the first time, lay it on its back. Open only a few pages at a time. Press lightly along the bound edge as you turn the pages. This will keep the cover in good condition.

Foreword

Education and development are closely related endeavors. This is the main reason why it is said that education is the key instrument in Ethiopia's development and social transformation. The fast and globalized world we now live in requires new knowledge, skill and attitude on the part of each individual. It is with this objective in view that the curriculum, which is not only the Blueprint but also a reflection of a country's education system, must be responsive to changing conditions.

It has been almost three decades since Ethiopia launched and implemented new Education and Training Policy. Since the 1994 Education and Training Policy our country has recorded remarkable progress in terms of access, equity and relevance. Vigorous efforts also have been made, and continue to be made, to improve the quality of education.

To continue this progress, the Ministry of Education has developed a new General Education Curriculum Framework in 2021. The Framework covers all pre-primary, primary, Middle level and secondary level grades and subjects. It aims to reinforce the basic tenets and principles outlined in the Education and Training Policy, and provides guidance on the preparation of all subsequent curriculum materials – including this Teacher Guide and the Student Textbook that come with it – to be based on active-learning methods and a competency-based approach.

In the development of this new curriculum, recommendations of the education Road Map studies conducted in 2018 are used as milestones. The new curriculum materials balance the content with students' age, incorporate indigenous knowledge where necessary, use technology for learning and teaching, integrate vocational contents, incorporate the moral education as a subject and incorporate career and technical education as a subject in order to accommodate the diverse needs of learners.

no means the sole solution to improving the quality of education in any country. Continued improvement calls for the efforts of all stakeholders. The teacher's role must become more flexible ranging from lecturer to motivator, guider and facilitator. To assist this, teachers have been given, and will continue to receive, training on the strategies suggested in the Framework and in this teacher guide.

Teachers are urged to read this Guide carefully and to support their students by putting into action the strategies and activities suggested init.

For systemic reform and continuous improvement in the quality of curriculum materials, the Ministry of Education welcomes comments and suggestions which will enable us to undertake further review and refinement.

Unit 1. Population Growth

Unit Objectives

By the end of this unit, you will be able to:

- ✓ listen to a text and extract both specific information and the gist (main) idea from it
- ✓ examine the pictures and explain the challenges our world is facing due to population explosion globally and locally
- ✓ work out the contextual meaning of the selected words and use them in your communication where necessary
- ✓ pronounce short and long vowels: [a, e, ,i and o] and diphthongs [ai, ei, , ea, eə, ɪə əɪ, əə] as correctly as possible and make your oral communications intelligible practise asking opinions in small talks and conversations
- ✓ practise a variety of text attack skills such as skimming, scanning and intensive reading and extract information.
- ✓ discuss and integrate textual information in oral presentations
- ✓ work out the meaning of different words from different literatures contextually
- ✓ practise the word formation processes with prefixes and use the correct form of the words in communications
- ✓ acquaint yourself with different phrasal with the verb “fall” and use them in both spoken and written communications.
- ✓ use simple present tense and degrees of comparisons in constructing grammatically correct sentences
- ✓ complete ideas in a piece of writing and write your own paragraph
- ✓ add ideas to the incomplete paragraph and make it complete
- ✓ connect different sentences using different discourse markers
- ✓ acquaint yourself with the use of period, question mark and exclamation mark and use them in your writing where necessary

1.1 Listening: Population Explosion

Activity 1.1

Instructions: You are going to listen to the passage. Before you listen to it, discuss the following questions in pairs.

Fig. 1: Overpopulated areas in Delhi, Tokyo, Beijing and Lagos

1. Look at the population size in Delhi, Tokyo, Beijing and Lagos in the above picture. What can you say about the population growth and its effect in these countries?
2. Do you think that the population in your city is increasing or decreasing? What is your evidence?
3. If the population around your residence is growing, what problems are you facing in your day-to-day life?

NB: For visually impaired students, those of you who do not have such limitation, please give them an account of explanation about congested population in the above cities.

Activity 1.2

Instructions: Now your teacher will read the listening passage two times to you. When he/she reads the passage, listen very carefully and extract specific information from each paragraph and finally write the main ideas in your own words.

Activity 1.3

Instructions: Answer the questions given below based on the ideas discussed in the passage.

1. As a student, after you have got few ideas about the population explosions in our world, what do you suggest to different governments to take practical actions?
2. How can you contribute, as a student, to reducing problems connected to population explosion in Ethiopia?

1.2 Speaking

1.2.1 Pronouncing Short Vowels, Long Vowels and Diphthongs

Activity 1.4

Instructions: Repeat the following words after your teacher.

	Short Vowel	long vowel
1	[bit]	[bi:t]
2	[back]	[ba:rk]
3	[fut]	[fu:d]

Activity 1.5

Instructions: Individually, use your dictionary and look up seven words with short and long vowel sounds and then practice them with your neighbouring students.

NB: Visually impaired students are asked simply to practice the sounds orally

Diphthongs

Diphthongs are words that combine two vowel sounds. They are pronounced so closely together that they almost sound like one vowel instead of two.

Activity 1.6

Instructions: Use your dictionary and identify the type of diphthongs in the words given below individually.

might, why, may, wait, freight, they, great, fair, hair, mare and where

Instructions: Write a word that consists of the diphthongs given below.

[ay, ai, ei, ey, ea eə , iə əɪ, ʊə]

Pronouncing interdental voiced [ð] and interdental voiceless [θ] consonants

Note that these consonants do not exist in Ethiopian languages, so pronouncing them in different words is difficult for many of our students. When you pronounce these sounds, you put your tongue between the upper and lower tongue and produce [t] or [z] sounds. Practise them in the following words with the help of your teacher.

math [mæθ], booth [buθ], soothe [suð], those [ðouz]

Activity 1.8

Instructions: Go over the following pair of words given in parentheses (sink/think), (leather/lather), (their/there), (tin/thin) quickly. Then, your teacher will read a sentence that consists of one of the words to you. Listen to her/him, identify the word you have heard and write it down into your notebook.

1.2.2 Small Talks: Asking for Opinions

As you know, it is common to ask and answer questions in everyday human communications. Questions should not always be asked only for the sake of asking. The asker needs to have purpose when she/he poses a question. The respondent also has to think twice and give answers supported with convincing reasons. If you answer a question without sufficient evidence, people do not trust you when you talk to them in the future.

Activity 1.9

Instructions: The following dialogue is between two grade ten students, Lambebo and Hamesso. Be in pairs and fill in the incomplete parts in your own words.

Lambebo: Do you think that money is more important than health?

Hamesso: In my opinion, both are equally important because to stay in health, money is important and health is also essential to make money.

Speaking

Lambebo: As far I am concerned, however, health is more important than money because _____.

Hamesso: Are you saying that if there is health, it is not difficult to make money?

Lambebo: Yes, of course. In my view, if a person is healthy, she/he can do any work and make her/his livelihood.

Hamesso: _____.

Lambebo: As I understand, nothing is more important than health.

Hamesso: Do you think that those people who are below the poverty line are not healthy?

Lambebo: No. From my point of view, _____.

Activity 1.10

Instructions: Roleplay as student Tamirat and Kelemua, ask questions, give opinions turn by turn and make the dialogue complete.

Tamirat: What comes to your mind when you hear the phrase “population growth”?

Kelemua: _____.

Tamirat: What is your view about the population growth in Ethiopia?

Kelemua: _____.

Tamirat: _____?

Kelemua: Yes, as I understand, it is a serious concern because when the growth of population and the economic growth are not even, the continuation of life in this world is not certain.

Tamirat: Why do you think that experts on population warn that the growth of population will be the most serious problem of our world?

Kelemua: _____.

Tamirat: _____?

Kelemua: In my opinion, those factors that change the pattern of population are the imbalance between birth rate and death rate and migrations.

Tamirat: _____?

Kelemua: It is a type of crisis which results from an increase in births (fertility rate), a decline in the mortality rate, an increase in immigration or a depletion of resources.

Tamirat: Once the World Bank President Robert McNamara said: “Population growth is the gravest issue the world faces. If we do not act, the problem will be solved by famine, riots, insurrection and war.” Do you agree? Why?

Kelemua: _____.

1.3 Reading: Population Growth

Activity 1.11

Instructions: Before you read the passage, discuss the following questions in groups of three and report your answers to the whole class.

1. Can you list down the most pressing problems that Ethiopia is facing these days due to its unplanned population growth?
2. Do you think that population growth has direct connection with our environment? How?
3. There are experts such as Simon 1988 who say that population growth does not bring as such significant problem if the economy of the country grows consistently? Do you agree or disagree? Why?

Activity 1.12

Instructions: Now, read the passage given below silently and answer the questions that follow it according to the information therein.

Fig. 2: population growth & environmental degradation

National and Global Population Growth

1. The rapid population growth observed over the last decades in Ethiopia has resulted in a number of challenges and crisis against both human and wild lives. One of the most dominant casualties is severe environmental degradation which is responsible for the prevalence of poverty and famine. More often than not, many international reports claim that the alarmingly growing population at an unprecedented rate is negatively affecting the environment in different parts of the country and this degradation is exposing a large number of people to poverty. The fact is that the more a given area is populated, the more the resources in that area are degraded by both the rich and the poor though the frequency and magnitude differ. There is a widely accepted truth that the poor tampers more frequently with the fauna and flora of the environment while the devastation caused by the rich to the environment is higher in scale. Under most circumstances, when the size of the population and the economic growth of a country are not growing evenly, poverty-stricken people tend to overuse every resource available to them as their survival is endangered. When the situations become worse and worse, it is a must for many citizens to immigrate. In addition to the above anthropogenic damages, other factors such as lack of material resources, inadequate loans and subsidies, illiteracy and lack of awareness and consciousness impinge seriously upon the environment. Thus, since uncontrolled population growth is the main threat to the environmental convenience and comfortability to both human and wild lives, a positive change in attitude towards the environment is needed in order to save the most cherished flora and fauna.

2. Eighty-five percent of the population in Ethiopia lives in rural areas, mainly in the central and northeastern highlands, where population growth and poverty are much higher than in urban areas. As the population in these areas increases more and more, land is deforested and over-farmed. This in turn has brought about less crop production and subsistent livelihood. When forests are cleared, the residents must travel farther and farther to find firewood, which is the principal fuel for cooking or sometimes they dry up animals' dung which should have been used as natural fertilizer. The other disaster is soil erosion. When the steep highlands are deforested, their soil can easily be eroded and their fertility to grow crops decreases from time to time. Because of this, many previously habitable lands in these areas have now been transformed into dry lands and deserts. This vicious cycle is exacerbating the effects of the droughts in the country mostly leading to severe and ever more frequent crises. The 2003 famine, for example, affected more than 13 million people of the country and at least 6 million people at an average suffer from permanent food insecurity every year. Of course, as experts in the field argue, the problem is aligned not only with deforestation but also has connection with a small size of arable land that farmers cultivate every year. To change the existing scenario, the green legacy which is being implemented every year all over the country during rainy seasons, has significant contribution in changing the ecology of the country and agricultural productivity as well.

3. The other effect that results from overpopulation, of course not peculiar to Ethiopia, is the poor state of women’s health. If the size of the population and the per capita income of the citizens do not strike the balance, it is difficult for any government to sufficiently supply health facilities to citizens in general and to females in particular. As reports from Save the Children (2004) show, Ethiopia is one of the lowest ranked countries where one out of every 14 women dies from complications during pregnancy and 114 infants pass away in every 1000 live births. Therefore, to stabilize the population growth, increasing girls’ education and expanding women’s empowerment is one of the highly recommended solutions. In this regard, we all know that the current Ethiopian government is taking practical measure, though not sufficient, in raising up the ratio of females officials ranging from lower to higher levels of responsibilities in different governmental offices. This kind of attitudinal change is believed to have substantial contribution in controlling the unplanned population growth. Generally, despite the challenges Ethiopia is facing from both human and nature, there are attempts to incorporate population, health, and environment issues into the country's poverty reduction strategies.

4. Globally, over the last hundreds of thousands years, the world population has grown to one billion then in just the next two-hundred years or so, it grew sevenfold. In 2011, the global population reached the seven billion mark and today it stands at about 9.4 billion. This dramatic growth has been driven largely by increasing numbers of people surviving to reproductive age and has been accompanied by major changes in fertility rates, increasing urbanization and accelerating migration. The effect of population growth is detrimental as long as the economy of a country is incapable of providing the citizens with convenient environment that guarantees potable and clean water, good accommodation, decent clothing, hygienic food, conducive housing and even pure air. In short, a growing population needs a growing economy. It is crystal clear that there is no way people can live conveniently and comfortably in the environment without tampering with it. Hence, it is a must to comply with the principles of environmental management within the ambit of conservation, preservation, rehabilitation and sustainability.

Adapted from different sources and modified for its purpose by Mesfin Aberra

Reading: Population Growth

1. How can population growth, environmental degradation and poverty integrate and affect human life?
2. Why the people in the northeast highland areas in Ethiopia are highly exposed to draught and famine repeatedly?
3. How do the rich and the poor contribute to the degradation of the environment?
4. How can humans protect the damage against animals and plants?
5. How does women’s education and health affect the population growth? Why women are in focus?

Activity 1.13

Instructions: Answer the questions given below and write your answers in full sentences into your notebook individually.

1. Write the main idea in each paragraph in a complete sentence.
2. List down the problems that you have observed due to population growth in the area where you are currently living?
3. Do you think that you have your own contributions in solving those problems connected to population growth? How?

1.3.1 Vocabulary : Part I

Activity 1.14 Vocabulary: Part I

Instructions: Match the words taken from the above passage and written at the left hand side with their contextual meanings given at the right hand side individually.

“A”	“B”
1. immigrate (par1)	A. leaving ones country and settling in another country
2. degradation (par 1)	B. money paid by the government or organization to reduce prices
3. devastation (par1)	C. all plants life in a particular region or period
4. fauna (par1)	D. all animals’ life in a particular region or period
5. flora (par1)	E. the state of being destroyed
6. subsidies (par1)	F. changing to lower state

1.3.2 Vocabulary : Part II

Activity 1.15

Instructions: Look up each of the words given below in paragraphs 2, 3 and 4 and then write their contextual meanings as they are used in the passage.

1. subsistent (par 2) _____
2. exacerbating (par 2) _____
3. cultivate (par 2) _____
4. substantial (par 3) _____
5. detrimental (par 4) _____
6. tampering(par 4) _____

1.3.3 Word Formation

Using prefixes to form words

Activity 1.16

Instructions: Be in pairs, define what a prefix is and then try to list down as many prefixes as possible from your own experience.

Activity 1.17

Instructions: Individually, write words that go with the prefixes: anti, im, in, re, dis, auto and co.

Activity 1.18

Instructions: Look at the words written in bold in the dialogue below. Identify the prefix and explain its meaning individually

Kia: Your paragraph is good but there are sentences that you have included without a clear purpose. You have also used incomplete sentences which do not make sense; moreover, there are overused words which can reduce the interest of your reader.

Yenu: Thank you for your interesting and indispensable comments. I know that you always write very good paragraphs and attain the highest mark in our class. Would you give me further comments that help me write well developed paragraphs?

Kia: When you decide to write a paragraph, first plan what and how you want to write, second, prepare an outline which gives you direction where your focus is. Third, write out your first draft without worrying much about the errors that you are likely to make. Fourth, do serious editing on the content, organization of ideas, language use and mechanics. Fifth, rewrite the final draft of your paragraph considering the editing you have done.

Yenu: Thank you for your valuable comments once again. You are correct. I hadn't had the ideas you have given me before I wrote my paragraph. In the paragraph I had given you for comments, there were not only the problems you mentioned but also I had found out misspelt words which would create confusion to my readers. I could detect them after I had given it to you for comments.

Kia: Oh, that is awesome. You see, it is impossible at all to be absolutely free from errors either when we write or speak. The main thing is readiness to learn from others and improve oneself from time to time. Now, do you have time to improve your paragraph based on the comments I have given you?

Yenu: Of course, I don't have much time but I should accept your comments and do my level best to write a better paragraph. I had never found out any irrelevant comment. All of them were convincing and constructive. As I have learnt from your comments, first, I have to preplan what I ought to include into my paragraph. During the second step, I should re-arrange the sentences into their coherent order, include relevant ideas and write the first draft. At the third step, I need to do editing and finally I have to consider the editing I had carried out and re-write the final draft. Am I correct or incorrect?

Kia: You are correct. That is interesting. You see, it is unthinkable to improve one's knowledge unless there is willingness to learn from each other. Now, in my opinion, if you follow the steps I have suggested to you, you can join the disconnected sentences in your paragraph with the correct devices, enrich the content, check your language use and increase its quality.

Short Note

A prefix is a word part that is placed before the root word. Most commonly used prefixes in English are: re, in, im, dis, un, mis, co, none, pro, super, hyper, circum, auto and the like. A prefix usually changes the meaning of the root word. For clarity, look at the following examples: take and intake, tension and hypertension

1.3.4 Phrasal Verbs

Activity 1.19

Instructions: First define what phrasal verbs are, list out those you have already been familiar with and then construct meaningful sentences using few of them.

Activity 1.20

Instructions: Be in groups of four, read each sentence given below carefully, work out the contextual meaning of each phrasal verb given in bold and then write it in your notebook. The first one is done as an example for you.

Example: Kadija always calls Hamid's name amidst any of her discussions with her friends; I think she has fallen in his love. Meaning(loved him from the depth of her heart)

1. The chair was so old that it fell apart when Zeberga sat on it.
2. Is there an Ethiopian who does not fall apart if an enemy manages to take over a piece of land from its territory?
3. When generals think that victory at war front is difficult, they order their soldiers to fall back.
4. Provided that I have no access to print books in the library, I have internet resources to fall back on.
5. If you fall behind on your research work, it is impossible to graduate from any Ethiopian university.
6. The dramatist has fallen down on the ground in the middle of the play as he has a splitting-head ache.
7. When you fall for someone, it is difficult for you to stop thinking about him/her.

8. If lies are told repeatedly, several people fall for them without requesting for justifications.
9. When Sumoro had beaten the stem of the tree with a long stick, many of the fruits fell off the branches.
10. Amajo had bought avocados and put them into a plastic bag. When he got off the bus, all of them fell out of the bag as it has had wide holes that he had not recognized.
11. Those friends whose relationships are founded on benefits often fall out when their income reduces due to different reasons
12. I want to travel to Russia to visit their vibrant cultures but my plan fell through for I have not yet produced a visa.

Short Note

Phrasal verbs are expressions made up of verbs and prepositions. They are important in both spoken and written English since they give strength to the message. Notice that most phrasal verbs have different shades of meaning. Though studying and understanding each meaning is difficult, you need to study the most frequently used and use them in your verbal communications wherever or whenever the situations require them.

1.4 Grammar

1.4.1 Degrees of Comparison

Activity 1.21

Instructions: The following sentences are taken from the above reading passage. Be in groups of three and discuss the type of degree the writer has used and their meanings.

1. As the population in these areas increases more and more, land is deforested and over-farmed.
2. The fact is that the more a given area is populated, the more the resources in that area are degraded by both the rich and the poor though the frequency and magnitude differ.
3. Eighty-five percent of the population in Ethiopia lives in rural areas, mainly in the central and northeastern highlands, where population growth and poverty are much higher than in urban areas.

Activity 1.22

Instructions: In pairs, examine how a positive degree, comparative degree and superlative degree are used in the text below and finally write the rules that enable you to use three of the degrees correctly in your own sentences.

Mr. Tanga lives in Arba Minch town. He has three children. They are Chubaro, Katinie and Gezmo. Academically, Chubaro is as intelligent as Katinie and Gezmo is the least intelligent student of the two. With regard to football, Katinie is as good as Gezmo but Chubaro is the worst. He does not like to watch any game on television let alone playing in the field. On weekends, three of them like to visit the Nech Sar park, which is located to the eastern direction of Arba Minch town. The park is one of the most preferred tourist attractions in Ethiopia. Of course, in size, it is not bigger than Omo National Park, which is located in South Omo Zone. The more you travel in this park, the more your appreciation and love about nature increases. Its evergreen sceneries, the endemic wild animals, the pure natural falls that come from different directions never allow you to leave it. When they walk in the park, Gezmo is the slowest of both as he has pain in his feet but Chubaro is as fast as Katinie. Because of their equal speed, they always talk to each other, make funs and finish their journey without any feeling of tiredness. In terms of their learning styles, Chubaro is the most confident student in his class; however, he is not as fast as Katinie in responding to his teachers' questions. Around their village, Chubaro is the most cooperative boy in working with other youths to solve the problems of the dwellers.

Activity 1.23

Instructions: Below is a text with blank spaces. Individually, decide whether the positive, comparative or superlative degree of the adjective or adverb given in parentheses is appropriate to complete each sentence in the text.

Text I: Learning and Improving

Writing Skills

Writing is one of _____1 (important) language skills that you should develop so as to succeed in your academic activities. Because of this, English teachers are always advised to seriously teach this skill _____2 (careful) possible. You, as students, should also give _____3 (many) attention to the skill than ever before and practise it _____4 (regularly) possible. The understanding is that the _____ 5 (much) you engage yourself in meaningful writing activities, the (good) you achieve the skill. Of course, few scholars think that since it is the _____ 6 (challenging) language skill of all others, it is difficult for several students to achieve it unless teachers provide them with different supports such as explanations, model texts and guidance. Currently, however, the widely accepted belief is that the _____ 7 (little) the teacher interferes with the students' engagement in a variety of meaningful writing activities, the _____ 8 (fast) they achieve the skill. The understanding is that developing self-learning strategy is (good) than imitating a model text, learning about it and striving to produce the same type of text. Therefore, practising writing with meaningful activities and checking the progress of one's skills _____ 9 (regular) possible can make most students reasonable and efficient writers.

Activity 1.24

Instructions: Use the correct form of degree of adjective given in parentheses to complete the blank spaces in each sentence individually.

1. Critical thinking is one of _____ (essential) life skills that every student must develop as her/his own personality. It is a skill that _____ (often) people develop it from active reading.
2. Which country is economically _____ (prosperous) in Asia? Why has it developed _____ (rapidly) than any other neighbouring country in the continent?
3. In today's global world, healthy competition is _____ (important) than depending on others. If Ethiopia, for example, mobilizes its citizens efficiently to increase productivity supported by scientific knowledge, there are _____(many) golden opportunities as in other developing countries striving to emerge successfully.

4. Positive thinking is _____(good) than taking a revenge. When a person begins to think reasonably and widely, she/he will solve _____(difficult) problem she/he has ever confronted in her/his life with least sacrifices.
5. When you are just between the blue sky and the see, it is a must to choose _____(less evil).
6. I would rather die _____(see) my country fragmented.

Notes on Degrees of Comparison

A. The Positive Degree

The Positive degree does not offer comparison. It just tells us about the existence of two equal persons, objects or situations. The persons or things compared in this degree are often introduced with as....as or so.....as. For example:

1. Today's English lesson is as clear as yesterday's but today's illustrations are not so clear as the yesterday's ones.
2. Awoke is as strong as his friend, Tahiro.
3. Awoke is not so strong as his friend, Tahiro.

B. The Comparative Degree

A comparative degree compares two persons, objects or situations to show the lesser or greater degree of the quality. This degree is often introduced with "than".

Grammar

When we use this degree, we add “-er” to adjectives of one or two syllables and more or less when the syllables are more than two or if the comparison is with adverbs. For more clarity, look at the following examples

*Slow-----slower; big----bigger, slow----slower strong-----stronger; happy-- --happier; beautiful----- more beautiful, slow----more slowly, clear--
---more clearly.*

Important points you need to remember:

- Do not use double comparatives

Example:

1. This sentence is more clearer than the previous one.(not correct)
2. This sentence is clearer or more clear than the previous one.
(correct)

- There are adjectives that should not have comparative forms because their meanings express the qualities to the highest possible degree. Here are few of them: perfect, dead, single, unique, round, square. The implication is that if something is perfect, it cannot be a better or less perfect.

Example: Saron is more perfect in her spoken English than her written one. (incorrect)

- Sometimes adding “-er” to adjectives is the same as using more/less +adverb

Example

1. Aweno is quicker than Madalcho in answering questions in the classroom. (correct)
2. Aweno answers questions more quickly than Madalcho in the classroom.(correct)

- If the adjective is of more than one syllable, it takes less or more in its comparative form.

Example:

1. Firehiwot is more intelligent than her sister Bezawit is. (correct)
2. Firehiwot is intelligenter than her sister Bezawit is. (incorrect)
 - In modern English, the expressions, “than me” and “than I” are both acceptable.

Example: the waiter was angrier than I or the waiter is angrier than me.

- The words prefer, senior, junior, inferior are followed by “to” not “than”

Example:

3. Mesfin prefers coffee to tea. (correct)
4. Mesfin prefers coffee than tea. (incorrect)
 - Parallel strength or growth is expressed with double comparatives

Here are some examples of double comparatives:

1. The more you read, the better you think.
 2. The less money I spend, the more I save.
 3. The less you worry about others, the more you aggravate your own problem.
- Take care in using the following irregular comparative forms:

good.....better, bad.... worse, many or much....more, little...less

Example: Silence is better than talking nonsense.

Poverty is worse than death.

C. The Superlative Degree

A superlative adjective expresses the extreme or highest degree of a quality. We use this degree to compare people, objects or situations more than two in number. The pattern of this adjective is the + superlative form of the adjective + noun (object). Adjectives of one or two syllables or adverbs take “- est” and in its irregular form least and most are used. When this degree is used, it is common to use the prepositions in or of

Examples

1. Azalech is the tallest girl in the family; moreover, she is the most intelligent girl in managing the family of her siblings.
2. Rukia is the least active participant in English classes but she is the most humorous girl of all us after class time.

1.4.2 Simple Present Tense and Present Perfect Tense

Activity 1.25

Instructions: Here below are pairs of sentences given in simple present and present perfect tense. Read them very carefully and explain the meaning differences individually.

1. Most of us often talk about others’ weaknesses but we have never had information about our own weak sides.
2. To err is human; no one has ever been seen so far doing things perfectly without getting feedback from others.
3. Currently, I see a great many people criticizing others for their faults; I have never seen a person who advises them how to reduce their pitfalls.
4. My daughter leaves for Harar tomorrow; she has stayed with me for only few weeks.
5. Brown says, “the more number of languages you speak, the better you think”. As I have been impressed by this quotation, I have begun to learn different languages being spoken in my community since last month.

I. The Simple Present Tense

Uses

1. to talk about presently happening actions but cannot be expressed mostly in continuous forms. Some of the verbs which are not mostly used in –ing form are: see, hear, taste, think, consider, wish, love, hate, feel, have, believe, trust, etc.

Examples:

- 1 Now I am understanding what he is teaching. (incorrect)
- 2 Now, I understand what he is teaching. (correct)
- 3 I always think the positive side of any work but most people often prefer to focus on limitations.

2. to describe an action that happens every day

Examples

- 1 My friend always speaks English; that is why he has now become a fluent speaker.
- 2 She usually watches English channels; she pronounces words nearly like native speakers.
- 3 We always discuss our assignments in English.

3. to talk about general truths or universal facts

Example: Blood carries oxygen in our body

4. To talk about future planned action

Example: Zumra leaves for London tomorrow.

5. to talk about past actions on the headlines of newspapers

Example: The headline in “The Ethiopian Herald English daily says, “The Prime Minister Confers with the Russian Ambassador to Ethiopia Yesterday

6. to narrate past action

Example

Grammar

The book discusses the importance of co-existence for mutual benefits. The author further argues that when only people strengthen their unity, they achieve substantial growth and prosperity.

7. To talk about timetables or schedules

Example: The film begins at 6 a.m. in the evening

II. The Present Perfect Tense

Uses

1. to describe an action that began in the past and is still going on right at the time of speaking

- 1 Muhaba has worked in this office for the last forty years (still she is working in the same office)
- 2 Andabo has not uttered a word to me since he arrived at the station.
- 3 Writing a textbook is the most challenging academic activity that I have ever faced

2. to express an action when the doer is not clearly known

Example: Someone has taken my bag.

Activity 1.26

Instructions: Use either simple present tense or present perfect tense form of the verb given in parentheses to complete the text given below individually.

- 1. Danitie _____ (clean) her house everyday but today she _____ (yet clean) it because she is too ill to wake up from her bed.
- 2. Now, Mukura and Ayantu _____ (love) their newly born baby from their heart because they _____ (think) that the baby is the only dearest gift they have ever had. Tomorrow they _____ (leave) for Addis Ababa to show their baby to their mother-in-law.

They ___(never see) her for moths.

3. This is a new experience that I _____(ever have); therefore, I am planning to get people who can provide me with water tight comments. In fact, when I do something new, I always _____(show) it to someone whom I think is capable of helping me.

1.4.3 Using Relative Pronouns

Activity 1.27

Instructions: Using your background knowledge or by referring to grammar books, read the dialogue conducted between Feven and Melon and insert the correct relative pronoun you think is correct from the alternatives given in parentheses being in pairs.

Feven: Do you know Kurfa Chellie, Melon?

Melon: I am not sure but sometimes I hear father calling this name.

Feven: Oh, you should have known it. It is a small town _____ 1 (when/where) our father was born. He is a man who has passed through different challenges in this town and reached this level.

Melon: Yes, you are right. I think the film _____ 2 (that/ whom) we watched last week to some extent has connection with his life.

Feven: Yes. You are correct. By the way, has he had a plan to write a book?

Melon: Yes, I think now he is thinking of what and to _____ 3 (who/ whom) he is writing?

Feven: Yes, you are correct. He is going to write a book _____ 4 (whom/whose) focus will be on honesty and perseverance.

Melon: In my opinion, he also needs to take into account the current demands of the audience _____ 5 (which/whose) is often very essential to produce a book of good reader.

Grammar

Feven: Yes, of course. Most writers _____ 6 (whom/whose) books have been widely accepted across the community often do this.

Melon: I agree with you. Any writer should first have sufficient information about the audience _____ 7 (whom/who) he/she is writing something. Otherwise, the effect will be harmful.

Feven: Ok, bye. Take care of COVID 19 _____ 8 (wherever/whenever) you go.

Short Note

A pronoun is a word that takes the place of a noun. Relative pronouns are used at the beginning of an adjective clause or a dependent clause that modifies a noun. The three most commonly used relative pronouns are who, which and that. The pronoun “Who” has two other forms, the object form whom and the possessive form whose. The pronoun Who is mostly used as a subject (nominative case) for people and whom is used as an object (as accusative case).

Example

- 1 The musician who composed this music has been awarded an honorary doctorate degree from Jimma University. (subject/nominative)
- 2 Example b: The witnesses whom I interviewed gave me conflicting evidences.(object/accusative)

The pronoun “whose” can be used for people, animals or things to show possession or belonging

Example: The man whose daughter won the gold medal in the college is a good reader.

Sometimes “of which” can be used for animals to show possession

Example: A dog of which one of its eyes is hurt is still very fierce when a stranger comes to home.

“Which” is used for animals and things

Example: The book which I bought yesterday has a lot of errors but I found it useful to teach different proverbs. (subject/ nominative)

Johnson bought the top hybrid car which will help him save on gas. (object/ accusative)

That can be used for people, animals or things.

Example

- 1 The man that you visited in prison has been found a scapegoat.
- 2 My car that I bought three years ago runs on electricity and gas.

That versus which

Both “That” and “which” are used to start two different types of adjective clauses, called essential and non-essential clauses.

Essential (defining) (restricted) clauses always indicate a clause that is essential to the meaning of the sentence because it defines or identifies the noun it refers to. An essential clause does not take a comma before it.

Example: Lelisa wore the shoes that he bought in Italy. (What shoes? The ones that she bought in Italy. (The clause identifies the shoes.)

“Which” may also be used to introduce an essential clause.

Example: Lelisa wore the shoes, which he bought in Italy.

Which is used in a non-essential (non-defining clauses) modify an animal or a thing. A non-essential clause is one that gives secondary, non-essential information about a noun that has already been fully identified. A non-essential clause is separated from its noun with a comma:

Example: Lelisa wore her best leather shoes, which she bought in Italy. Since Lelisa has only one best shoes bought in Italy, it is not important to modify it with a relative pronoun.

Who vs whom

The relative pronoun “who” may cause confusion because it has both a subject form “who” and an object form “whom”. The key to choosing between these forms is to see what the pronoun is doing in its own clause.

- Use who if the pronoun is the subject of the verb in the dependent clause.

Example: The people who just boarded the plane are patriots of this country.

(The pronoun “who” is subject of the verb boarded.)

- Use whom if the pronoun is the object of the verb in the dependent clause.

Example: The woman whom I met in in Institute of Technology campus is a perspicacious person. (The pronoun is object of the verb met.)

- Use whom if the pronoun is the object of a preposition in the dependent clause.

Example: The agent with whom I spoke was able to help me. (The pronoun is object of the preposition with.)

1.4.4 Using suggest, should, ought to and had better

Activity 1.28

Instructions: Complete the space in each sentence given below with an appropriate modal verb (should, ought to, had better, suggest). Note that you can use more than one if you think that it is appropriate.

1. My teacher told me that I _____ review my notes every day. He is right. If I do not do this, my success in my studies will be doubtful.
2. Do you think Carol _____ not to save her money? She is planning to go to Europe this summer.
3. I am going to library now. Which assignment _____ I do first?
4. My car's gas tank is almost empty. I _____ fill it up very soon. Otherwise, I _____ travel on foot tomorrow.
5. If you are worried about getting fat, you _____ eat fruits and vegetables as frequently as possible.
6. I _____ staying at home; it looks to rain very soon
7. Where _____ we have lunch today, at home or in a restaurant?
8. My doctor feels that I _____ take more physical exercise than ever before because the sugar level in my blood is going up.
9. _____ you to create your own job? I think that is a reasonable decision because living on a monthly salary is only for a hand-to-mouth life.
10. Ato Loranso _____ save some amount of money carefully as he is to retire next year.

Short Notes

- The word “suggest” is used when you want to recommend something politely.. It is followed by gerund (–ing form) and that; not by infinitive

Example:

1. I suggest taking a nap before going to work.(correct)
2. I suggest to take nap before going to work.(incorrect)
3. I suggest that you can take nap before going to work. (correct)

- The word "should" is used to show obligation, give recommendation or an opinion.

Example

1. You should stop eating sweaty food.
2. We should finish this work before the rain falls.

- The modal verb “ought to” is used to express an obligation, demand, threat or an expectation that someone should do. "Should” and “ought to” have the same meaning although "ought to" is much more formal and is not commonly used in spoken English.

Example:

1. You ought to listen to him carefully before you respond to him.
2. We ought to pass strong decision to save our country.

Look at the affirmative, negative and question (interrogative) forms:

1. Affirmative: You ought to talk to him courteously and slowly.
2. Negative: You ought not to talk to him courteously and slowly.
3. Interrogative: Ought you talk to him courteously and slowly?

1.5 Writing

1.5.1 Guided Writing

Joining and completing sentences

Activity 1.29

Instructions: Join each pair of sentences given below using the linking devices given in the table.

if	for example	because moreover	however	therefore

1. I support the argument “population Matters” ____ I think that if we keep on growing, we are not only going to damage nature but also we are likely to see more and more inequality and human suffering.
2. The human population can no longer be allowed to grow in the same uncontrolled traditional way. _____ we do not take charge of our population size and then nature will do it for us.
3. To reduce the growth of population, humanity can take different measures. _____, reducing the unplanned consumptions of natural resources and implementing family planning are among others.
4. Educating and empowering women and girls and providing family planning information enables more people to choose the size of their families; _____, governments have to produce clear policies that enable to address the biodiversity loss we are facing.
5. Adding more people to our planet causes a large number of problems; _____, people are also of great responsibility to solve these problems.

Short Note on the use of sentence connectors

When you plan to write a paragraph (a group of sentences that explains one main idea), you have to use different sentences. To make the paragraph meaningful, your sentences need to be joined with different connectors. Otherwise, the ideas in your paragraph do not give clear meaning to your reader. For detail, read the short notes given here below:

- When you want to join two sentences that show reason, you use such connectors as; "because", "due to", "owing to", "on account of", etc.

Example: We arrived home late owing to engine problem.

- When you want to further explain your ideas with examples (illustrations), you use the connectors such as for example, for instance, suppose, the case in point, etc.

Example: Some wild animals are threatened with extinction; Wallia Ibex is the case in point.

- Some languages are used for a variety of purposes; English is the case in point

- When you want to add more information to the preceding idea, you use the connectors such as moreover, furthermore, in addition, etc

Example: Hunduma is an outstanding and diligent teacher; moreover, he is polite and patient.

- To connect two contrasting (opposite) ideas, you use the connectors such as though, however, nevertheless, whereas, on the other hand, on the contrary and the like

Example: Mazengia likes to read; however, he does not make notes about the lessons he got from different books

Activity 1.30

Instructions: Complete the sentences given below correctly in your own words. The first one is done as an example for you.

There is a theory which goes as, “Population growth hardly brings any harm as long as the economy grows harmoniously.”

1. Experts predict that the population in Ethiopia will double in the next 30 years; therefore, _____
_____.
2. However rapidly our population grows _____
3. All Ethiopians should apply family planning education, protect their environment and contribute their share in expanding women’s and girls’ education to control population growth, Moreover, _____
_____.
4. We students have our own share in reducing the growth of the population in our country.
5. For example, we _____

1.5.2 Using Punctuations

Activity 1.31

Instructions: Use period, question mark or exclamation mark in the short text given below.

Hard working is essential not only to succeed in your studies but also to enhance your skills of creativity Have you ever seen a lazy person who has ever created anything new So, work hard until your last breath

NB: Study the note given below to understand their use clearly

Writing

1. We use full stop (period) at the end of any statement (a sentence that gives us clear information)

Example: Alexander Fleming discovered penicillin.

2. We use a question mark at the end of a sentence that asks a question.

Example: Do you live to eat or eat to live?

3. We use an exclamation mark to express our strong emotions or when we are happy, sad, excited, surprised, etc.

I wonder how our English teacher is a hard working person!

Unit 2. Travel Behaviors

Unit Objectives

Upon the completion of this unit, you will be able to

- ✓ listen to a text and find out specific information and gist
- ✓ work out the meaning of words used in the listening text contextually and use them into your day-to-day communications
- ✓ pronounce English vowel and consonant sounds intelligibly in oral communications.
- ✓ share experience with your partner about their own travel experiences, if any
- ✓ explain the measures that should be taken to reduce traffic accidents in Ethiopia
- ✓ describe traffic rules using appropriate language orally
- ✓ give short instructions on traveling behaviors orally
- ✓ familiarize yourself with travel behaviors discussed in the passage and apply them when you travel into big cities
- ✓ identify different word formation patterns and use them correctly in your communication

Listening: Travelling and Places

- ✓ familiarize yourself with the meaning of the phrasal verbs such as fill in, fill up, etc., and use them both in your spoken and written English
- ✓ acquaint yourself with the patterns and uses of simple past tense and apply it correctly for different communicative purposes when/where necessary.
- ✓ familiarize yourself further with punctuation rules and use them in writing sentences, paragraphs or essays

2.1 Listening: Travelling and Places

Activity 2.1

Instructions: Before you listen to the passage entitled “Omo National Park”, discuss the following questions in pairs and report your answers to the class.

1. Have you ever traveled to a new place?
2. Where is Omo National Park?
3. Can you predict what you will visit in case you go to this park?

Fig. 3: The landscape of Omo National Park

Activity 2.2

Instructions: Now, listen to the passage that your teacher will read twice to you carefully, take important notes and write one main idea from each paragraph.

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

Activity 2.3

Instructions: Individually, think of the place that you have visited. Describe its geographical locations, exchange your description with your friend and give comments to each other.

2.2 Speaking2.2.1 Pronunciation*Activity 2.4

Instructions: Match the words given on the left hand side with the type of vowel that they contain.

NB: Let visually-impaired students be dictated by their friends and then identify the words with short and long vowel.

A	B
_____ 1. short [a]	A. after
_____ 2. long [a:]	B. lack
_____ 3. short [i]	C. beast
_____ 4. long [i:]	D. limit
_____ 5. short [o]	E. nose
_____ 6. long [o:]	F. long
_____ 7. short [u]	G. food
_____ 8. long [u:]	H. mute

Speaking

I. Pronouncing [ai] [ei] diphthongs

Look at the following examples:

[ai] : lye, write , night

[ei] : lace, lane' day

Miscellaneous Practice on Vowels

Activity 2.5

Instructions: Look at the pairs of words (heat/hate), (set/seat), (peak/peck), (read/raid), (soon/sun). Your teacher will read one of them in a sentence loudly to you. Listen to her/him, identify the word and write it down into your notebook.

II. Pronouncing different consonants

The consonant [p] and [f] are sometimes difficult for some Ethiopian students.

[P] is pronounced by bringing your upper and lower lips together and sending out the puff of air. Now say out the following words after your teacher: press, potato, stop, premium, pregnant

[f] is pronounced by putting your upper teeth on the lower lip. Now say out the following words after your teacher: first, flavour, figure, final, rough, laugh [la:f].

2.2.2 Giving Advice and Warnings

Giving advice to people who need it is one way of solving social problems. Accordingly, we give advice to people using different words or expressions. In addition, to protect people from possible danger or penalty, we give them warning.

Activity 2.6

Instructions: Be in groups of four, read each situation given below and give pieces of advice to the person who is in need of it.

1. Nasir studies hard but his result on examinations is not satisfactory. He often finishes doing questions before all students and gives it back to invigilators.
You see Nair, _____.
2. Solomon graduated from a University with degree and currently he is searching for job vacancies that enable him to earn attractive salary. He has never thought of any other options such as creating his own job either being alone or with his friends. What do you advise him?
Solomon, _____.
3. Mohammed and Ashenafi have started to take drug and their behaviors are changing these days. They do not attend classes properly and study their courses as they used to do previously. They are in bad conditions. Advise them. _____

4. One of your friends is repeatedly borrowing money from you and does not give you back. Give him warning _____
5. One of the school rules says, “Don’t come to classes with tousled hair” but Toga always likes to have such type of hair style. The director of the school is nearly to send him out. Give him a strong warning to avoid such misbehaving.

Short Note

We use “must”, “have/ has to” to give strong warning or advice and we use “should” or “ought to” to give weaker form of warning or advice. We use “suggest” and “had better” when we want to give advice in a polite way”.

Examples:

1. Obang, you are not feeling well today. Your pain is aggravating seriously. You must visit a physician immediately.
2. Cheating on examinations is a very serious academic crime, so you have to always work by your own and never let others copy your answers.
3. Life is always dependent on the existing situations; so when you face a problem, you ought to avoid frustrations and adjust yourself with the realities.
4. The weather condition is foggy; it seems to rain very soon. Hence, you had better carry an umbrella.
5. If you want to pass the entrance exam successfully, I suggest reading this book between lines.

Activity 2.7

Even if majority of you are living in rural areas where there is no heavy traffic movement, it is common one day to travel to big cities and walk on modern roads. Because of this, it is always important to know the traffic rules and apply them properly to save your life from the possible car accidents or save others too.

Instructions: The following are incomplete sentences that give advice to travelers about different traffic rules. Be in a group of four, read them and complete the spaces with the correct word/phrase.

Pedestrians are always advised to take their _____ 1 hand side because they can easily see the vehicles that are coming from the front side. When the red traffic light beams, it is meant for all vehicle drivers to _____ 2 but when the green one gives light, they can _____ 3 the road. The yellow light gives _____ 4. When You decide to cross from one direction to another, you should walk quickly and never _____ 5 on your mobile telephone

Fig. 4: Traffic lights and their meaning

NB: Visually impaired students are advised to use guides who have sufficient knowledge about the traffic light rules

2.3 Reading: Travel Behaviors

Activity 2.8

Instructions: Be in pairs and discuss the following questions before you read the passage given below.

1. What are the precautions you take to protect yourself from thieves and car accident if you are to travel into a big city for the first time? Why?
2. Discuss the meanings of the following words with your neighboring student: behavior pedestrian, sidewalk, pick-pocket, traffic pick.

Fig. 5: Traveling in Big Cities

Activity 2.9

Instructions: For items (1-3), read the passage silently and then match each of the main idea with the paragraph it refers to and write the number in the space provided. For items number 4 and 5, infer from the passage and give your answers in one sentence for each.

1. Travel is something which people do every day. It is very cumbersome to avoid the need to travel since it is one of the human behaviors. Travel may be a trip to school, university or to work. Travelling can often take a long time especially when great distances need to be covered. For some people, travelling is fun. For others, it is a terrible ordeal that even leads them to sickness. This means that they will become very unwell each time they travel. People travel for many different reasons. Some travel for business, some for pleasure and some for educational purposes. Today, travelling is considered as one of the important human activities for different reasons. It is a means to know more about the things which we have not yet known. It is also a wonderful experience to visit places of interest and natural attractions. When people do this, they broaden their mind and keep themselves away from the monotony of everyday life. That is why travel is part of the education system in many country's curricula. Unless people in one area travel and learn about the culture, history and tradition of different people, they cannot widen their mind. It is because of this that some economically strong countries cover the full accommodation cost of their students and send them to different countries to visit their heritages and cultures.

Reading: Travel Behaviors

2. Travel behavior refers to the complicated decision-making process of travelers during a trip regarding the choices of travel mode, route, departure time, destination and so on. Travel behavior has strong connection with physical movement outside the reference location of a person. The reference location is the place to which the person returns at the end of the day. This is mainly the home of the traveler; of course, it might also be the room in the hotel or some other short-term bases. Actual travel behaviors are often interdependent with the beliefs, attitudes, and values of the traveler. This means, the beliefs, attitudes and values of a traveler influence her/his travel behaviors and the vice-versa. As a result, when you plan to travel somewhere, you should predetermine your purpose, the time you need to arrive at your destination, the amount of money you need for your journey and the presence of important items such as medicine, cell-phone, bank book, water and other things that you frequently need.

3. Most travels are the experience of people in big cities. Though travelling in big cities is enjoyable and interesting, you are required to be familiar with different rules and regulations especially if you are a stranger. To begin with, if you are a pedestrian, you should know the traffic rules very carefully as the number of road users and vehicles is overwhelmingly large. When you want to cross roads, you need to know the meaning of the traffic light and take your way accordingly. If you do not know their meaning, you have to ask people around you or follow other travelers and cross the road safely. When you do this, you protect yourself from traffic accident. Second, since the mobility in big cities is very high, you should walk on the paving or sidewalk that is allowed for pedestrians. You are not only required to walk on the paving or sidewalk, you are also compelled to take your left side because you can see the vehicles that come from the front side easily and protect yourself from car accidents especially during rush hours. Third, take only the amount of money you need for the day and avoid wearing valuable ornaments as they expose you to thieves. For this reason, you need to take maximum care when you walk on a very crowded place as most pick-pockets prefer such places to loot different items of value. All in all, though travelling into cities is enjoyable and pleasant, it needs maximum care to protect oneself from different unexpected harms.

- ___ 1. A new traveler in big cities first should be aware of traffic rules and other prohibited actions before she/he starts to travel in big cities.
- ___ 2. Travelling is one means of acquiring knowledge and entertaining oneself.
- ___ 3. Decisions on the destination the traveler plans to reach, the purpose for the travel, the amount of money she/he needs and the type of mode of transportations she/he chooses to use are travel behaviours.
4. According to the passage, how can visiting the cultures and values of other people help to enrich one's scope of thinking? _____
5. Why do you think that the actual travel behaviors are often interdependent with the beliefs, attitudes, and values of the traveler?

Activity 2.10

2.4 Grammar

2.4.1 Simple Past Tense

Short Note

Simple past tense is a tense which adds –ed, -d or ied to regular verbs and changes its form in irregular verbs. For example: “wash__ washed”, “push__ pushed”, “play__ played”, “rain__ rained” and the irregular forms: “go—went”, “see__ saw”, “write__ wrote”, “hide__ hid”, “take__ took”, etc. We use this tense to describe an action that took place in the past and does not have connection with the present situations. Mostly we use it with the words such as: "yesterday", "ago", "last week", "last month", "last year", "last September", etc. In addition, we use it in the if clause of conditional type two or improbable conditions.

Activity 2.14

Instructions: Be in pairs and identify all the verbs written in simple past tense form in the short text given below and discuss the reason why the writer chose this tense.

Google's founders, Larry Page and Sergey Brin, met in 1995 when they were in their twenties and graduate students in computer science at Stanford University in California. They realized that Internet search was a very important field and began working together to make searching easier. Both Page and Brin left their studies at Stanford to work on their project. Though they have been successful in creating the software, surprisingly, they have never returned to finish their study for their degree.

Activity 2.15

Instructions: Individually, write a paragraph of five to seven sentences that describes the activities you did yesterday.

Note that a paragraph is a group of sentences that mostly discusses one main idea. The sentence that consists of the main idea is called the topic sentence. All other sentences that build the topic sentence are called supportive details. You can begin your paragraph like this.

Writing

Yesterday was a day on which I accomplished lots of activities. As I got up from my bed, I went to toilet. room. _____

2.5 Writing

2.5.1 Practising Writing Different Types of Sentences Based on their Structure

Sentences in English are classified into four groups based on their grammatical structure. They are: simple, compound, complex and compound complex.

Activity 2.16

Instructions: Be in groups of four, read the short text given below and identify the simple, compound, complex and compound-complex sentences based on your background knowledge.

1. Kayamo is a known patriot in his village. 2. He always likes to sing patriotic songs but his brother Huriso likes to write poems. 3. Though both of them have not completed their secondary school education due to different problems, they are intelligent enough to understand ideas and solve problems. 4. When the neighbouring people have social problems, they come to them to get advice but both of them have no time to help all of them.

Short Note I

A simple sentence is a sentence that has only one clause. In another way, It is a single statement. It can be written in four different ways:

1. with a single subject and a single verb

Example:

Halefom visited Wolaita Sodo town yesterday.

2. with compound subject and single verb

Example:

Halefom and Wegaso visited Wolaita Sodo town yesterday.

3. with single subject and compound verb

Example: Halefom visited Wolaita Sodo and went back to Addis Ababa.

4. with compound subject and compound verb

Example: Halefom and Wogasso visited Wolaita Sodo and went back to Addis Ababa

Short Note II

A compound sentence is a sentence that consists of two sentences (independent clauses) joined by connectors such as and, but, or, for, yet, for, nor

Examples:

Ujulu likes reading and Megersa prefers to listen to TV. The former likes to eat fish but the latter is allergic to it. Today they did not go out of the campus to visit the sides of River Baro for they are busy with their assignments. Both of them like to visit Addis Ababa; yet, they do not have enough money for the fair and accommodations. They are known in the campus for their good manners. They never offend people unless things are beyond their capacity nor overlook others' cultures and religions.

Writing

 Short Note III

A complex sentence is a sentence that consists of one main clause and one or more subordinate clause. Subordinate clause is often introduced with subordinating conjunctions such as: although, even if, as if, after, when, since, as, while, etc.

Example

A Halima is currently living in Jigjiga. Although she likes her birth place, mostly she prefers to live in Dire Dawa City. She had preferred to live in that city after her niece came back from Saudi Arabia and decided to reside there. Even if her niece loves Ethiopia, she often behaves as if she were a foreigner. The main reason is the influence of the Saudi Arabians' culture she has been adapted to it. Since she is a strong Muslim religion follower, she does not need anyone to disturb her during her praying time. When she goes to mosque, she always keeps some amount of money and gives to the poor who cannot live by their own. One more thing, even if she is a devoted Muslim religion follower, her social life with Christians is surprisingly a model for others.

compound-complex sentence is a sentence that often carries at least two main (independent) clauses and one or more dependent (subordinate) clauses.

Example

Reading is an important language skill in our life for different reasons but it is difficult to achieve it unless we practise it continuously. To be academically successful, for example, students have to read lots of books, resources from internet and journals ; otherwise, they cannot pass the final examinations despite their effort to attend lectures from their teachers attentively. If students once achieve this skill, they cannot make unreasonable decisions ;yet, they are in emotional situations.

Activity 2.17

Instructions: Individually, write your own four simple sentences in four different ways, four compound sentences, four complex sentences and four compound-complex sentences and exchange your work with a partner and then give and take comments. If you face a problem, refer back to the notes you have been given above.

2.5.2 Summarizing a Text

Activity 2.18

Instructions: In pairs, discuss the following questions:

1. What is a summary writing?
2. Have you ever summarized a written text ? If your answer is “yes” to the above question, what are the procedures you have followed in summarizing the text?

Writing

3. Is the skill of summary writing important for students like you?
4. What are the most important guidelines you follow in summarizing a given text?

Short Note

A summary is the short form of the original text written in the writer's own words. It is an important skill that you, as a student, should develop so as to be successful in your academic activities ranging from secondary school to university. When you write a summary of a text, do not try to insert any of your own opinions, interpretations, deductions or comments. Instead, understand the main points in the original text and write them in your own few sentences. The last sentence of your summary should wrap up or give conclusion to summarized ideas in your own words. Mostly you can summarize a text if only you know what the original text is all about. To do this, read the original text until you grasp the main ideas. Even if you have memorized all the facts in the original text, it does not necessarily mean that you have understood the original text. That is why academically outstanding students always manage to read a text and attempt to summarize it as they engage themselves in the reading task. For example, if they are able to write a one- or two-sentence summary of a paragraph while reading it, then that is a good sign that they have correctly understood the text.

Let us see how the following text has been summarized.

Plagiarization is an act of taking someone's words or ideas as if they were your own. Plagiarism can result in your work being destroyed. It is a serious theft that degrades you and destroys the value of your work. It can result in expulsion from your academic institution, in some cases, permanently. In some countries it can result in legal actions such as penalties by money or being imprisoned. Nowadays it is a pressing problem across the world so take care of yourself when you write essays, assignments or researches. If you borrow ideas, try to acknowledge the owners appropriately.

The above text can be summarized as follows:

Plagiarization is one of the criminal acts in the academic world. It reduces the credit for your works thus keep yourself away from such illegal act as much as you can by acknowledging the writers from whom you have borrowed ideas

Instructions: Individually, read the text given below and finish the summary in your own sentences.

English is an international language which has a number of benefits to different people in the world. It is a language that brings people of the world together in the area of trade, diplomacy, sport and the like. If you see the benefit of this language in our country, Ethiopia, it is used as a medium of instruction. Students in secondary schools and universities acquire knowledge through this language. In addition, proclamations and different documents are written both in federal languages and in this language side by side. Therefore, learning this language and developing the skills is unquestionably one of the aims of our education system.

Writing

Summarizing the above text

English has a number of benefits internationally. People need it, for example, to do business, communicate with each other, get information from Internet and watch different sport events. In the case of our country, _____

_____ ; therefore, _____

_____.

Activity 2.20

Instructions: Read any text that is relevant for your academic progress not more than six paragraphs. Summarize it and submit your work to your teacher for evaluation. Make sure that when you submit your summary, you have to attach the original text to it.

2.5.3 Describing People

Description is a type of writing that gives information about the physical appearance, personality, age, dressing style, hobbies and likes and dislikes of a person or the topography of a place or different events that have taken place in different situations. In brief, it is a type writing that gives you the picture of a person, place or event through words. When you write a descriptive paragraph or essay, it is a must to use different adjectives and adverbs. Therefore, you have to be familiar with most of them. As example, look at the adjectives and adverbs you use in describing a person

Example: hair: long, curly. Straight, bald, receding, trimmed, ringled, tousled, plaited, dressed. Pony-tails, etc forehead: high, low, medium, etc.

9. The prevalence of peace needs contributions from each citizen doesn't it?
10. Shakespeare says "fear not to die but fear purposeless death."

- 11 Kill him not leave him. (Assume that the purpose of the order is not to kill the person)
- 12 After a good washing and grooming the pup looked like a new dog.
- 13 The ginkgo tree whose leaves turn bright yellow in autumn came to this country from Asia.
- 14 Go to the first traffic light turn left and then look for a yellow brick building on the north side of the street. That is the house of the new mayor
- 15 Be a person of excuse far-sighted and resourceful but don't hold grudges

I. Using Fullstop, Comma, Semi-colon and Colon

Activity 2.23

Instructions: Use full stop, comma, semi-colon or colon in the following text where necessary and explain your reasons why you have decided to use each of them.

When we write in English we use possibly different punctuation marks comma period (full stop) quotation marks question mark exclamation mark hyphen colon semicolon apostrophe etc these punctuation marks are seriously essential in writing because they have the power to change the meaning of idea therefore students must learn how and where to use them and practically apply them into their writing. If we simply see how a comma changes the whole meaning of a sentence let us see the following example let us first eat mother if the writer does not put the comma properly at the right place it is difficult or confusing for the reader to get the meaning.

Short Note

Use comma in the following situations:

1. to separate independent clauses when they are joined by subordinating conjunctions such as therefore, moreover, however and the like

Example: Patience is an important quality of a person; however, it needs maturity and critical thinking.

2. to separate off the subordinate clause from the main clause but do not use comma when the main clause appears initially

Example:

A. Because the situations are not convenient for him, he decided to disseminate pretexts. (correct)

B. He decided to disseminate pretexts, because the situations are not convenient (incorrect)

3. To separate words given in series in a sentence

Example: To speak English fluently, it is a must to develop your listening, speaking, reading, writing and other sub-language skills as best as you can.

4. To separate introductory phrases in direct speeches

Example: Tihitina says, "Education is the most important activity in my life."

5. Before sentences that are followed by tag questions

Example: I am sympathetic to children begging in streets, aren't I?

6. In relative clauses to separate off the non- defining clause but do not use comma when the clause is introduced with “that”.

Example:

- A. Those students, who frequently listen to English media, significantly improve their listening skills. (correct)
- B. Those students, that frequently listen to English media, significantly improve their listening skills. (incorrect)

7. To set off phrases at the end of the sentence that refers to the beginning or middle of the sentence.

Semi-colon

- Use a semi-colon in the following situations

1. to join two related independent clauses in place of a comma and a coordinating conjunction (and, but, or, nor, for, so, yet).

Example:

- A. Our government wants different investors to involve in different investment activities in the country; important infra-structures have not yet been well constructed. This sentence can be rewritten with the same meaning:
- B. Our government wants different investors to involve in different investment activities in the country; however, important infra-structures have not yet been well constructed.

2. to replace a period (full stop) between related sentences when the second sentence starts
3. with either a conjunctive adverb or a transitional expression, such as, for example, for instance, that is, besides, accordingly, furthermore, otherwise, however, thus, therefore.

Example: Kapurie worked for many hours on all his homework; nevertheless, he was unable to finish all of it.

Writing

4. Courses in universities require students to write essays, research papers and reports; therefore, you must improve your writing skills from time to time.

Colon

■ Use colon in the following situations:

1. to introduce lists in a sentence.

Example: The following skills are important when you join a university: writing and speaking in English, taking important lectures, managing your time and cooperating with peers.

2. when the second sentence explains, illustrates, paraphrases, or expands the idea in the first sentence.

Example: He got what he worked for: his promotion is accepted by all of his colleagues.

3. to separate hours from minutes with no space before or after the colon.

Example: Our English teacher arrived at the classroom at 8:20 a.m..

4. to separate chapter from verse in biblical references with no space before or after the colon.

Example: Psalm 17:25

Unit 3. Punctuality

Unit Objectives

Upon the completion of this unit, you will be able to:

- ✓ listen to a text, find specific information and gist

Fig. 7: Unpunctual student disturbing the class

3.1 Listening: Punctual Students

NB: Please, students who are not visually impaired, give oral explanations about the picture to your visually impaired classmates.

Activity 3.1

Instructions: Now, you are going to listen to a passage. Before you listen to the passage, discuss the following questions in groups of four and report your answers to the whole class.

1. Are you punctual for different appointments or events?
2. What is your opinion about the Ethiopian culture with regard to punctuality?
3. List down the different benefits of punctuality in human life.
4. Discuss the meaning of the following words so that you can understand the passage with fewer challenges: punctuality, respect, confidence, tardiness, procrastination, conscious, commitment.

Activity 3.2

Instructions: Listen to the passage carefully when your teacher reads to you and fill in the blank spaces with the correct word or phrase individually.

Punctuality is a habit of attending a task on time. In a wider sense, it's a habit of doing things at the right time. Punctuality is the key to get _____1 in everyone's life. Enough has been said and written about the _____2 benefits of punctuality. Time conscious people understand punctuality not only just because it is a valuable behavior but also because it lets them live a stable, secured and self-confident life that can be a role model in the community. Consequently, top people in the field of business, sports, politics and arts are always punctual and that is always visible in their everyday activities.

Listening: Punctual Students

When we link the matter with students' life, it is of many _____ 3. First, if a student is punctual, she/he gains respect and social acceptance from all members of the school community. Second, punctual students free themselves from conflicts that may result from failure to meet deadlines for submitting assignments or reports. If you, as a student, has promised to study something or complete an assignment before or on time but were unable to do so, then you essentially break the promise. On the other hand, if you submit the assignment on or before time, then your class teacher and classmates will see you as a student with _____ 4.

Third, punctuality gives students the _____ 5 they need in life and plays a very vital role in increasing their academic success. Punctuality serves as their own _____ 6 that symbolizes their discipline, strictness, time management skill and commitment to success. Fourth, punctual students develop a sense of self-confidence and _____ 7. Because of this, everyone feels confident when such students are given responsibilities either when they are at schools or join the world of work because punctuality is one of the requirements that enable them discharge responsibilities trusted up on them efficiently and effectively. Fourthly, punctuality is just one of the several requirements to live a _____ 8 life. Once students become punctual in all of their daily dealings, it will help them kick away laziness and negative attitude from their life. It also has a chain reaction on other aspects of their life as it helps them become better citizens. In general, when students _____ 9 the benefits of punctuality in their mind and always strive towards its implementations, they always plan in advance, evaluate progress, work hard to be clear about what they want from life.

Activity 3.3

Instructions: Discuss the questions below in groups of four.

1. Why we Ethiopians are always criticized for unpunctuality?

2. What is the most important idea in each paragraph?
3. Have you decided to become punctual as a student and when you live in the community?
4. How can you contribute your share in instilling the concept of punctuality in the community you are living?

3.2 Speaking

3.2.1 Pronunciation

3.2.2 Expressing Personal Thoughts and Beliefs

To express beliefs and thoughts, we use the expressions such as:

I think.....I don't think

I believe.....I don't believe in

I know..... I don't know

We use the verb “believe” when we want to express something based on truth or our conviction but we are not fully confident whether the fact or our conviction is well accepted by our listeners. We use “think” to state our opinion. It is personal view subject to criticism and disapproval. We use “know” when we have information in our mind.

Activity 3.5

Instructions: One of you plays the part of Momina and your partner that of Farah's. Then, complete the dialogue given below using the expressions: “I believe”, “I think” or “I know”.

Farah: How can we succeed in our studies at schools?

Momina: I believe that attending to each lesson carefully, managing time and working hard are most important requirements

Farah: I think what you have said is correct but you have missed an important requirement, that is, working in teams.

Momina: You are right. I know that team work is important for success not only at schools but also in other activities outside schools but I think that there are some students who are naturally abhorrent to team work.

Farah: _____.

Momina: You see, we students have our own style of learning but I always believe that no one can be successful in doing things alone as we human beings by our nature are social animals.

Farah: I accept what you are saying but I think that the right of people to do anything according to their own interest should always be respected as long as they comply with the rules and regulations.

Momina: _____.

Farah: I know that the pieces of advice you have given me are very important but my problem is though I study hard, I do not score good results in all subjects.

Momina: I think such problem is not only yours. I know that my friend, Mahlet, has also the same problem. To solve the problem, the first thing is to change the way you study each subject and understand the method of each teacher's teaching and modes of assessment.

Farah: _____.

Momina: _____.

Farah: I believe that discussing with friends is a good habit. You see due to the discussions I have held with you, I have got lots of lessons that can change my style of learning and studying my lessons. So, I am a huge thinker that everything has a solution as long as discussants are reasonable and transparent.

Momina: _____.

Note also that to express strong belief or convey strong opinions, we use the phrases such as: I strongly believe that, I am sure that, I definitely think, I have a huge belief, I am a great believer_____.

Speaking

Look at the examples given below for better understanding

1. Dr. Sileshi strongly believes that using River Nile for mutual benefits is the only solution that enables the downstream countries to use the water equitably.
2. I am a great believer that if there is a feeling of supremacy in the mind of any individual or community, it is obvious that there is always a visible or invisible confrontation.
3. Tihitina definitely thinks that quality education is the only key to the development and transformation of a nation.
4. Afomia has a huge belief that everyone has her/his own unique quality that can never be found in another person's.

Activity 3.6

Instructions: Be in pairs and express your thoughts or beliefs on each of the following statements.

1. We, Ethiopians, have to largely depend on our own local products.
2. We are most alive when we are in love.
3. If people are forced to remain silent, they are immigrants.

3.2.3 Using “so” and “neither”

Look at the following conversation between two students using “so” and “neither”.

John: I always prefer to keep quiet to talking with an irrational person.

Emily: So do I.

John: My fiend hardly speaks any French words.

Emily: Neither do I.

Activity 3.7

Instructions: Use the correct expression from the alternatives given in parentheses to complete the sentences given below.

3. Bejiga: My friend and I seldom revise each day's lesson every evening.
Hirut : _____(so do I/ neither do I/ neither don't I)
4. Bejiga: My sister does not like a person who talks when he/she eats food.
Hirut: _____ (neither does mine/so does mine/neither does not mine)
5. Bejiga: Kidus always visits the poor every month when he collects his salary
Hirut: _____(so is Hana/so does Hana/ neither does Hana)

Note

“so” is used to give confirmation positively to an opinion or statement made by the earlier speaker but “neither” is used to disapprove or oppose the first speaker’s opinion or statement. “Neither” cannot be used with a negative verb since it has negative meaning by its own.

Consider also that both “so” and “neither” are always followed by auxiliary verb + pronoun.

3.3 Reading: Punctuality

Activity 3.8

Instructions: Below is a passage entitled, “Punctuality”. Before you read it, discuss the questions below in groups of four.

1. Is it always important to be on time?
2. Are you usually on time, in time or late? Why?
3. What do you think this passage is about?

Activity 3.9

Instructions: Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow it individually.

1. Punctuality is strictly availing oneself or doing something exactly at an appointed (scheduled) time. Though it is undermined in many work places, it is one of the qualities of a duty-minded and disciplined person as it reflects his/her good image about work and human beings in general. Thus, it is part of an important life skill that contributes greatly to success in every aspect of life. For further understanding, let us see the different benefits of punctuality with some substantive evidences discussed below.
2. First, being on time for a meeting, an event, a class or even a party shows that you are giving due respect to the people who are coordinating the activities and others who are taking part with you. When we see this concept in alignment with the Ethiopians’ culture of time utility in everyday life, many people always arrive ten or more minutes late to work, appointments or events. They just seem to have an internal clock that is lagging behind. Usually when they arrive late, they request an apology under the guise of telling the old platitude ‘yehabesha ketero’ (socially accepted norm of Habesha people to procrastination) or tell you how busy they were with other activities. We all Ethiopians know that there is a wrongly accepted norm with regard to punctuality. When people with high level of responsibility procrastinate, it is meant that their life and the activities that they had been engaged in are more important than others or late arrival is interpreted as signs of importance, greatness or business than other participants who strictly respect untardiness. In fact, degree of responsibility varies from individuals to individuals. The argument of the writer is that scheduling and managing time is one of the qualities required of modern managers or executives. Therefore, punctuality has to be the culture of every citizen of the country irrespective of his/her position and wealth.

3. Second, if you are always punctual, most people will naturally assume that you are duty-minded, responsible and courteous. If you arrive at work on time, hand in your assignments on time, are punctual to meetings and various commitments, your boss and co-workers will think of you as a diligent, civilized and disciplined person. Whom do you think a level-headed executive would assign for a position which requires a strong sense of responsibility? The answer is obvious. Mostly it is a person whom he/she thinks is committed to his/her career and always punctual for work and other important events. However, as discussed above, most of the time executives themselves are found unpunctual for meetings or other important activities. We all hold a belief that executives have to be role models in every activity they perform to the people that they are leading. To this effect, respecting appointments is one of the requirements expected of them. It is always important to remember the proverb which goes as: “Procrastination is a thief of time.

4. Third, promptitude tells others that not only you are giving recognition to the importance of the meeting, the work or the assignment but also you are conveying a message that you are respecting them as individuals or teams who have their own responsibility to discharge not less than yours. If you always start a project or if you are always late to meetings, your tardiness tells your boss that you have less attention to the importance of the work and possibly to the overall objectives and policies of your organization. As far as I am concerned, if I am an official to manage certain activities in a given organization, I will much rather give added responsibilities to those who do not make me wonder if they finish tasks on time and those who do not make me feel as if they are throwing something together at the last minute. To conclude, progress, prosperity and civilizations have strong connection with conscious time management and utilization. Therefore, the more we develop the habit of punctuality, the better we achieve the goal we set earlier. Now, as a student, have you decided to be always punctual?

1. Write the main idea of paragraph one and two in one sentence for each.
2. The following main points are taken from paragraph three and four. Write two or more sentences that give supportive details to each of them.

- a) Punctuality marks not only respectation for time but also tells us the different good qualities of a person.
 - b) Punctuality is considered as one of the qualities of a committed worker in an organization.
3. What does the phrase “life skill” in paragraph one refer to?
 4. What do you think is the attitude of the writer towards the saying in Amharic “yehabesha ketero” ?

Activity 3.10

Instructions: Answer the following questions by referring to the contents of the passage.

1. According to the passage, what is the common understanding of people if highly responsible officials are late for meetings or other appointments?
2. Which of the paragraph in the passage tells us the relationship between punctuality and respectation for human beings? How?
3. Some people are heard that if a person is always punctual, she/he has not yet built self-confidence. Do you agree or disagree? Why? (Give your opinion by referring to the passage)

3.4 Vocabulary

Activity 3.11

Instructions: Find a word which has the closest meaning with the phrases given below from the above passage.

1. not to delay
2. old way of saying
3. overlook or make something less important

7. We have given them repetitive supports but still they could not get behind their theses.

Grammar

8. If you want to improve your writing skill, the first thing expected from you is to get ideas down on a sheet of paper as they are. It will be improved after continuous editing and reviewing.

3.5 Grammar

3.5.1 Adverbs of Time and Frequency

Adverbs of time are words/phrases that tell us when things happen. In another way, they are words/phrases that often describe when a certain action happened. The most commonly used adverbs of time are: when, while, after, yesterday, tomorrow, now, last week/month, year, soon, ago, etc. Adverbs of frequency, however, denote the time length of an action or an event. The most commonly known adverbs of frequency are how long, how often, always, often, regularly, frequently, occasionally, sometimes, etc.

Activity 3.16

Instructions: Work in pairs and use the time adverbs given in the box below and fill in the spaces in the dialogue.

after	while	when	often	how often	ago
for a long time	before	seldom	as soon as	until

Tenkir: _____ 1 do you visit the historical and cultural heritages in Ethiopia?

Dendir: Eh...I visit such places very _____ 2 as I am always busy with different activities; moreover, I don't have money for transportation and accommodations.

Tenkir: This is a question that foreign tourists _____9 ask Ethiopians _____10 they come to this country. The main reason is they have strong appreciation for different attractions in Ethiopia.

3.5.2 Adverbs of Manner

Activity 3.17

Instructions: Be in pairs, write down the sentences given below in your notebook and then try to identify the adverbs of manner using your background knowledge.

1. The artist's lovely speech that he delivered in a lovely manner in the new stadium inspired many citizens to join our national defense army and protect the country from humiliation and fragmentation.
2. I was to punish him but I changed my mind when he approached me in a friendly way.
3. He speaks English like native speakers. Has he ever lived in English speaking countries?
4. It is good to listen patiently when people speak to you angrily.

Grammar

5. Yesterday I was not happy with your work but today you have done it well.
6. Rebeka studied all the subjects so hard that she stood first among all grade ten students.
7. His report reached me late, so I could not read it deeply and give comment on it.
8. Lazy students always arrive at schools late. One of the reasons might be their problem to wake up from their bed early.
9. Why do some people want to behave as if they were the only people to decide on others' life?
10. Though Kolcha gave me his brotherly advice in a brotherly way, there are things that he has not taken into consideration.

Short Note

An adverb of manner tells us how something happens, that is, whether it has happened quickly or slowly. They are usually placed after the main verb or after the object. They are usually formed from adjectives by adding – ly. If an adjective already ends in -ly, we use the phrase “in a way” or “In...manner” to express manner: A few adverbs of manner such as, ‘early’, ‘late’, ‘fast’, ‘hard’, ‘low’, have the same form as their adjectives.

Example

1. Your early preparations have made the discussions fruitful even if you have not arrived at the meeting place as early as possible.

2. Abegaz himself is late for class today but he always criticizes late comers.
3. Fast foods may not be necessarily eaten fast.
4. Though people understand him as a hard worker, he does not work hard in the absence of his boss.
5. Some people express their internal feelings silently.
6. A good teacher always treats his/her students in a lovely way.
7. Can you provide us with daily information about current events daily?

NB: Make a sure that an adverb cannot be placed between a verb and its direct object.

3.6 Writing

3.6.1 Punctuations

a) Brackets ([])

- Use square brackets to include words within a reported sentence that is not part of the original quote.

Example: The president said that some of the research papers [presented in the seminar] show solved problems but do not show how to solve problems.

b) Braces ({ })

- The main use of a brace in writing is to show number set.

Example: Can you find the subset of set A and B? $A = \{ b, f, j, o, t \}$, $B = \{ j, o, g, p, w \}$,

c) Parentheses (())

- We use Parentheses to include further detail or qualifying remarks.

Example: Artist Dr. Tilahun Gessesse (1933 ___ 2001), the legendary singer, his works transfer from generation to generation with their beautiful melody and taste.

Writing

3.6.2 Writing a Narrative Paragraph

A paragraph is a group of sentences written orderly to explain mostly one main idea to the reader. The sentence that carries the main idea is called a topic sentence. Other sentences give support to the topic sentence so they are called supportive details. When you write a paragraph, first, you should produce an outline. An outline is the raw idea that you produce in the form of phrases or short sentences before writing your final paragraph. Preparing an outline before you begin to write your paragraph helps you know the areas where you focus when you write your paragraph. Second, when you write your paragraph make sure that the ideas in each sentence should be in their correct order. If not, your readers will face difficulty in understanding what you are saying. Third, you should avoid any idea that does not have direct connection with the topic sentence.

Activity 3.21

Instructions: Use the outline given below and complete the narrative paragraph by adding three to four sentences individually.

Short Note:

A narrative paragraph is a paragraph which tells us a story. When you tell a story either at paragraph or essay level, you need characters (people, animals or things) about whom the story talks. Second, you need main point (theme) that the reader takes as important moral lesson. Third, setting, (the time and place) where the events in the story take place, are essential.

Example of an outline to write a paragraph on punctuality.

Assume that the title of your paragraph is “My Lateness is My Enemy”

- the place where the story took place - Addis Zemen
- time - summer
- late arrival for classes
- missing a test that carried 10 points
- the declination of rank from first to second
- missing the school reward

“My Lateness is My Enemy”

The story took place in Addis Zemen Primary School in 2001 E.C. I am always punctual in my life but one day unusually I could not wake up from my bed at the right time. When I looked at my watch, the class time had gone by 40 minutes. I collected my belongings hurriedly and ran to school. When I arrived there, the school gate had already been closed.

Activity 4.10

Fig. 8: Main tourist attraction sites in Ethiopia

Instructions: Read the passage silently and then answer the questions given next to it by writing true or false based on the facts in it. Give supportive evidence for each of your decisions.

1. Tourism is defined scientifically as the sum total of relationships and interactions of tourists with business suppliers, guides, hosting communities and hospitality workers in the process of attracting , transporting, hosting and managing the activities connected to them. Tourists are those people who travel to and stay in places outside their environment for more than twenty-four hours. It is one of the largest and most rapidly growing industries which contribute to the multidirectional social and environmental developments in the world. Due to these and other reasons, the sector is getting attention by developing countries whose economic background mainly depends on exporting agricultural products which have limited role to earn hard currency. When this sector develops steadily, it has been becoming a backup for the stability of their economy. That is why many of them are striving to make use of this industry as an influential economic sector. As a result of these, the World Tourism Organization (WTO) is encouraging them by providing both technical and professional supports.

2. There are many reasons why tourism is seen as a vital tool for tourist destination countries in economic, socio cultural and environment streams. First, if tourism is properly incorporated into the development strategies of a country, the sector can be a corner stone of new productive systems aimed at reducing poverty and achieving significant economic growth. Second, it is a sector that provides a wide range of different employment opportunities to a variety of citizens ranging from professionals to unskilled individuals. In this case, it does not only supply necessary funds to finance firms' activities, but also stimulates the firms' productivity and creates new job opportunities that increase the country's welfare as well. One thing that makes the job opportunity in the tourism sector different from others is that it contributes to a wide geographical spread of employment opportunities as it is not only restricted to the main centers or capital cities. It is applicable to rural areas where the attraction sites are available.
3. Third, tourism has a power in promoting export. It is to say that it earns foreign exchange or hard currency which is so essential for the development of the tourist destination countries. The tourist needs different products when she/he stays in a hosting country. Accordingly, to fulfill the needs for consumables, tourists come with their own money to the hosting country. This money in turn enables countries to generate income which has significant role in increasing their revenue. Fourth, tourism involves individuals in the local community for different activities, in some cases, including enterprises. In this community-based tourism, members of a community, often rural, poor and economically disadvantaged, manufacture different local products and sell them out to tourists. In doing this, the community earns additional income from their products and services and a proportion of this income is then used for the benefit of the community as a whole. Lastly, this sector contributes its own role in the field of cultural exchange and interactions. When tourists come to a hosting country, some of them stay long, study the languages and the cultures of that particular community and they also share their own culture to the people who are living in their destinations. As we understand from different sources, there are tourists who have got married to a person in their touring area and established strong social tie.

4. If tourism is very indispensable for a country's overall development, countries that host tourists have to think of the needs of different tourists and work hard to fulfill for them as best as they can. First, for example, countries should produce documents that give sufficient information on the sites that tourists can visit and gain knowledge or entertain themselves. Second professionals who have deep knowledge about the places that the tourists want to visit with good proficiency of the tourists' language are of paramount importance. When tourists get sufficient information or knowledge about the place or event they visit, they obtain maximum satisfaction and do the work of promotion for the country in inviting others to come and visit the places they have already visited. Third, quality and standard accommodations are the other requirements that attract an overwhelming number of tourists who visit an area frequently. Professionally prepared foods, neat sleeping rooms with essential modern accessories, security and waitresses and waiters who talk to them courteously are among others. Fifth, governments need to build modern roads that are comfortable to drive both during the day, night, summer and winter. When such types of roads are built, they comfortably travel to different places within a short period of time. Sixth, security is the other most important requirement. If there are pick-pockets, brigands, bandits or groups fighting in forests, no tourist will attempt to visit that area. Therefore, making maximum efforts and prevailing peace especially in the tourist frequenting areas is unquestionably the responsibility of a non-fragile government.

1. _____ Tourism is the interaction and relationship of tourists with different sections of a community in the course of their travelling and visiting.
2. _____ The tourism sector has got more attention from the developed countries than the developing countries as they have been conscious of its benefit right from the beginning of the sector as an income generating industry.
3. _____ The tourism sector provides job opportunities to both educated and non-educated citizens though there is a restriction due to the geographical locations.

4. _____ Community tourism makes individuals creative and productive in producing different items such as souvenirs that they sell to tourists and increase their income.
5. _____ The interaction of tourists can sometimes grow into kinship relations.

4.3.1 Extracting Main Idea from a Paragraph

Activity 4.11

Instructions: Write the main idea of paragraphs 2, 3 and 4. The first one is done as an example for you.

Example:

Paragraph1: These days tourism is considered as an important economic sector which has got serious attention by developing countries as a means to support the hard currency they earn from agricultural exports.

4.3.2 Inference questions

Activity 4.12

Instructions: Answer the questions given below by inferring the main contents discussed in the passage.

1. On the basis of the writer's view, why should developed countries do not give more attention to the tourism sector than the developing ones?
2. How those people who have been engaged in the agricultural activities can also take part in the community tourism?

Activity 4.13

Instructions: Answer the following question briefly in writing.

Be in small groups, think the natural resources or heritages in your community, write a short paragraph on the remedial measures that should be taken to protect and conserve them to sustainably lengthen their age of attractability.

4.4 VocabularyActivity 4.14

Instructions: Find words which are synonymous with the words taken from the passage and written here below. The first one is done as an example for you.

Example: hospitality (par 1, line 3) - kindness or courtesy in welcoming guests, tourists or strangers.

1. hard currency (par 1, line 11) _____
2. vital (par 2, line 1) _____
3. incorporated (par 2, line 3) _____
4. professionals (par 2, line 7) _____
5. welfare (par 2, line 10) _____
6. consumables (par 3, line 4) _____
7. revenue (par 3, line 7) _____
8. indispensable (par 4, line 1) _____
9. accommodations (par 4, line 11) _____
10. overwhelming (par 4, line 12) _____
11. brigands (par 4, line 19) _____

Activity 4.15

Instructions: Now, use each of the words for which you have written synonyms and construct a meaningful sentence individually. The first one is done as an example for you.

Example:

hospitality: The hospitality Ethiopians show to guests and strangers is always highly appreciated by many tourists and foreigners.

Activity 4.16

Instructions: Look for the words given below and write the word or phrase they refer to.

1. The word “them” (par 1 line 4) refers to _____
2. The phrase “due to this” (par1, line 8) refers to _____
3. The word “their” (par 1, line 12) refers to _____

4.4.1 Word formation

I. noun + noun compounds

A compound noun is a noun made by putting two or more nouns together to act as one noun. These nouns can be written as one word as in "fireworks" and "waistline" or hyphenated words as in "well-being" or as separate words as in "ice-cream".

Look at more examples on noun compounds:

English English, school teacher, flower pot, rain coat, baby sitter

Activity 4.17

Instructions: Individually, find out ten noun+ noun compound words from any source and make your own sentences using each of them. The first one is done as an example for you.

Pen friend: You have to be very careful when you select a pen friend or pen pal as some friends place you into unexpected trouble.

II. Adjective+ noun Compounds

Sometimes adjectives and nouns can form a single word

For example: greenhouse, rainy season, sunny days, far sight, driven word, fast food, etc

Activity 4.18

Instructions: Individually, find out ten adjective + noun words and make your own sentences using each of them. The first one is done as an example for you.

Example : Black box is an important piece of equipment in an airplane it gives information to investigators about the cause of an accident when it crashes..

III. verb+ noun

Sometimes verbs and nouns can form a single word.

Example: Swimming pool, driving license, writing pad, dining room, washing machine, etc.

Activity 4.19

Instructions: Individually, find out ten verb+ noun words and make your own sentences using each of them. The first one is done as an example for you.

Example: If you stay a night in an international hotel, in the morning, you can go to their beautiful dining room and eat your breakfast freely.

4.4.2 Practising Phrasal Verbs with “get”

Activity 4.20

Instructions: Look up the meaning of the phrasal verbs given in the table below from a modern dictionary and construct your own sentences then exchange your sentences with your friend and give comments to each other’s work. The first one is done as an example for you.

get on: make progress or be successful

Example: Using a dictionary is one way of getting on very well with your English.

get over: recover from illness distress or mental weakness

Example: After Bushra has started to do light physical exercises, now he is getting over his heart attack.

get on	get off	get off on	get in	get out
get out on	get over	get over with	get through	get to

4.5 Grammar

4.5.1 Using “be+going to + infinitive” and “will + infinitive” to show future intentions am/is/are + going to + speak, write, listen, read, do and will + speak, write, listen, read, do, etc

Instructions: Look at the pair of sentences given below and find out their meaning differences.

Grammar

1. a) I will take the entrance exam to a university next year.
b) I have passed Grade Twelve School Leaving Examination successfully; I am going to take the entrance examination to join a university.
2. a) The tourist industry is suffering from the economic downturn due to COVID19; therefore, Dafersha is going to start another job outside Arba Minch town.
b) Dafersha will start another job outside Arba Minch town.

Note:

We use “be going to” to predict something that we think is certain to happen or when we have evidence to happen; however, “will” is used when we are talking about something with absolute certainty and evidence, data or justification are not required.

Activity 4.22

Instructions: Fill in the blank spaces given in the following dialogue either with “be + going to + infinitive” or “will + infinitive” form of the main verb being in pairs.

Habtamu: The rain is falling in torrents; so, I _____1 the director and inform him that I cannot conduct classes today. (am going to call/will call)

Fikirte: I think making a call to him is not important; you ____2 (will go/are going to go) to your students with me by my Bajaj when the rain stops.

Habtamu: Your idea is good but it _____3 (will be/is going to be) difficult to cross the stream near by the school.

Fikirte: You are correct but to solve that problem, I _____ 4 (am going to use/will use) the newly built road at the rear of the school.

Habtamu: Has that road started giving service? It is good. Let us take that way. The rain is falling almost every day. Hence, I _____ 5 (will buy /am going to buy) an umbrella from one of the boutiques by the new road.

4.5.2 Present Continuous Tense

Activity 4.23

Instructions: Individually, based on your background knowledge, write three sentences in present continuous tense that show different purposes.

1. _____.

2. _____.

3. _____.

Activity 4.24

Instructions: Now look at the short text given below and examine why the writer has decided to use present continuous tense.

Currently, a large number of Ethiopians are expressing their love for their country through different demonstrations that they hold almost all over the country. Now, when I am watching television, one of the channels is showing the zeal of the young and the old to join our army and sacrifice their lives for their beloved country. It is customary to observe an overwhelming number of Ethiopians with strong determinations and courage to die for their country irrespective of their nationality and religion to protect their country from disintegration or fragmentation. Because of the real patriotic feelings I observe these days, I am planning to straightly go to the war front and contribute my share despite the limitations I have had with my health. However, one thing in which I am discomforted is that different channels are disseminating different information about the realities at war front.

The present continuous tense is used in the following situations:

- to describe actions/events that are taking place just at the time of speaking.

Example: We are discussing the uses of present continuous tense now.

- to describe actions or events that are happening in the present time but not necessarily at the time of speaking.

Example: Nowadays, heavy rain is falling almost all over the country evenly.

- To express an action that that is boring or frustrating to the speaker because of its repetitions.

Example: I don't understand why the woman is changing her behaviour now and then.

4.5.3 Using the Indefinite Pronoun “some” and “any”

Activity 4.25

Instructions: Be in pairs, read the short text given below carefully and examine why the indefinite pronouns “some” and “any” are used.

Mintesinot went to the library to search for some books that he wants to use for the purpose of teaching modern grammar yesterday afternoon. Unfortunately, he could not find any. Some of the books that he found on the shelf had been torn out and outdated. When he looked at the list of borrowers, he could not find any reader who has borrowed such books. Can you suggest any reason why these books are not available in the library? Or do you have some pieces of information where such books have gone? He seldom gets any sleep since that time.

Activity 4.26

Instructions: Now, use either some or any in the blank spaces given in the dialogue below

Dureti: Please, would you give me _____ 1 bananas? You have plenty of them?

Kankie: Yes, I would. Haven't you bought _____ 2 before I come back?

Dureti: I was to buy but _____ 3 of them hardly test good.

Kankie: As you have said, _____ 4 of my bananas are not ripe; I am going to put them in a warm place for about two days.

Dureti: Yes, it is a good idea. Do you have _____ 5 more question? I am leaving for work?

Kankie: Please give me _____ 6 more minutes; I don't get _____ 7 happiness without your presence.

Dureti: Oh, sorry. I am in a hurry. Try to enjoy the sport news that will start at 2: 30.

Kankie: This is what _____ 8 one advises me. Tell me something new.

Short Note:

Notice that some is mostly used with affirmative (positive) statements and sometimes in interrogative (question) sentences when positive responses are expected from the listener/reader. We use any in negative sentences and question or interrogative sentences but sometimes we can also use any in affirmative sentences when we intend to convey indefiniteness

Grammar

4.5.4 Clauses of Result

When you want to indicate the result of an action or situation, you can use a clause of result. Clauses of result are introduced by so.... that, such.....that, so, as a result, consequently, therefore, hence, thus, for this/that reason, owing to, due to and the like

Example:

- 1 Ethiopia is so rich in its natural resources (main clause) that investors from different countries want to invest their money into different economic activities. (result clause)
- 2 Ethiopia is such a rich country in its natural resources (main clause) that different countries want to invest their money into different economic activities. (result clause)
- 3 Gurara is rich enough to build a new villa in Buta jirra. (phrase of result)

Activity 4.27

Instructions: Be in small groups, identify the clauses of result, work out their meanings and finally write the rules that enable you to use “so” and “such” correctly in different clauses of result.

The Siemen Mountains Park

Siemen mountain is such evergreen scenery that the flow of tourists is increasing alarmingly from time to time. As I read from literature and watch on television, the park is a habitat for so many endemic wild animals that not only tourists but also zoologists from many countries visit it repeatedly. Nevertheless, there are serious problems that hinder the flow of tourists to the park. To begin, the government has given so little attention to building modern roads that driving on the hilly side of the park is still terrible and tiresome for tourists. In addition, the farmers around the park have such a small piece of arable land that they have been forced to settle inside the park with their domestic animals. This kind of human interference is so dangerous that the resources in the park can substantially reduce both in quality and quantity. Of course, as I hear from different individuals who have affiliation with the park, currently the local government is so conscious of the danger that settler__ centered solutions are being sought to conserve and protect the park from possible extinction threats.

Short Note

Note that so is followed by either an adjective or an adverb and such is by adjective a + singular countable noun or such+ adjective+ plural countable noun. In addition, notice that the adjectives many, much, little + noun are preceded by so not such Example: We have so many problems with regard to security that everyone is vigilant in keeping their surroundings.

Grammar

Consider also the exceptional uses:

Example: Netsanet is so careful a girl that she does not face any harm.

Example: The tourist has not seen such a beauty that he decided to come back to Ethiopia after few months.

Activity 4.28

Instructions: insert either “so” or “such” in the spaces given in each of the following clauses.

1. ___pleased was Amdie that he was dancing the whole night.
2. My friend has ___ many books that we always do our assignments at his house.
3. Girma is _____ a far-sighted person that he has never been exposed to serious problems in his life.
4. Tigist treated the tourist _____ politely that he has given her an expensive gift when he leaves the country.
5. Ayele is ___ a hard working student that he wins the organization’s reward every year.
6. The woman is _____ stingy that she does not spend her money even to fulfill her basic needs.
7. Wondu has never seen ___ outstanding a student that he has decided to award him his expensive watch.
8. It has been ___ a rainy season that I have bought a thick jacket.
9. The police officer has never seen ___ honesty that he has disseminated the story of Tarikua on different media.
10. The film was ___ interesting that everyone was talking about the characters on their way to home.

4.6 Writing

4.6.1 Report Writing

Essentially, a report is a piece of writing which presents an account of different activities or events that took place in the past to a particular audience. Most reports contain a description of sequence of events or situations observed in a given setting. When you plan to write a report, consider the following basic requirements:

1. Decide the purpose of your report whether it is to give information, entertain others or give education
2. Identify and write out the most essential ideas that you want to include in different paragraphs of the report, for example, the major events or activities observed, especially unforgettable experiences, the major challenges that have had negative effects when the activities were being accomplished, the remedial measures that should be taken, etc.
3. Arrange the relevant pieces of information you have collected according to their degree of relevance
4. Write your report freely. Get down ideas on the sheet of paper as they have come to your mind without thinking of the errors you are likely to make.
5. Take time. If possible days. Then come back to it, sit down and edit your first draft focusing on the subject matter, the flow of ideas, the language use and mechanics
6. Consider the editing you have made and write your report clearly and carefully.
7. If you can, review it once again or if you have a closest person who can give you feedback, give it to him/her and take them into account when you write the final version

Activity 4.29

Instructions: Read the sample report given here below, analyze the most essential ideas discussed and write your own report about the place you have visited for the first time.

It was at the dawn of last Saturday. We all students from grade ten, section A, came together in the school compound to pay a visit to Bonora Waterfalls. It is one of the tourist attraction sites located in Sidama Region in Bensa Woreda to the eastern direction of Daye town. It is one of the spectacular gifted areas that most people prefer to visit it especially on weekends. Before we had begun our journey, we discussed the precautions we should take during our journey. After we reached an agreement, we elected our leader and kept on our journey together with our guide. On our way to the falls are evergreen trees, birds of different varieties and a number of wild animals that grabbed our attention amazingly.

The journey took us about an hour. We did not like to use any sort of transportation due to the fact that we may not watch different natural beauties and appreciate if we sit into a vehicle. Moreover, we all had the belief that when we walk on foot, we will use the opportunity as a physical exercise that would contribute to our health improvement. Though the journey was long and tiresome, we all did not feel any sort of hunger or exhaustions as everyone was surprised by the beauty of the location and the jocks that some of our friends were making. Of course, there were few students who have been taking rest now and then especially in the middle of our journey. Most of us, however, were motivating and pleasing them to proceed the journey.

When we reached the place where the falls give special beauty, we all unbelievably forgot where we were. When the twin falls reach the ground, the special sound they create and the bubbles they form not only refresh one's mind but also make someone as if she/he were in another world. Our guide was telling us the place where the falls begin, the length they travel and the reason why it is named "Bonora Falls". No one was listening to him as every one's attention was drawn by the special sound that the falls produce along with the song of different birds in the area. Watching the falls and their surroundings, taking photographs and getting shower around the bank continued for about two hours. After observing the satisfaction of each visitor, our representative clapped his hands and asked us whether we were hungry or not. Most of us expressed that we were in need of taking our lunch. Accordingly, the lunch that was prepared in a hotel was opened, soft drinks were distributed and then everyone ate their lunch up to their fill. At this time, what all of us could not forget was that everyone was wrapping the injera with wat with their fingers and putting it into the mouth of a friend. This means, there was no one who was eating the food with her/his own hands. This is one of the ways we Ethiopians express our love to others. After the lunch time is over, we took a short break and then our guide told us to start our journey since the sky was dark to shower heavy rain. Accordingly, we all tied up our shoes, looked at the falls with greedy eyes and departed.

Writing

4.6.2 Punctuations

I. using apostrophe (')

Activity 4.30

Instructions: Read the short dialogue given below and supply an apostrophe either before or after “s” individually

Gadissa: Have you seen Ayants book?

Dechassa: No, I haven't. This is not hers. It is Belete and Ayeles.

Gadissa: Ok, where are these students bags?

Dechassa: Here they are but I have not seen those childrens.

Gadissa: This is Fikadu and Kebede book that they own in common.

NB: discuss how to use apostrophe in writing with your partner and write down short notes by referring to different books..

II. Using quotation mark(“ ”)

Activity 4.31

Instructions: Read the short text given below and supply a quotation mark appropriately where necessary.

Mr. Dingamo said, our cooperation is the best tool to come out of the existing challenges we have currently faced in our country. In his further inspiring speech, he emphasized, as we learn from history, Ethiopia may bow down for the time being but has never been defeated by its enemies. If you listen to his full speech entitled, nothing is more important than Ethiopia, your eyes will be filled up with tears.

NB: discuss how to use quotation mark in writing with your partner.

Unit 5. Honey Processing

Unit Objectives

Upon the completion of this lesson, you will be able to

1. Look at the pictures drawn here below, examine the work divisions among bees and describe how they make honey.

NB: Please don't forget to support visually impaired students by describing the picture orally.

2. The following words have been used in the listening passage. Discuss their meaning with your partner based on your background experience or using a dictionary: adulterate, proboscis, nectar, foraging, honey-comb.

Fig 12. Henoy Making Process.

Activity 5.2

Instructions: Now, listen to the passage that your teacher is going to read to you or the audio tape-recorded script and answer the following questions by writing true or false. Give supportive evidence for each answer.

1. _____ There are better sweeteners than honey in economically developed countries.
2. _____ The amount of water in all types of honey is equal.
3. _____ Bees suck up the nectar using their proboscis.
4. _____ When bees chew the nectar, they produce enzyme that changes the chemical property of the honey.
5. _____ Bees spread the honey on the honey-comb to increase its sweetness.

Activity 5.3

Instructions: Do a small research in pairs, for example, by interviewing individuals concerned and write a short text that explains the status of Ethiopian farmers honey production and write recommendations that help to improve the practice.

5.2 Speaking

5.2.1 Practising Pronouncing vowels and Diphthongs

Activity 5.4

Instructions: Identify the word which has consisted of the sound in square bracket from the alternatives given in the parentheses.

1. Which word has [i] sound? (height/meat)
2. Which one of the words has [ə] sound? (about/ salary)
3. Which one of the following words has [æ] sound ?(lactose/father)
4. Which word has [oi] sound ?(destroy/oil)
5. Which word has [ʌ] sound? (cover/cotton)

5.2.2 Describing Processes

When you describe a process, you can use expressions such as: first, second, having done this, the next step is, then, don't forget, it is important to.

For more clarity, look at a short description about the process you follow in describing how “datt’a” is prepared.

I. Describing the Process of Datt'a Preparation

“Datt’a” is a well-known spicy type of food which is very hot and finely tapering pepper of special pungency that is mostly used to add flavor to other main foods such as chunk of raw meat or roasted meat especially among Wolaita community. Nowadays, it is a type of food which is highly loved not only by the Wolaita community but also by other people all over the country. Any person who has a chance to visit Wolaita Soddo town, the first thing she/he wants to buy and take home is this food. Nowadays, it is being exported even to foreign countries for Ethiopians who are living there. The process of its preparations begins by picking up the chilies that have not yet well ripened. The second step is to mix them with other spices like garlic and cardamom. Having done this, mostly the women, put it on a traditionally carved flat stone mill and grind it with a small oval shape piece of stone by moving it up and down. After it is well ground and changed into smooth dough, it will be taken off from the stone and put into a container. When the family needs to eat meat, they mix it with each chunk and eat it together or sometimes they eat it in the same way with inset (bread made up of false banana), kita (flat bread) or injera (thin and flat bread made up of teff, sorghum or maize)

II. Describing the Process of Honey Making

Activity 5.5

Instructions: Be in a group of four and roleplay as a queen, a drone and worker bees and describe your role in the process of making honey.

5.3 Reading: The Importance of Honey

Activity 5.6

Instructions: Before you read the passage, discuss the questions given here below being into a group of four.

1. How often honey is included into the diet you eat in your family? Why?
2. Do you remember any occasion that you have relieved from different health-related problems and got improvement after eating honey?
3. List down the benefits of honey to human health from what you have heard from others or you have read

Activity 5.7

Instructions: Individually, read the passage given below silently and answer the questions that follow it by choosing the correct answer among the possible alternatives given based on the information contained in it.

The importance of Honey

1. Albert Einstein once said, “The day bees vanish from earth... man will go not long after”. In addition to their contributions in adjusting the environment to human beings, the sweetest product that they produce, honey, has nutritional, cosmetic, therapeutic, and industrial values. It is one of the most appreciated, valued and utilized natural sweetening products introduced to humankind since ancient times. It has been approved as a balanced diet and equally popular for males and females in all ages. The main composition of honey is carbohydrates that contribute 95–97% of its dry weight. Furthermore, honey includes main compounds, such as proteins, vitamins, amino acids, minerals and organic acids. Pure honey also consists of fructose and glucose which are the most important sugars of honey and contribute to its most nutritional and physical effects. One of its surprising properties of honey is that it does not need refrigeration as it can never spoils and thus it can be stored in closed containers at room temperature in a dry place. It is used not only as a nutritional product but also as an alternative treatment for clinical conditions ranging from wound healing to cancer treatment. Nowadays, information on the usage of honey for the cure of many human diseases can be found in magazines, journals and leaflets.

2. Few of its benefits in the area of human health are discussed as follows: Honey has an absorbing property and speeds up the growth of tissue; as a result, wounds heal faster and rids of its stench. The other use of honey is to stop or control burns and inflammation of the eye. Inflammation has the main key role in developing chronic diseases including cancer, cardiovascular diseases, diabetes, and arthritis diseases which possess a huge challenge for treatment. With massively compelling evidence of the role played by nutritional modulation in preventing inflammation-related diseases, honey is a natural and functional food with its therapeutic and preventive actions.
3. Honey can also facilitate digestion by stimulating the secretion of gastric juice. It is particularly effective as laxative because it eases the bowels. It helps as remedy for gastritis and gastric ulcers by reducing hyperacidity. It can save patients from heartburn and belching. It can get rid of winds and improves appetite. Studies have proved that honey has observable and measurable effect on the heart. As it has much easily assimilated glucose. The muscles of the heart work continuously and need glucose in order to make up the energy expended. People with colds are advised to take honey with warm milk or lemon. It causes the patient to sweat a great deal and relieves her/him of pain. It also helps in treating a runny nose, get rid of sputum and soothing a cough.

4. The other medical use of honey is its application as a cure for kidney. It speeds up urination and gives relief when there is a problem to piss. People suffering from exhaustion and headache are advised to drink a glass of water in which honey and lemon juice are mixed. It also helps in improving memory and sharpening wits. Studies conducted on the health benefits of honey inform us that those people, who regularly add honey to their food, generate different amazing ideas and are propeller thinkers. Modern experiments and observations reveal that there is every reason to consider honey as a remedy. It owes its curative properties mainly to the glucose it contains. Dentists have no doubts about the harmful effects of sugar on the teeth. It has been established that the remains of sugar in the mouth break down under the effect of bacteria to form an acid. As a result, the teeth become affected with carries. Honey, on the other hand, reacts against the harmful bacteria due to its antibiotic properties and disinfects them and makes both the teeth and mouth healthy. Furthermore, research has confirmed that children like honey better than sugar. Therefore, parents should try their best to include honey as a major item in their children's diet.

5.4.1 Word Formation: Blending and Clipping

Instructions: Find out the clipped words from the blended words given at the left hand side in the table below using a dictionary.

	Blended Word	Clipped Word
1	advertisement	ad
2	alligator
3	examination
4	gasoline
5	gymnasium
6	influenza
7	laboratory
8	mathematics
9	telephone
10	refrigerator
11	university
12	professor

Activity 5.10

Instructions: Refer to any book that discusses word formation in English, define what word blending and clipping are and then write as many of such words as you can. Finally, write your own sentences using each of them. The first one is done as an example for you.

Example: The word “advertisement” is a blended form and “ad” is clipped

The advertisement or ad that I watched last night on television motivated me to buy the new television.

Short Note:

Blended words are formed when two or more words are combined and one of them, usually the suffix is detachable and can give a full meaning while clipped words are short forms taken from the compound word or phrase without changing its original meaning

5.4.2 Phrasal Verbs

Having a good deal of knowledge about phrasal verbs, as discussed in each preceding unit, is very essential to make your communication more successful than ever before. In this unit also you are going to practise phrasal verbs such as get together, get up, give away, give in, give out, give up, go about, go after, go ahead, go along with

Activity 5.11

Instructions: Look up the meaning of each phrasal verb listed above and practise using them in your own meaningful sentences.

Activity 5.12

Instructions: Read the short text given below and work out the contextual meanings of the phrasal verbs written in bold.

Students in some schools are used to celebrating a get together party when they meet in the school for the new academic year. On the day they celebrate this event, most students get up from their bed early in the morning since they want to prepare themselves properly for the celebration. In some schools, the management bodies have not been encouraging such celebrations as they have the belief that this type of celebration may not include those students from economically weak families. They are of the view that such students may not have money to contribute for the successful undertakings of the event. Nowadays, however, since almost all school managements have come to recognize it as an important culture that has lots of positive contributions in enhancing the cooperative skills of the students, they are giving in and even in some schools they are supporting them materially and financially to motivate students go ahead with the tradition.

5.5 Grammar

5.5.1 Simple Present Active and Passive Sentences

Activity 5.13

Instructions: Look at the underlined passive verbs in the text given below and work out how simple present tense passive voices are used and write the patterns of the verbs being in pairs

Creativity is producing something new, relevant and useful to the person or people who created the product within their own social context. Creativity can also be used to propose new solutions to problems in different contexts, communities or countries. An example of this is the improvements achieved in the areas of different technological innovations that have made significant contributions in changing the lives of people. Some people are heard that creativity is a gift only to certain individuals. However, subsequent studies show that those individuals who have created new things and changed the world are not necessarily with special gifts. They have created new things and solved the problem of people as they have already been seriously engaged into an activity which has its own goal and mission and always have been struggling to solve problems that hover around them. This means, creativity mainly has to do with strength, patience and goal-oriented efforts. People begin to create when their brain is occupied with different questions that need investigations and answers. If we examine different improvements that are made on different areas of human advancement, all of them are connected with human inquisitive mind. Imagine that people could arrive at the present stage of development due to their nail-biting struggles which have been carried out for ages.

Note on Passive Voice

In passive sentences, the subject becomes object and the object becomes subject. This voice is used when the writer or the speaker has more interest in the object of the sentence. Most teachers in schools, colleges or universities do not like passive voice on students' writing with the view that it is incapable of giving strong and clear meaning to the reader. As a result, they often advise students to frequently use active voice in producing a variety of academic pieces of work unless situations force them. Nevertheless, describing processes, analyzing different ideas or events needs the use of passive voice though still limiting the frequency is important.

Simple present passive voice is formed with the object of the sentence, auxiliary verbs in verb to be form (am/is/are + past participle) form of the main verb.

Example:

- 1 The president (subject) always makes inspiring speech (object) to the meeting participants. (active voice)
- 2 An inspiring speech is always made to the meeting participants by the president. (passive voice)
- 3 The students (subject) always write their homework (object) in this room. (active)
- 4 Their homework is always written in this room (passive voice)

Activity 5.14

Instructions: One of the uses of the passive voice is to describe different processes. Now, look at how the process of Ethiopian coffee making is described in the paragraph given below and then describe the processes of making any sort of Ethiopian traditional dish or drink in small groups

Ethiopian traditional coffee is appreciated and adored by many foreigners. They admire not only the flavour of the coffee but also the process involved in making it. To prepare the coffee and celebrate the ceremony, passing through the following process is common almost within all Ethiopian cultures. First, any unwanted impurities are removed and the neat coffee beans are separated off. These beans are washed with both hands until the covering of each bean is removed repeatedly. Having done this, they are put on a flat iron plate and roasted on a charcoal stove or traditional oven until the colour of the beans turn to dark brown. Then, the pan is taken off from the stove and put on the ground. In the meantime, water is added into a clay pot and put on the stove or oven. While the water is boiling, the roasted beans are pounded until they are converted into soft flour. Then the powder of the coffee is added to the coffee pot and boils until the right fragrance comes out from the pot. Finally, the coffee pot is taken off and kept on the ground until the impurities decant. Before the coffee is served, it is common to spread green grass around the coffee table, smoke incense and roast popcorn. Finally, the coffee is poured into cups and served.

Grammar

I. Passive Voice with Modal Auxiliary Verbs

When you convert active sentences with modal verbs (can/may/might/should/has (have) to/ had to/ ought to/ used to/ need to) to passive form, the structure of the sentence is object form of the sentence+ modal verb+ “be”+ past participle (verb3)

Example

- A. You may take this medicine before meal (active)
 B. This medicine may be taken before meal. (passive)
- A. We should finish this chapter before the exam.(active)
 B. This chapter should be finished before the exam.(passive)
- A. We must eat balanced diet to live healthily (active)
 B: Balanced diet must be eaten to live healthily. (passive) Or
 To live healthily, balanced diet must be eaten.

Activity 5.15

Instructions: Convert the following sentences into passive form, discuss your answers with your partner and your teacher will tell you the final answer.

1. People speak English everywhere in the world.
2. I have not seen such type of a lion so far.
3. You ought to take photographs before you leave.
4. Our father does not let us watch films.
5. We had better do our homework before we leave for playing.
6. Students need to carry information into their cell phone.
7. Neither of the children draws this picture.
8. Experiments prove scientific discoveries.
9. The smoke fills the room every morning.

10 The students have been reading their notes in the library for an hour.

5.5.2 Subject-verb Agreement

Activity 5.16

Instructions: Read the short text given below and examine how the subject has agreed with each verb and finally state different rules being in a group of four.

Cooperation is one of the skills important for the twenty-first century success in life. Either your activities in schools or interactions in your family needs cooperation and working collectively. Everyone in this world has their own limitations and thus each limitation is covered by someone else who has affiliation with him or her. One of the examples we can cite as an example is group or pair work that students undergo in learning different lessons in schools or universities. Working in groups, together with personal effort, has always been proved that it is excellent way of learning anything new. Not only cooperation but also creativity and flexibility are other skills that are essentially required to keep oneself abreast of the time. Here what should be capitalized is that not simply the creative skills of a person, her/his flexibility in learning from others and improving oneself from time to time is of great importance. The other worth mentioning point is that if you decide to develop these skills, it is important to do small scale pieces of research and commit yourself to the goal you have already set. In this case courage and determination not to give up hope plays a significant role in taking you to the world of success.

Short Notes

1. Subjects and verbs must agree in number. If the subject is singular, the verb must be singular and the vice versa.

Example

- A. One of the employees expressed her satisfaction with her job. She is currently in a managerial role at the organization.
 - B. Two of the employees expressed their satisfaction with their jobs. They are currently in a managerial role at the organization.
2. The expressions "one of", "either of", "neither of", etc., are often followed by a plural countable noun and singular verb but when there is a relative pronoun (who/that/whom...) the verb agrees with noun that precedes the relative word (antecedent)

Example

- C. One of the pressing problems of the day is sustaining the unity of the country.
 - D. One of the problems which ring in the mind of most Ethiopians these days are sustaining the unity of the country.
3. When two subjects are compounded by "together with", "along with", "as well as", "in addition", "including", "with"), the verb usually agrees with the first subject

Example: The prime Minister, together with his military officers has visited the war zone in the north east part of the country.

4. When a compound subject contains both a singular and a plural noun or pronoun joined by “either-or” or “neither-nor”, the verb should agree with the part of the subject that is closer to the verb.

Example

- A. Either the children or their father has not yet arrived home.
- B. Neither their father nor the children have yet arrived home.
5. Words before prepositions determine the verb, that is, to use either singular or plural verb

Example: The titles in this book are written in question form.

6. Non-count nouns often take singular verb but when they are preceded by phrasal quantifiers such as a piece of, an item of, a slice of, a bar of, the verb agrees with them

Example

- A. The slices of bread have been on the dining table.
- B. The items of information you have collected from non-trustworthy media are dangerous in disturbing the people.

Activity 5.17

Instructions: Underline the correct verb from the alternatives given in parentheses to complete each sentence.

1. A ream of duplicating paper and a tube of ink _____ (cost/costs) four-hundred Ethiopian Birr.
2. A pair of green socks _____ (is hanging/are hanging) from the back of the car.

Grammar

3. Either the meat on the table or the eggs in the basket _____ (smell /smells) fresh.

5. The director, together with some of the teachers, _____ (are/is) visiting the staff member admitted to a hospital.
6. All students, except Sophia, _____ (do not take/does not take) alcohol.
7. Quite unfortunately, fifty percent of these materials _____ (come/comes) from China.
8. The number of questions that he would set _____ (need to/needs) to be limited to ten.
9. Neither of your opinions (are/is) reasonable to change our attitude towards the reconciliation.
10. None of the direction lights of my car _____ (has/required have required) maintenance.

5.5.3 Using “do” and “make”

Sometimes it is difficult to use the verbs “do” and “make” with the correct noun for most of our students. The only thing you should do is to study the list of words that are followed by both verbs and use them in your different communication settings correctly when/where they are necessary.

Activity 5.18

Instructions: Put either “ make ” or “do” before the nouns given here below. Example: do your best, business, the cleaning, a course and make an occasion, arrangement, attempt, change, comment

- | | |
|-----------------|-----------------|
| ——1. occasion | ——11. attempt |
| ——2. impression | ——12. gesture |
| ——3. effort | ——13. business |
| ——4. comment | ——14. damage |
| ——5. offer | ——15. noise |
| ——6. gardening | ——16. progress |
| ——7. demand | ——17. degree |
| ——8. duty | ——18. .homework |
| ——9. a course | ——19. .movement |

5.6 Writing

5.6.1 Writing a Topic Sentence for a paragraph

Now, hopefully you have clear idea about a topic sentence. It is a sentence which carries the main idea of the whole paragraph. It can be placed at the beginning, in the middle or at the end of a paragraph. For beginner writers, however, it is advisable to put it initially for it guides them as to how they add sentences that provide supportive details. When you write a topic sentence to your paragraph, first think the main idea that you want to convey to your audience then write it in such a way that it draws the attention of the reader to further read the paragraph. Note that once if you are able to write a good topic sentence, it is not that much difficult to add up many more sentences that give further information about the title.

For further clarity, look at the topic sentence in the following paragraph.

Haile Gebresilassie

Haile Gebresilassie is one of Ethiopia's most famous long distance runners. Many people call him the best long distance runner ever. He was born in 1973 in Assela, Arsi Zone, Oromia Regional State, Ethiopia. He had to turn to 10kms to and from school every morning and even now he runs with his left arm bent as if holding school books. He was one of the ten children and his father wanted Haile to be a farmer but when he was thirteen, he competed in his first race. By the 1990s, he was taking part in international races. His achievements are great. He has broken 26 world records both indoors and out, won two Olympic 10,000 meters gold medals and four world outdoor and three indoor 10,000 meters titles. He moved to road running in the latter part of his career. In September 2008, at the age of 35, he won the Berlin Marathon with a world record time of 2:03:59, breaking his own world record by 27 seconds. Haile is so famous that he starred as himself in an American film called “Endurance”. He loves running and hopes he can continue running or jogging all his life.

Activity 5.19

Instructions: Read the paragraphs given below and write out a clear topic sentence to each of them

 However, it is an overwhelming defeat and humiliation for Italians' Army. On the first day of March, 124 years ago, traditional warriors, farmers and pastoralists and women defeated a well-armed Italian army in the northern town of Adwa in Ethiopia. The town of Adwa is located in Northern Tigray, closer to the southern border of Eritrea. The battle between Ethiopia and Italy took place in the mountainous terrain of the area. The outcome of this battle ensured Ethiopia's independence, making it the only African country never to be colonized. Adwa turned Ethiopia into a symbol of freedom for black people globally. It also led to a change of government in Italy. Adwa still stands as witness to what ordinary Africans can do when they come together as farmers, pastoralists, women and rural people, workers and artists.

. The common ones are lorries, pack animals, buses, cars, trains and airplanes. Farmers transport produces to urban people by donkeys or horses and they also buy goods from towns and take to their destination using these animals. Of course, these days, since modern roads have been built in several part of the country, people use cars as meanses of transportation. Transport promotes trade and contributes to the healthy economic growth. Ethiopia's means of transportation are not only limited to the ground it also uses air and sea transport to export and import different goods which are important for different purposes.

. Catherine Ndreba's success is also very surprising to many of the sport loving community. She started running at school where she had to train before and after class. After leaving school, she joined the prison service, which allowed her to continue training and running races and it was there that she met her husband. She began her international career in 1995 and the following year won eight out of her thirteen international races. In 1997, took time off to have a baby but she has been running ever since and has achieved even greater international success. In 2000 and 2011, she won both the Boston and the Chicago Marathons and set a new world Marathon record. In the 2004 Olympics, she won a silver medal and in the world championships she won gold in 2003 and silver two years later. Ndreba says she owes much of her success to her husband who has supported her throughout the career and has taken much of the responsibility for looking after their children.

5.6.2 Dictation

Listening to a text from spoken sources and trying to copy down as they are is one of the writing skills that you need to develop. When you develop your skill of listening to the spoken source and writing it into sheets of paper, you also improve your skills of pronunciation, word memory, spelling, hand writing and mechanics side by side.

Activity 5.20

Instructions: Listen to your teacher when she/he reads to you the passage entitled “How Do Bees Make Honey” loudly and write down each word and sentence with correct spelling, capitalization and punctuation marks

Unit 6. Migration

Unit Objectives

Upon the completion of this unit, you will be able to

- ✓ listen to expository text from a spoken source and extract specific information
- ✓ examine the existing realities in the country (Ethiopia) in particular and Africa in general in connection to migration and reflect the possible solutions that mitigate the plight
- ✓ use the words you learnt from the listening passage into your everyday communication
- ✓ pronounce the vowels and the diphthongs [æ], [ɜ] [ə], [j] , [ei] and [ai]in different words correctly and make their communication clear
- ✓ talk about the root causes of migration and its negative effects with particular reference to the Ethiopian context
- ✓ read, infer, analyze and evaluate different information discussed in the passage/literature they read
- ✓ familiarize yourselves with the selected words from the passage and use them in expressing yourselves when/where the situation require them
- ✓ practise how to form different compound words with hyphens and prepositions and use them correctly into your written texts

- ✔ apply phrasal verbs that are attached to the verb “go” and use them into your both spoken and written communication
- ✔ familiarize yourself with clauses of purpose and use them in constructing correct sentences
- ✔ summarize a longer text following the guidelines discussed
- ✔ interpret the data on different graphs and share information with others
- ✔ acquaint yourselves with the spelling rules of “-ei” and “-ie” and pluralization with “-ies”

2. Have you heard or read any story that narrates about the hardships Ethiopian migrants undergo especially in the Middle East countries? What measures do you think can convert this worst scenario into past history.

Activity 6.2

Instructions: Listen to the audio record that your teacher will tune to you carefully and fill in the blank spaces in the following passage with the correct word or phrase.

1. According to Human Rights Watch report (2018), Ethiopians, who are undertaking the perilous journey by boat across the Red Sea or Gulf of Aden, encounter exploitation and torture in Yemen by a network of trafficking groups. They also bump up on with abusive prison conditions in Saudi Arabia before being forcibly deported back to Addis Ababa. Authorities in Ethiopia, Yemen, and Saudi Arabia have taken few measures to curb the violence the migrants face or to reduce abuses perpetrated by their own security forces. “Many Ethiopians who hoped for a better life in Saudi Arabia face unspeakable dangers along the journey, including death at sea, torture, and all manners of abuses,” said Felix Horne, senior Africa researcher at Human Rights Watch. According to the interview the above organization conducted with humanitarian workers and diplomats working on Ethiopians’ migration-related issues, about _____ 1 an average of 10,000 per month, were deported from Saudi Arabia to Ethiopia between May 2017 and March 2019 and the deportation has continued up to the present despite the worst life still they lead in their own country.

Listening:

2. As the data from the interview indicate eleven of the interviewees out of twelve confirmed that those migrants who had been deported to Ethiopia were found engaging themselves into _____ 2 such as smuggling and trafficking networks that are regionally linked across Ethiopia, Djibouti, Somalia’s semi-autonomous Puntland state, the self-declared autonomous state of Somaliland, Yemen, and Saudi Arabia. Traffickers outside of Ethiopia, particularly in Yemen, often use violence or threats to put the migrants’ family members or their contacts into stressful situations. In his further explanation, one of the respondents said, “There were one hundred-eighty people on the boat, but twenty-five died. The boat was in trouble and the waves were hitting it. It was overloaded and about to sink so the broker picked some out and threw them into the sea.”
3. Those who had arrived in Yemen, as the interviewees explain, almost all Ethiopian migrants were captured by traffickers. They were physically assaulted and were compelled _____ 3 from family members or contacts in Ethiopia or Somalia. In many cases, the relatives of the captives _____ 4 to obtain the ransom money. After paying the traffickers or escaping, the migrants eventually made their way north to the Saudi-Yemen border, crossing in rural and mountainous areas. At this time, the Saudi border guards fired at them, _____5 others crossing at the same time and that they saw dead bodies along the crossing routes.

Activity 6.3

Instructions: Be in a group of five, read the question given below very carefully, collect the necessary information from individuals concerned in the form of interview or questionnaire and then report your answer to the whole class.

Ethiopia is naturally an endowed country with its enormous resources that can even be used by other African countries. Contrary to this fact, a lot of citizens decide to migrate to different countries, especially to the Middle East countries experience a number of hardships and lose their lives. What corrective measures do you think can reduce this irritating situation?

6.2 Speaking

6.2.1 Pronunciation

I. Practising Pronouncing Vowels: [æ], [ɜ] [ə], [j] and diphthongs [ei] and [ai]

Activity 6.4

Instructions: Listen to your teacher or the video your teacher will tune in to you when the vowels given above are pronounced in each word given below. Then refer to your dictionary and add more words of your own with the vowels and the diphthongs given above.

[ə] as in action [ækʃən], after [æftə], animal [ænəml]	[ai] as in time [taim],life [laif], wife [waif]

II. Talking about Causes and Effects

If there is a cause, it is always common to expect the effect. For example, if there is migration, there are challenges the emigrants face though the degree varies from country to country or context to context. In speaking or writing, when we talk about cause and effect relationships, it is inevitable to use the sentence connectors such as: because, , since, as, owing to, due to ,therefore, so, is caused by, due to, the cause of is, as a consequence, as a result, consequently, thus, hence and the like.

6.3 Reading: Migration in Ethiopia

Instructions: Here below is a passage. Before reading the passage, discuss the questions given below in a think-pair and share mode.

1. A number of economists have been witnessing that Ethiopia is a country with rich natural resources that have not yet been utilized for a number of reasons. Contrary to the above fact, the number of Ethiopian irregular migrants is growing from time to time alarmingly. We also hear that they have been facing different challenges that go up to losing their lives. As students, what possible solutions do you suggest to change the existing controversial scenario?

2. Do you think that all graduates from universities should be employed in governmental organizations? Why?

Fig. 16: The journey of emigrants to Saudi Arabia, Yemen and South Africa.

Activity 6.7

Instructions: Read the passage below carefully and individually and then answer the questions that come next to it in full sentences

1. There is consensus on the urgency and importance of addressing the root causes of migration at global level in general and in the context of Ethiopia in particular. In this regard, though economic and political violence, ecological degradations, drought, and human right abuses have their own contributions in expanding the number of Ethiopian migrants, lack of decent livelihood and employment opportunities are identified as the main driving forces. Mainly due to difficulties to make livelihood here in the country, thousands of Ethiopians have taken migration as the last solution over the past decade. They travel by boat over the Red Sea and then by land through Yemen to Saudi Arabia and neighboring Gulf states. These are favored destinations because of the availability of employment. Studies show that most of the emigrants travel irregularly and do not have legal status when they reach Saudi Arabia. Because of this, most of them are treated inhumanly and sometimes even they are killed brutally. When they are prone to such attack and mistreatment, it is not only they who suffer the consequence but also the country loses its respect and integration. The government of Ethiopia imposed a ban on migration to the Middle East in 2013. The law, however, has not helped the government reduce the problem. Rather, it has increased the number of migrants using irregular means to cross borders. For instance, in January 2016 alone, the number of total migrants from east Africa reaching Yemen was around 10,000, of which 75% were Ethiopians.

2. Over the past decade, youth employment in Ethiopia has showed significant progress. However, ensuring full productive employment poses a challenge in both rural and urban areas for the approximately three million young Ethiopians entering the labour force every year due to different constraints that hamper the economic progress of the country. As a result, the number of Ethiopians who move to capital cities in the country and other urban areas in search of job opportunities is growing from time to time alarmingly. After they enter cities, they often participate in the informal economic activities, which serve as a stepping stone for migration outside of the country. Although the exact number of Ethiopians who have migrated overseas is not known due to the absence of a centralized registration system, there is evidence that an overwhelming number of them migrate to the Gulf countries, Europe and South Africa seeking employment through irregular migration channels.

3. Despite the economic progress achieved in the last decade, there has not been sufficient and adequate job creation and placement for the young people. While access to education has increased over the past years, ironically the number of unemployed educated youth has also increased at an unprecedented rate. Evidences show that an incontestable number of the young, including those graduated from universities with degrees, rarely have been engaged in decent job and thus are seen in doing pieces of work that are not compatible with their professional knowledge or do jobs that do not have relationship with the professions in which they have been certified after completing their education at universities. Reports show that job scarcity in the country has also resulted in other severe problem on the economy of the country. Due to their desperation in getting decent jobs here in the country, a large number of youths have chosen to engage themselves in the illegal economic activities such as smuggling or contraband. Over and above, they are seen working with limited social protections that are subjected to poor working conditions. The situation is even more severe for women, who cannot find decent work opportunities and are most often concentrated in the informal sector.

Reading: Migration in Ethiopia

4. Evidences tell us that 71% of the population in the country is under the age of thirty, which is regarded as a productive force significantly capable of building strong economy in the country. Everyone witnesses that the country is surprisingly endowed with immense natural resources sufficient not only for its citizens but also for others. If this size of population is supported to create its own jobs or both governmental and non-governmental organizations expand economic sectors that could provide the young with different job opportunities, the risk of huge number of migrants that prefer to immigrate to other countries irregularly through undocumented channels in search of a better livelihood, decreases substantially. We understand from literature that those countries which do not have half of Ethiopia's natural resources, have achieved huge economic progress. Thus, how, when and by whom should this puzzle be solved?

1. According to the information in the passage, what are the most pressing problems that force Ethiopians to immigrate to other countries irregularly?

2. How does illegal immigration affect the pride of our country? _____

3. What is the relationship between those Ethiopians who involve in illegal economic activities and immigrate to other countries illegally?

4. Do you think that the expansion of education, especially higher education in our country, has helped the graduates get their livelihood? Why?

6.6 Writing

6.6.1 Revision: Summary Writing

You remember that we have discussed what a summary writing is and the main guidelines that help you write a good summary in this textbook in the preceding units. Now, let us continue writing a summary as it is an important study skill that you should well master to succeed in your academic endeavours.

Summary is a piece of writing that talks about the main idea of the original text as shortly as possible. In writing a good summary, it is important to follow the guiding principles listed here below:

- It should be in the form of a paragraph.
- It begins with an introductory sentence that states the most essential ideas of the writer.
- Do not try to include every idea in the original text
- Understand the main idea in each paragraph and rewrite it briefly in your own words
- Make sure that one-third of the original text is a good summary
- Do not insert any of your own opinions, interpretations, deductions or comments into it.
- Write a last sentence that “wraps” up or concludes your summary

Activity 6.17

Instructions: Read the original text given below and its summary and then summarize the next text accordingly

The Original Text

Skills Required for the 21st Century

The twenty-first century skills have been developed for the 21st century education system. They are widely used in every aspect of human activities such as learning, teaching, business, farming, sport, etc. In this globally and digitally interconnected world, all learners from cradle to career need these skills and knowledge to succeed. If students want to prepare themselves for success in school, work and life, they need to essentially develop these skills as they are more important for them now than ever before. They not only provide a framework for successful learning in the classroom but also ensure readiness and competence in a world where change is constant and learning never stops. The 21st century is not in the distant future; it is today. Students, who are the building blocks of their country in the future, do not have a moment to lose in preparing themselves to compete and succeed in every aspect of life. Though some researchers list twelve skills that people need for the 21st century, the most important ones are communication, collaboration, critical thinking and creativity.

Communication refers to student's ability to share information while expressing their thoughts and opinions clearly to others. It requires strong listening and evaluation skills to make interactions and clarity of the message effective. Nowadays, however educated you are or diligent enough to do your academic activities, it is unthinkable to achieve your goal unless your communicative skills are strong and up to the required standard. When your communicative skills are strong, fast and of the required standard, your academic competence shows progress from day to day, month to month and year to year. Communication can be carried out orally, in writing or paralinguistically.

The other essential skill is collaboration. It is the practice of working together to achieve a common goal. Virtually, every job requires someone to work with another person at some point even if it is for something as simple as what to get for lunch. Practicing collaboration helps students understand how to address a problem, pitch solutions, and decide the best course of action. It is also helpful for them to learn that other people do not always have the same idea in doing the same work. Hence, working with others collaboratively helps them to learn from others and thus they will be ready to apply another way if they find the first one less applicable. If students practice collaboration more and more, they share what they have for others and take also from others and fill in their gaps. In fact, when they work collaboratively, they may face different challenges that retard their progress. The point that should be capitalized here is that challenges by themselves are schools in which a variety of solutions to problems are learnt. We all know that the more we are challenged, the better we think and look for solutions. Therefore, it is always important to appreciate challenges that appear due to collaborative activities and benefit the lessons that they provide in the course of solving a problem.

Critical thinking is the practice of analyzing, evaluating, measuring and interpreting a given idea or theory from different angles with sound reasons and coming up with convincing conclusions. Different people attempt to solve problems in different ways but those people who critically think and pass decisions, solve them in a better way. Students need this skill to always ask why and how before accepting any idea or theory. When they do this, they become self-assertive and reasonable who do not disseminate informed opinions to others. It is because of this scholars say that critical thinking is the practice of thinking outside the box. The understanding is that if you are a critical thinker, you do not shout when others shout. You do not throw stones at buildings when others are doing it. You do not hate others when others fill you with hate speech. Instead, you always take time, analyze situations, evaluate the pros and cons and come up with final decisions. Now, are you ready to become a critical thinker? The other skill that students need in this century is creativity. There is an old platitude which goes as “Necessity is the mother of invention”. We are always living with problems though the degree varies from context to context. However, when people are creative, every problem has its own solution and the solution can make life simpler and simpler for others. Do you observe the human progresses made around computer, media, clothing, housing, etc.? Do you think that all the progress we observe are free from creativity? The answer is no. The cell-phone that you are currently using may not be used after few years because human needs are dynamic. So, creative minds innovate better cellphones and provide you. Make sure that if there are questions that are going on in your brain, creativity has already started. It is a matter of time. In this regard, do not you appreciate our illiterate mothers and fathers, who have never gone to school but created different farming implements, cultivated the land through their own creativity and supply different food items to their family and others? Do not you appreciate the process that they pass through in making different delicious traditional dishes and drinks that they serve us ? Hence, students, are you ready to create and solve one of the problems troubling you and others?

Writing

The Summarized Version

The 21st century skills are one of the crucial components in the educational system across the world. The belief is that unless students have developed these skills, it is difficult for them to succeed both in schools and tomorrow in world of work. The most essential skills are collaboration, communication, collaboration, critical thinking and creativity. Communication refers to the skill to get and share accurate and relevant information that speed up learning. Collaboration is a skill we need to work with others to share experiences and bridge the gaps with one another. Critical thinking is a skill that enables to examine ideas from different angles reasonably before reaching a decision. Creativity is a skill that leads people to innovate new procedures or objects that make life simple and comfortable. Thus, you as a student, should always work day and night to achieve them.

Writing

Causes and Solutions to Reduce Academic Dishonesty

Many pieces of research have been conducted on the causes and effects of cheating on examinations, tests, essays and assignments whether at primary, secondary or higher learning institutions level. In their findings, they list the major factors for cheating as: stress, failure to attend classes properly, difficulty to understand the lessons taught in the class, laziness to study lessons on time, lack of commitment to tackle academic challenges, less interest to work collaboratively with peers, pressure and stress revolving around exams and grades, lack of confidence and study skills.

As findings confirm, those students who cheat on tests, essays, or assignments find themselves facing repercussions such as failure, suspension, expulsion, and notoriousness. If a student succeeds at cheating once, he/she is likely to repeat the task perhaps in the next environment. She/he does not attempt to critically think and work hard to achieve her/his goal. She/he is often seen fail to see path beyond failure and create strategies that enable her/him to deal with anxiety and pressure in the interim. The other worst thing of all other negative side effect is that if cheating is the inherent behaviour of a student, she/he does not attempt to genuinely work and bring about progress in the other contexts of life. For such students, intelligence is to deceive or cheat and behave as if they were abled and efficient. Because of this, they are always suspicious to trust others since they themselves have already experienced success through cheating.

Writing

Academic dishonesty has been around since time immemorial and is a problem with seemingly no solution in sight. However, as students, make sure that those students who allow you to cheat are murderers and you are a diseased. Make sure that the moment you decide to cheat on examinations, you have decided to distort your life and accept failure. Notice that cheating is thinking with someone's mind and this is the beginning of losing your human integrity. You have been provided with brain that functions equally with that of the student from whom you copy answers on examinations. The difference is the preparation you make, your commitment to think actively and critically, your effort to solve problems and develop confidence.

The first important quality to achieve success is honesty. To this effect, you should first be honest to yourself. When you are honest to yourself, you develop one of the essential personal qualities that gives you high social value in any community. Cheating may temporarily bring success to you but its effect always disturbs your mind and makes you restless. When this happens, your health is affected and sometimes it can take you to protracted diseases. Be certain that you begin to build your country the moment you have started to believe in honesty and fidelity. If you are a cheat at school, no reason to immerse yourself into corruption and other harmful activities that are detrimental to your country when you join the world of work. So, are you now ready to fight cheating as a student of Grade Ten?

6.6.2 Interpreting Graphs

- A graph is a diagram that consists of statistical data or information in number. If you do a small scale research, for example, entitled, “The Causes of Late Coming to School”, you collect the data from different student-respondents, analyze them and present the results either in the form of a table or graph.
- When you explain the data given in a graph, you can use the sentence starters such as: The number of late comers increases/decreases, rises, grows, the pattern I notice in the graph is..... The difference betweenand is, A probable reason for this is..... As we observe on the graph, the number of late comers.....declines; fluctuates, gently, gradually, slightly, steadily; suddenly, sharply, dramatically.

4. The firm is economical in using consumables.
5. My tenure in the university changed my attitude.
6. Would you like to continue with your education?

Activity 7.6

Instructions: Now, look up two words for each vowel sound given below from a dictionary and pronounce them loudly to your neighbour and vice versa.

1. [æ], _____
2. [ə], _____
3. [j], _____

Activity 7.7

Instructions: Match the diphthongs listed under column A with their appropriate examples under column B. Then, practice pronouncing the examples with your partner.

Column A		Column B
1	/aɪ/	a.	bound, house
2	/eɪ/	b.	pair, lair, chair
3	/əʊ/	c.	cry, my, like, bright, lime
4	/aʊ/	d.	bake , rain, lay, eight, break
5	/eə/	e.	go, oh, slow, loan, though
6	[ɔɪ]	f.	sure, january
7	[uə]	g.	boy, voice, enjoy
8	[iə]	h.	hear, here, appear

Summary on Consonants and Vowels

A. Vowels

Consonant sounds are mostly articulated via closure or obstruction in the vocal tract; however, vowel sounds are produced with a relatively free flow of air, and they are all typically voiced. To describe vowel sounds, we consider the way in which the tongue influences the shape through which the airflow must pass. To talk about a place of articulation, we think of the space inside the mouth as having a front versus a back and a high versus a low area.

B. Diphthongs

We regularly create sounds that consist of a combination of two vowel sounds, in addition to single vowel sounds. These are known as diphthongs and are of course, symbolized by the combination of their elements. When we produce diphthongs, our vocal organs move from one vocalic position [a] to another [ɪ] as we produce the sound [aɪ], as in Hi or Bye.

C. Pronouncing the Diphthongs: [eɪ] and [aɪ]

- When a day goes, months and years may come eventually.
- Goodbye, see you at eight o'clock.

7.2.2 Revision: Expressing Opinions through Agreement and Disagreement

Activity 7.8

Instructions: The dialogue below is between two students, Abebe and Met'elo. Read it carefully and write an appropriate opinion that shows agreement or disagreement in the blank spaces.

Abebe: As far as I am concerned, war is always a backward approach to solving a problem.

Met'elo: In my opinion, _____.

Abebe: What do you think of the ever lighting victory Ethiopia achieved over the Italian Army?

Met'elo: As I see, _____.

Abebe: That is an interesting point but I am of the opinion that though we fought courageously and defeated the Italians' troops, we have never defeated poverty so we are still under the influence of the developed countries.

Met'elo: Yes, of course. I agree with you but sometimes I think that the patriotic achievements should not be limited only to defeating war but also conquering hunger and famine.

Abebe: _____.

Met'elo: I agree with you but from my point of view, if people first achieve their freedom, the sacrifice that they pay for economic .progress is not beyond control.

Abebe: _____.

Metselo: Neither do I.

Abebe: I am busy with my assignments. Let us stop our discussion here and meet next time.

Metselo: _____.

Activity 7.9

Instruction: Be in pairs, think of any title that requires different opinions either through agreement or disagreement. For example, “giving priority to indigenous knowledge is a means to fast development in all aspects of human life” and then exchange your opinions being in pairs

Stating and asking for an opinion

Try to use some of the language to ask for and give opinions. Choose any topic such as: marriage, the dangers of the internet for children, the government should interfere in market price, COVID-19 is a curse from God.

Example

A: What do you think about marriage?

B: I don't think it's comfortable for everyone. There are people who do not want to get married throughout their life due to their own reasons. In addition, even if there are people who want to get married, the cost of wedding is this days skyrocketing.

A: Well, I agree with you but don't forget that it is a foundation to build a society. In my view, the cost for wedding can be determined by the agreement to be made by the two parties.

B: Sorry to interrupt. As I see it, marriage leads to divorce when the couple don't study each other carefully before the marriage takes place.

Instructions: When you give opinions, try to use the expressions given in the table below.

Stating an opinion	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • In my opinion... • The way I see it... • If you want my honest opinion.... • According to Aziza... • As far as I'm concerned... • If you ask me...
Asking for an opinion	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • What's your idea? • What are your thoughts on all of these? • How do you feel about that? • Do you have anything to say about this? • What do you think? • Do you agree? • Wouldn't you say?

Agreeing and Disagreeing

When you want to indicate that you agree with someone or something, the simplest way is to say 'yes'. People often say something further, especially in more formal discussions. The following table contains list of expressions we use to state agreement. By the same token, rather than simply expressing complete disagreement, people usually try to disagree politely using expressions which soften the contradictory opinion they are giving. 'I don't think so' and 'Not really' are the commonest of these sayings. The table below contains additional expressions we use to show our disagreement.

Expressing agreement	Exactly.
	That's an interesting point, isn't it?
	I agree with you 100 percent.
	It was really good, wasn't it, Berhanu?
	I couldn't agree with you more.
	That's so true.
	That's for sure.
	That's right.
You're absolutely right.
Expressing disagreement	I don't think so.
	Not really.
	(strong) No way.
	Actually, no.
	I'm afraid I disagree.
	I don't know about that.
	(strong) I totally disagree.
	I beg to differ.
	Yes, but.....
	(strong) I'd say the exact opposite.

Activity 7.10

Instructions: In pairs, express your agreement on the following topic using the expressions of agreement from the above table.

Topic: 1. Foreign aids do not necessarily solve the problem of developing countries.

2. Social media should be censored by the government .

Revision: Giving Suggestions/Advice

I. Giving Suggestions

There are many ways of suggesting a course of action to someone.

Study the following examples carefully.

Using What about/How about + “-ing” Form and Let.

Danite: Today, we do not have class; let us visit the new zoo.

Gelebo: What about going to the library this afternoon?

Kereta: I am feeling wretched; let us play football.

Denboba: How about the meeting we have been called by the Charity Club?

Demeke: Let us discuss how we can help the helpless people in our village.

Fozia: That is the wonderful idea. Where shall we sit?

Instructions: Be in pairs and let one of you give suggestion and the other agree or disagree to them in full sentences as in the examples given above.

Using Could to give suggestions

We can use “could” to give suggestions.

Examples

A. You want to buy the new book but you don't have money.

Suggestion: you could talk to your friend and ask him to lend you some money.

B. You cannot talk to your friend on cellphone.

Suggestion: you could talk to him on fixed telephone.

Activity 7.11

Instructions: In pairs/small groups, make as many suggestions as you can using the expressions above.

II. Giving Advice with Should, Ought to and had better

There are many ways of giving advice to someone. In English, we use the modal verbs should, ought to and had better to express that we think something is a good (or a bad idea). Should is the most common way to give advice.

III. Giving advice with WHY + Negative or What If

- A. Why don't we go to the farm tomorrow?
- B. Why don't the children eat their lunch before they leave for picnic?
- C. Why don't you read this book on friendship instead of getting advice from others?
- D. What if some of us discuss this lesson in groups?

Activity 7.12

Instructions: In pairs/small groups, give as many pieces of advice as you can by using the expressions should, ought to and had better.

Example:

Mikreab: Hey Tolkaso, do you mind if I ask you for some advice?

Tefera : Of course not. Please go ahead.

Mikreab: I'm thinking about buying a new shirt. What kind of shirt should I buy?

Tefera: Hmm... good question Mikreab. you had better buy Ethiopian brand?

Mikreab: I have thought to buy an Italian model, but I have changed my idea to buy the made in Ethiopia brand.

Tefera: oh, that sounds better; you ought to buy the Hawassa Industrial product.

Mikreab: Thank you indeed, I'll buy it.

Describing places, people and objects

Activity 7.13

Instructions: In pairs, talk about the following pictures using the vocabularies mentioned below.

Adjectives to express likes of a person or a place	attractive, beautiful, calm, charming, enchanting, fascinating, fresh, homey, inspiring, peaceful, vibrant, magical, majestic, contemporary, modern, ancient, quite, traditional, exciting, huge, popular
Expressing dislikes of a person or a place	boring, ugly, senseless, crowded, deserted, dull, expensive, horrifying, terrible, stormy, shanty, and etc.

Fig. 21: Ethiopian Lady with traditional costume and Adwa

1. An Ethiopian Lady making traditional coffee being in her traditional costume.
2. The historical chain of Mount Adwa where Ethiopians fought with the Italian troops, achieved victory and declared the equality of all human race for the first time.

Describing Things

Activity 7.14

Instructions: Read the description given below carefully and then describe any other house furniture in your house in the same way and then speak about it to the whole class.

A. kitchen platform

This is a kitchen platform. Above it, there is a small cupboard in which there are kettle and pans. On the platform, there is a gas-stove as well as a microwave unit. Near the microwave, there is a sink with water-taps. Below the kitchen platform, there are a number of cupboards to keep big and small dishes, pots, etc.

Fig. 22: kitchen platform

B. My cell-phone

1. My cell-phone is the latest model, which is not only a phone,
2. It is a device for storing all essential information, such as
 - a telephone directory,
 - financial transactions, addresses, etc.
3. I can use it for sending and receiving messages.
4. My cell phone provides immense entertainment to me.
5. I have stored in it all my favorite songs.
6. It has a powerful camera in it, and a device to attach it to my computer.
7. I use my cell-phone to keep record of
 - my financial transactions,
 - bank-account numbers,
 - and all essential information, such as my C.V., postal addresses, etc.
8. My cell-phone is constantly with me, wherever I go.
9. There is a device in it to remind me of my appointments, train timings, etc.

C. Ethiopian Airlines

1. Can you describe about the following picture of Ethiopian airline?
2. Do you like it? Why?

Fig 24. Ethiopian Airlines

The Ethiopian Airlines is one of our assets what the country contributes to the world. It is the symbol of Ethiopians which contains three coloured flag, Green, yellow, and red. It is by far Africa’s leading airline and is twice the size of number-two. It has grown faster than the rest of Africa’s top-10 put together. Ethiopian currently serves 121 international destinations (64 in Africa) across 5 continents with over 270 daily departures. If travelling within Ethiopia, there are substantial discounts offered for domestic flights when international flights to/from Addis Ababa are flown with Ethiopian Airlines. Using the Ethiopian Mobile Booking App, our guests can now book, pay, check-in and download boarding cards to their phone.

Ethiopian Airlines is a highly-coordinated hub carrier that uses its well-positioned Addis Ababa hub to target growing and increasingly important markets. It mainly focuses on connecting the Middle East, Asia, Europe, and North America with East, South, Central, and West Africa, along with connecting other countries.

Due to these all contributions, the Ethiopian Airlines has been crowned as the ‘Best African Airline’ at the 2021 Business Travelers Awards.

7.3 Reading

7.3.1 Part I: Ethiopia Through Writers' Eyes

Activity 7.15

Instructions: Before you read the passage given below, discuss the following questions in small groups.

1. Do you know the old boundary of Ethiopia?
2. What do you understand when the Great books, Holy Bible and Kuran say about Shem, Kush, Ham, Aethiopia, and Ityopis?

Activity 7.16

Instructions: The series of reading paragraphs is taken from the magazine known as “Selamta” published at different times. Read the views of the writers and answer the questions that follow.

1. “Today, we may be sure Ethiopia is a country in northeast Africa, but the country’s borders have not always been so well defined. In the past, Ethiopia, depending on the whims and knowledge of writers and geographers, was at times made up of all of sub-Saharan Africa - with a coastline that wandered from the Red Sea to the Atlantic Ocean - or was solely the area circumscribed between the northern reach of Egypt’s desert and the confluence of the Blue Nile and Atbara Rivers. The Greek Bible had the spawn of Shem, Kush and Ham go and multiply in Egypt and Aethiopia - a tale later reprised in a legend that has Axum’s capital founded by none other than Ityopis, son of Kush.”

Source: Ethiopian Airlines, Selamta (Yves-Marie Stranger)

Reading

2. “Some of the inhabitants of that part of the coast which is without water go inland every five days, accompanied by all their families, with songs and rejoicings, to the watering places, where, throwing themselves on their faces, they drink as beasts until their stomachs are distended like a drum. They then return again to the sea-coast. They dwell in caves or cabins, with roofs consisting of beams and rafters made of the bones and spines of whales, and covered with branches of the olive tree. The Chelonophagi [Turtle-eaters] live under the cover of shells (of turtles), which are large enough to be used as boats. Some make of the sea-weed, which is thrown up in large quantities, lofty and hill-like heaps, which are hollowed out, and underneath which they live. They cast out the dead, which are carried away by the tide, as food for fish.”

Source: Selamta: Strabo’s Geographica, written circa 7 BC and, published in its first ‘modern’ edition in 1469.

3. “We went to the King’s stronghold and climbed a high building, a stately edifice which ranks among the most wonderful of wonderful buildings and among the most beautiful of exceptional wonders, constructed of stone and lime. And there is in that town, indeed in the whole of Abyssinia, no other but it (as it is of very pleasing appearance and handsome design), because all other dwellings in these localities are only nests of grass. . . .

Source: Ethiopian Airlines, Selamta, Hasan Ben Ahmed El Haimi, na Yemeni Embassy to Gondar in the year 1648.

4. “Last year, I returned to Ethiopia for only the second time in 13 years. I did it in careful stages, spending a day getting re-acquainted with Gondar, its unpaved back roads and crumbling castles, and a couple in Lalibela, where, hiring a guide, I began to encounter a country both foreign to me, and, in a visceral way, completely familiar.

Source: Selamta, Aida Edemariam's writing in The Guardian, Sept. 1, 2007

5. The day I left Lalibela dawned clear and sunny, and by 10 a.m. I was being driven in a 4x4 into the towering mountain escarpments that ring the town by Mekedim. We were coming to the end of the small rains, but the stony terraced fields were dry. . . At a seemingly random point Mekedim said, 'Stop: let's walk from here.' Minutes later, we saw why: the ground dropped away into a sudden vista of depth and wonder, jagged cliffs soaring down to valleys hundreds of meters below, to mountains upon mountains piling into the distance. The vast sky was punctuated by the grey shrouds of rain showers. They blew past like visitations, soaked everything and were gone."

Slightly adapted from Selamta magazine May-June 2017 edition

1. What is Aethiopia?
2. Why is Yves-Marie doubtful about Ethiopia's border?
3. According to Strabo, the then dwellers of the coastline lived in _____ and _____.
4. In Strabo's Geographica, why do the people throw their dead in the sea?
5. Hasan Ben Ahmed El Haimi talks about "that town". Which town was he referring to?
6. When did Aida Edemariam first come to Ethiopia?
7. How many days did Aida spend in Gondar?
8. Why did Mekedim advise Aida to walk?

Activity 7.17

Instructions: Discuss the following questions in pairs.

1. Which history of Ethiopia is amazing and inspiring for you? Why?
2. Why do people call Ethiopia “The Land of Origins”?

7.3.2 Part II: Ethiopia’s Heritages Registered by UNESCO

Instructions: Discuss the following questions before you read the articles given below.

1. What are heritages?
2. Mention the Ethiopian heritages registered in UNESCO and describe one of them.
3. Predict what the reading text is about from the illustrations given below.

Harar Jugol

1. The fortified historic town of Harar is located in the eastern part of Ethiopia, 525 km from the capital of Addis Ababa, on a plateau with deep gorges delimited by deserts and savannah.

The walls surrounding this sacred city, considered “the fourth holy city” of Islam, were built between the 13th and 16th centuries and served as a protective barrier. There were five historic gates, which corresponded to the main roads to the town and also served to divide the city into five vicinities, but this division is not functional anymore. The Harar gate, from where the main streets lead to the centre, is of recent construction. Harar Jugol numbers 82 mosques, three of which date from the 10th century, 102 shrines and a number of traditional, Indian and combined townhouses with unique interior designs, which constitute a spectacular part of Harare's cultural heritage.

The Konso Cultural Landscape (Terraces)

2. The Konso Cultural Landscape is characterized by extensive dry stone terraces bearing witness to the persistent human struggle to use and harness the hard, dry and rocky environment. The terraces retain the soil from erosion, collect a maximum of water, discharge the excess, and create terraced fields that are used for agriculture. The terraces are the main features of the Konso landscape and the hills are contoured with the dry stone walls, which at places reach up to 5 meters in height. The walled towns and settlements (paletas) of the Konso Cultural Landscape are located on high plains or hill summits selected for their strategic and defensive advantage. These towns are circled by between one and six rounds of dry stone defensive walls, built of locally available rock. The cultural spaces inside the walled towns, called ‘moras’, retain an important and central role in the life of the Konso.

Activity 7.19

Instructions: Individually, answer the following questions based on the articles you have read above by writing your answers in your exercise book.

1. Explain the ideas of the first paragraph of the passage.
2. When do you think that Harar Jugol city was formed and why it is said to be a sacred city?
3. The Konso Cultural Landscape is characterized by _____
4. What are the benefits of the Konso terraces? _____
5. Why could heritage be an individual, group and national identity? _____

7.4 Vocabulary

Part I:

Activity 7.20

Instructions: The following words are taken from the above reading passage. Match those under column “A” with their contextual meaning under column ” B”.

A		B
1	whims (par 1)	A	interrupted
2	confluence (par 1)	B	landscape
3	spawn (par 1)	C	primitive
4	inhabitants (par 2)	D	throttlehold

7	vista (par 5)	G	offspring
8	punctuate (par 5)	H	flowing together
9	distended (par 2)	I	ideas/notions

Part II:Activity 7.21

Instructions: Look at each of the words given below in paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 4 and then, write their contextual meanings as they are used in the passage.

1. sacred city (par 1) _____
2. fortified (par 1) _____
3. vicinities (par 1) _____
4. shrines (par 1) _____
5. spectacular (par 2) _____
6. retain (par 2) _____
7. summits (par 2) _____
8. contoured (par 2) _____

7.4.1 Word Formation: Prefixes and suffixes

Prefixes and suffixes are common in English and their correct use can help enhance the language skills and deal with unknown vocabulary easily.

I. What is Prefix?

A prefix is part of a word that is added at the beginning of the root word to form a new word. A prefix does not have any meaning of its own but when added to a root word it modifies the meaning of the word. Prefix makes a word negative, indicate opinion or show repetition.

Vocabulary

Study the following examples:

- 1 un- (prefix) + happy (root word) = unhappy (new word)
- 2 dis- (prefix) + organized (root word) = disorganised (new word)

 Activity 7.22

Instructions: Write the new word by adding the correct prefix from the list below. You can use one prefix more than once. The first one is done for you.
bi-, de-, pre-, un-, im-, kilo-, out-, mis-, re-

No.	Root word	New Word	No	Root word	New Word
1	moral	immoral	7	design
2	write		8	wise
3	weigh		9	necessary
4	classify		10	polar
5	management		11	annual
6	expected		12	fix

II. What are Suffixes?

Like prefixes, suffixes are also parts of words that are added to the root word to form a new word but suffixes are added at the end of the root word. Suffix does change the meaning of the word it is added to but not make the word opposite or negative like prefix do, it simply changes the class of the root word like a verb is changed into an adjective by adding a suffix.

Study the following examples

- 1 Forget (root word) + Ful (Suffix) = Forgetful (New word)
- 2 Happy (root word) + Ness (Suffix) = Happiness (New word)

Activity 7.23

Instructions: Write a new word by adding the correct suffix from the list below. You can use one suffix more than once. The first one is done for you.

-ship, -ment, -less, -fully, -er, -tion, -ness

No.	Root word	New Word
1	joy	joyfully
2	tall
3	happy
4	manage
5	kind
6	slow
7	mercy
8	inform
9	leader
10	mad
11	beautiful
12	care

7.4.2 Revision : Using Phrasal Verbs in Communications

Meaning and Use

- Phrasal verbs are common, especially in spoken English and in informal writing. They are often used to replace a more formal verb.

Study the following example:

- 1 Please complete this form. → Please fill in this form.

In the above example, 'fill in' is a phrasal verb which has a similar meaning to the word 'complete'.

Vocabulary

Form

- Prepositions (e.g. at, up, in) are added to verbs (e.g. go, get) to make phrasal verbs (e.g. go up, get at, get in) which have meanings of their own. These meanings are often very different to the meanings of the original verbs.
- Phrasal verbs can take the same range of tenses as other verbs.

Look at the following examples:

- 1 They are putting up the aerial.
- 2 She'll put on goggles later.
- 3 Ali put off the job until later.

- There are three groups of phrasal verbs.

Phrasal verbs with no object	Phrasal verbs with objects in end-position	Phrasal verbs with objects in mid or end-position
They sat down. (on a chair) Look out! (There's a car.) They dropped in. (for a chat)	He looked after the video. She searched for the radio. I looked forward to a break.	She put down the phone. She put the phone down. He tidied up the mess. He tidied the mess up.

- Pronouns (e.g. it, us, her, them) used as the object of the verb can only be used in mid-position with phrasal verbs in group 3.

7.5 Grammar

7.5.1 Conditional Sentences

Conditional sentences are made up of two clauses: if clause and main (result) clause. Sometimes the word if can be replaced with the phrases such as: provided that, on condition that, so long as and the like. They can express probable, improbable and impossible conditions. Of course, sometimes they can convey truths or facts.

- General truths -for things that are always true(zero conditional)

Present simple	if	Present simple
Water freezes		you heat it below zero.
You can't be promoted		you don't score above 50 percent in your exam.

- Possible & probable conditions -for things that are very likely to happen.

Present simple	if	Present simple
We'll catch the bus		we hurry.
The doctor won't see you		you don't have an appointment.

- Possible but improbable conditions -for things which might happen, but probably won't.

Would + V1	if	Past simple
I'd live in my own house		I had enough money. (but that's not likely to happen)
She'd be more relaxed		she didn't work so hard. (but she always works too hard)

- Impossible conditions - for situations which are in the past and therefore no longer possible

Note: The if clause can be in first or second position.

Would have + past participle (V3)		Past perfect
I'd (would) have gone to the meeting	if	I had heard about it in time. It's now too late.
You'd have got better marks		You had spent more time revising.

Note:

The if clause and the main clause can exchange their positions without creating any meaning change

For example: If we understand each other, we will reduce our life challenges.

Or: We will reduce our life challenges if we understand each other.

Summary of conditional sentences

Hello students, as we have discussed so far, there are four most common types of conditional sentences in English:

1. Type 0 conditional sentence
2. Type 1 conditional sentence
3. Type 2 conditional sentence
4. Type 3 conditional sentence

Hence go through the following table and you can develop your conditional sentences English language competencies.

CONDITIONAL SENTENCES TYPES	Meaning	STRUCTURE	EXAMPLES
Type 0	Whenever this happens, that always happens	Condition clause + result clause Condition clause (Simple present tense) = If + subject + V1 Result clause (Simple present tense) = subject + v1	1. If you freeze water, it becomes solid. 2. When I am upset, I don't talk to anyone.
Type 1	If this happens, that will happen	Condition clause + Result clause Condition clause (Simple present tense) = If + subject + V1 Result clause (Simple Future tense) = subject + will + v1	1. If you don't study hard, you will fail the test. 2. If you see him perform live, you will become his fan.

Type 2	If this was true for the present, something would happen	Condition clause) + (Result clause) Condition clause 1 = If + subject + V2 or Condition clause 2 = If + subject + were + subject complement Result clause = subject + would + v1	1. If I were you, I would take the offer. 2. If she weren't married, I would propose to her.
Type 3	If something was untrue (had not happened) in the past, something else would have happened in the past	(Condition clause) + (Result clause) Condition clause = If + subject + had + past participle (V3) Result clause = subject + would + have + past participle (V3)	1. If I had not abused my boss that day, he would not have fired me. 2. They would have killed Aman if the police hadn't reached there on time.

Activity 7.25

Instructions: Complete the following sentences using the correct form of the verb given in parentheses.

1. If I were you, I _____ (find) a new job.

7.5.2 Direct and Reported Speech

Human being has an ability to communicate within himself and with others using language entities. The communication a person does within himself is called intra-communication. However, when there is communication in between or among other persons, it is called inter-communication. When people communicate either in spoken or written form, they speak about themselves or others directly or indirectly. The way how the speakers do directly about others is called direct speech and also what make indirectly, which is known as indirect speech.

Rule for Tense Change

Let us understand the direct and indirect speech rules with examples and for all tenses so that you can apply them correctly, without making any mistakes in your daily walks of life.

Rules for converting Direct speech into indirect speech

To change a sentence of direct speech into indirect speech there are various factors that are considered, such as reporting verbs, modals, time, place, pronouns, tenses, etc. In this grade level, for now, the following discussions are focused on Reporting Verb, Pronouns, and Time and Position.

Direct To Indirect Speech Conversion – Reporting

Verb

When the reporting verb of direct speech is in past tense then, all the present tenses are changed to the corresponding past tense in indirect speech.

Direct speech	Indirect speech
Simple present	Simple past
Present continuous	Past continuous
Present perfect	Past perfect
Present perfect continuous	Past perfect continuous
Simple past	Past perfect
Past perfect	No change
Past perfect continuous	No change
Simple future	Future conditional
May	Might
Can	Could

Pronoun in Indirect Speech

On the other hand, there are pronouns in which we use them differently in both direct and indirect speeches. In spite of the tense, to change the direct speech into indirect speech or reverse, the pronoun also needs to change, here are the forms:

Direct speech	Indirect Speech
	Masculine	Feminine	Plural
I	He	She	They
You	He	She	They
You	Him	Her	Them
Your	His	Her	Their
Me	Him	Her	Them
My	His	Her	Their
Myself	Himself	Herself	Themselves
We			They
Us			Them
Our			Their

Example:

Direct Speech: I had lost my hand bag” said Edosa.

Indirect Speech: Edosa said that he had lost his hand bag.

Words Denoting Time and Position

Besides tenses and pronoun, to change the direct into indirect speech or reverse, the words refer to time and position also need to change. The following are the forms:

Direct Speech	Indirect Speech
This	That
These	Those
Now	Then
Ago	Before
Last night	The previous night
Next day	The following day
Today	That day
Tomorrow	The following day
Just	Then

Activity 7.27

Instructions: Be in pairs and discuss the following questions.

1. What is the main difference between direct and indirect (reported) speech?
2. What are the main changes you make when you convert direct speech into reported speech?
3. What is the meaning difference between the following pair of sentences?
 - A. Our English teacher said, “you will have a test tomorrow.”
 - B. Our English teacher said that we would have a test tomorrow.

Study the following sentences:

1. I'm tired of waiting. See you all later. (Direct Speech)
2. Samuel has gone. He said he was tired of waiting.

Grammar

(Reported Speech)

- 3. I can give you a lift at about 7 o'clock. (Direct Speech)
- 4. He said he could give us a lift at about seven. (Reported Speech)

Use

- You use reported speech to tell other people what someone has said, to pass on messages, and so on. You often use tell or say to introduce reported statements.

Form

- When you use reported speech, you usually change the verbs one step back into the past and the pronouns are also changed.

Direct speech	Reported speech
I'm from Sore Mashido.	Thomas said he was from Sore Mashido.
We're waiting outside.	They said they were waiting outside.
I can type that for you.	Yohannes told me he could type it.
My brother's got a new job.	Amina told me her brother had got a new job.
I will bring all the items.	Yared said that he would bring all the items.
I slept all night.	He said he had slept all night.

- You can put the word that in reported statements in written English, but you usually miss out that in spoken English.

Reported speech (written)	Reported speech (spoken)
They told the police that the driver was a woman.	They told the police the driver was a woman.

Activity 7.28

Instructions: Convert the following sentences into reported speech.

1. Jemal said, “I enjoy swimming at the Baro River.”

2. Senait said, “I am reading the short story written by the famous Ethiopian writer.”

3. “We knew your family,” said the boys.

4. John said, “I am English.”

5. She said, “I have never seen a shark in my life.”

6. “I met him two years ago,” the hostess said.

7. She said, “I will be in Jigjiga tomorrow.”

8. “We visited Aksum obelisks last year,” the tourists told my brother.

7.6 Writing7.6.1 Argumentative Essay*Activity 7.29

Instructions: Be in a group of five and discuss the following questions.

1. What is an argumentative essay?

Writing

2. What are the procedures you follow in writing an argumentative essay?
3. What is a premise?
4. What is arguing for and against a premise?

Short Note

- Before you begin to present an argument in writing, make sure you are clear about what your argument is and how you can explain your position.
- To write an effective argumentative essay, one of the requirements expected of you is collecting the necessary data that enable you convince your reader.
- Don't assume that everyone else understands your point of view. Therefore, explain your point of view clearly and in unemotional language.
- Don't show double positions when you argue. Either go for (pro) the premise or against it
- Check any fallacy that may destroy the credibility of your reasoning
- At the end of your presentation, summarize the main points of your argument again.

A premise is a view or opinion held by arguers but subject to different arguments. For example, the premise, “child care at home is the responsibility of female” is an argumentative topic. Some people may say, since females are naturally gifted and responsible to feed breast milk and other important food to their kids, they are the only family members to provide full care to the kid. Contrarily, others say that their male counterparts are also responsible for giving care to kids at home. Their main point of argument is that though the mother is naturally responsible for feeding the child with breast milk, the male also can cook food for her/him, wash her/his bodies and clothes. Note that when you support any premise, you are arguing for and when you present your argument by opposing the premise, you can say that you are going against.

Useful Phrases to explain your opinions in an argumentative writing

- To list points: In the first place, first of all, to start with, in the first place, etc.
- To add more points: what is more, another major reason, also, furthermore, moreover, in addition to, besides, apart from this, not to mention the fact that, etc.
- To introduce conflicting viewpoints: It is argued that, people argue that, opponents of this view say, there are people who oppose, etc.
- To express opinion: I believe, In my opinion, I think, In my view, I strongly believe, etc

NB: Make sure that your essay needs to have introduction where you explain the general background of your point of argument, body, where you give detailed explanations with supportive evidences and conclusion where the most essential points are summarized to make major points of discussions clearer to your reader.

Activity 7.30

Instructions: Read the following brand story on Awramba Community and examine how the writer argued by supporting the equality of females in sharing a job in the house hold of that particular community.

One of the argumentative issues in most Ethiopian culture is sharing house activities equally in the family. We know that most families in Ethiopia are patriarchal or male-led. There is a widely accepted traditional social rule that both males and females have their own job-share at home based on their gender. For example, when your father and mother come back home from any work place, who is the one to enter the kitchen and begin cooking food or serving the cooked food? In many families, including in the educated ones, females themselves do not allow their husbands to enter the kitchen and do something by replacing them. Do you agree or disagree to this social rule? Why? In the essay given below, you find the Awramba community who is pioneer in changing this long established trend surprisingly. Read it carefully and explain your position by agreeing or disagreeing to the premise.

Writing

The Awramba community

1. The Awramba community is a self-sufficient one that follows four principles: respecting equality of women, respecting children’s rights, caring for the elderly and avoiding bad deeds. Later, they also added “Accepting all humans as brothers and sisters” to the list.

2. The community mainly uses weaving as a source of income and has ordinary members and union members. The union members work according to their abilities, sharing different tasks like weaving, farming, attending the elderly, guarding, etc. The profit they make from sales is equally shared among the members at the end of the year regardless of gender, input or capability.

3. Although the community once used to educate each other on a small blackboard under the shade of a tree, now all children are sent to a kindergarten built by the community to memorize the community's values by heart before joining elementary school. Elderly people are also taken care of in a house built for them.
4. Additionally, women are considered to be equal and are not limited to housework, whereas men have the responsibility of helping women with housework. Due to this, the community is a haven especially for divorced and widowed single parents whom in many other villages would have had no choice but to get married again or fall into poverty.

Activity 7.31

Instructions: Individually, fill in the table given below by putting 'X' based on the real experiences in the community where you are living. Having done this, form a group of five, discuss the perception of the community on gender equality and write an essay of four to five paragraphs.

No.	Descriptions	Female	Male
1	buying groceries
2	cleaning home
3	domestic repairing
4	family managing
5	take children from home to school
6	children care giving
7	helping children with homework
8	playing with children

Activity 7.32

Instructions: Study the data in the table given below, discuss them in pairs. And then, write an argumentative essay of three paragraphs on the title “Women have more house-hold responsibilities than Males”.

Atnafu (2005/76-80) measured during his survey the participation of men and women, and of kids and girls, to household and farming chores, through declaration of people.

Unit 8. The Healing Power of Plants

Unit Objectives

At the end of this unit, you will be able to:

- ✓ listen to an expository passage and extract specific information
- ✓ work out the contextual meanings of the words that they learn from the passage and use them in their communication when/where necessary
- ✓ use quantifiers in different sentences correctly in different communication settings
- ✓ read the passage and explain the benefits of different plants in healing different diseases
- ✓ Work out the contextual meanings of words from the passage and use them in their communication where/when necessary
- ✓ Examine data from a graph and explain them into their essays

8.1 Listening

Preventing Communicable Diseases Using Traditional Medicine

Activity 8.1

1. Do you know the names of the plants and spices in the pictures?
2. Do you imagine that in your family and community people use them for medical purposes?
3. Can you mention some of their medicinal values?
4. Apart from curing illnesses, what other values do herbs have?

Fig. 28:

Activity 8.2

Instructions: Now, your teacher is going to read the listening text entitled “Traditional Medicine” two times. When he/she reads the passage, listen to each paragraph very carefully and write the main idea of each paragraph in your own words.

Activity 8.3

Instruction: Listen to the passage that your teacher will read to you entitled “Traditional Medicine”, then answer the following questions saying True or False.

1. Traditional medicine in developing countries is being used by 80% of the population especially in Africa.
2. Many factors contribute to the widespread use of traditional medicine and some of which are accessibility, affordability, faith in the system and desire to have alternative system.
3. Though all plants have their own medical contributions, some plants have better medial values than others. For example "Nech Shinkurt", "erid", "fetto", Kosso, "enkoko", "tana adam", "ades" and others. Those of you whose mother-tounge is not Amharic, write the names of the above medical plants in your own native language then all of you collect information about their medical values from the people you think around you and report to your class.

Activity 8.4

Instructions: Be in groups of four and discuss the following questions.

1. Have you ever taken any sort of traditional medicine for any disease you have caught? Did you face any problem?
2. There is a view that traditional medicines in Ethiopia have not yet got the recognition that they deserve by modern health professionals. Do you agree or disagree? If you agree to the preceding view, what should be done to change this scenario?

8.2 Speaking

Activity 8.5

Instructions: Read the dialogue between Gildi and Saron presented below and express your view by supporting one of them with convincing reason. Do the following discussion with your partner on disease prevention. Please, justify your reasons.

Cures

Geldi: I strongly believe that there will be cures for all diseases in the future if the medical values of most plants is well studied.

Saron: As far as I am concerned, I strongly disagree because the nature of diseases changes from time to time and new disease may also emerge.

Traditional Medicines and their characteristics

Names in Amharic	Habitat	Parts used	Uses

How to Apologize to someone

Apologizing to another person is often difficult because it requires humbling ourselves and admitting that we did something wrong. When you realize that you have damaged a relationship and need to apologize to your friend, you should:

Recognize that what you did was wrong, and take full responsibility.

Examples:

- 1 I must apologize to Mathewos for my late arrival.
- 2 I'd like to apologize for my trouble making.

Somano: I'm afraid, I've spilt ink all over the tablecloth.

Goytom: Oh, never mind about that.

Somano I'm terribly sorry. Won't you let me pay for it?

Goytom: No, I won't hear of it.

Somano: I'm awfully sorry, but I seem to have mislaid your scarf.

Goytom: Oh, don't worry about that.

Here are some expressions that you can use to make and respond to apologies.

A	B
Making apologies:	Accepting apologies:
■ I do apologize for...	■ That's all right.
■ I must apologize for...	■ Never mind.
■ I apologize for...	■ Don't apologize
■ I'd like to apologize for...	■ It doesn't matter.
■ I am so sorry for...	■ Don't worry about it.
■ I shouldn't have...	■ Don't mention it.
■ It's all my fault.	■ That's OK.
■ I'm ashamed of...	■ I quite understand.
■ Please, forgive me for...	■ You couldn't help it.
■ Excuse me for ...	■ Forget about it.
■ I'm terribly sorry for...	■ Don't worry about it.

Activity 8.7

You accidentally stepped on your colleague's mobile phone and damaged it. Apologize, explaining why it happened, and promise that you will be more careful in the future.

A: _____

B: _____

A: _____

B: _____

8.3 Reading: A Traditional Medicine, Moringa Olifera

Moringa Olifera

Fig. 29:

Activity 8.11

Instructions: Discuss the following questions in groups, and report to the class through your representative.

1. What is in the picture about?
2. Of what importance are plants to us?
3. Name some herbals which can be used for both food and medicine..
4. Which medicine do you prefer? The modern or traditional? Why?

Activity 8.12

Instructions: Now, read the passage given below individually and silently and answer the questions that follow it according to the information therein

Moringa Oleifera

1. Moringa Oleifera, what Ethiopians call ‘Shiferaw’, has several health benefits that are one of the reasons why it is named the “Miracle Tree” and the “Tree of Life” in many cultures. People benefit from Moringa Oleifera both in terms of prevention and healing. Moringa Oleifera is nutritious, natural and energizing. The immature pods are the most valued and widely used of all the tree parts. The pods are tremendously nutritious, containing all the essential amino acids along with many vitamins and other nutrients. The immature pod can be eaten raw or prepared like green peas or green beans, while the mature pods are usually fried and possess a peanut-like flavor. The pods also yield 38 – 40% of non-drying, edible oil known as Ben Oil. This oil is clear, sweet and unscented, and never becomes rancid. Overall, Moringa's nutritional value most closely resembles olive oil. The root is used as pickle. The leaves are eaten as greens, in salads, in vegetable curries, as pickles and for seasoning. The Bark can be used for tanning and also yields a coarse fiber. The flowers, which must be cooked, are eaten either mixed with other foods or fried in batter and have been shown to be rich in potassium and calcium.

2. Moringa is considered a complete food as it contains all of the essential Amino Acids required for a healthy body. The dried leaf is a nutritional powerhouse and contains all of the following Amino Acids. A California researcher, Ann Hirsch, PhD said that "One of the things that astonish me most about Moringa is the fact that it has the full complement of the essential amino acids those humans beings need-there are nine of them that we cannot synthesize, so we have to get them from our food."
3. In developing tropical countries, Moringa trees have been used to combat malnutrition, especially among infants and nursing mothers. Three non-governmental organizations in particular – Trees for Life, Church World Service and Educational Concerns for Hunger Organization – advocate Moringa as "natural nutrition for the tropics." Leaves can be eaten fresh, cooked, or stored as dried powder for many months without refrigeration, and without loss of nutritional value.
4. According to Optima of Africa, Ltd., a group that has been working with the tree in Tanzania, "25 grams daily of Moringa Leaf Powder will give a child" the following recommended daily allowances: Protein 42%, Calcium

Reading: A Traditional Medicine, Moringa Olifera

125%, Magnesium 61%, Potassium 41%, Iron 71%, Vitamin A 272%, and Vitamin C 22%. These numbers are particularly astounding; considering this nutrition is available when other food sources may be scarce. Scientific research confirms that these humble leaves are a powerhouse of nutritional value. The Moringa tree has great use medicinally both as preventative and treatment. Much of the evidence is anecdotal as there has been little actual scientific research done to support these claims.

5. Findings of studies made in India, South Africa and other Asian countries which were used as the basis of many news reports on Moringa Olivera as a wonder plant, states that Moringa contains the acute cancer remedy, anti-cancer compounds (phytochemicals) that help stop the growth of cancer cells. Moringa is said to be effective in persistently treating ovarian cancer, among a host of other diseases like arthritis, anemia, heart complications, kidney problems, scurvy, asthma, and digestive disorders (ulcer, gastritis, diarrhea, dysentery). Other areas of folklore which research supports are in cancer treatment/healing, for diabetes relief, healthy skin, nutrition, sleep better, decreased depression and anxiety. Moringa species have long been recognized by folk medicine practitioners/healers as having value in the treatment of tumors. Studies examined certain compounds for their cancer preventive potential.

1. How people benefit from Moringa Oleifera both in terms of prevention and healing from diseases?
2. What are some Ethiopian traditional medicinal plants that serve as nutrients and medicines?
3. How Moringa Olifera is considered a complete food ?

4. List the different parts of Moringa Olifera plants that can be used as nutrition and medicine?
5. What are the three non-governmental organizations advocate Moringa as natural nutrition for the tropics?

Activity 8.13

Instructions: Re-read the above passage once again very carefully and write the main idea in each paragraph, 1-5, in a complete sentence

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____
4. _____
5. _____

8.4 Vocabulary

Activity 8.14

Instructions: Look at each of the words given below in column “A” mentioned in paragraph 1,2, 3, 4, 5 and then, match their contextual meaning with column “B” as they are used in the passage.

A		B
1	tremendously (para 1)	A	pocket money
2	unscented (para 1)	B	continue with the same course of action
3	synthesize (para 2)	C	great in amount, size or degree

10	healers (para 5)	J	fight

8.4.1 Types of Word Formation Processes

Words can be formed in two ways, compounding and backformation.

I. Compounding

In science of language, Linguistics, compounds can be either native or borrowed.

Example: mailman (composed of mail and man); fireplace, fire and place; email, e-mail and so on.

II. Backformation.

Backformation always involves reduction (changing the form of the word).

Examples:

editor = edit, television = televise, babysitter = babysit, mathematics = maths, diplomatic = diplomat

Activity 8.15

Instructions: Divide the following words into small units (morphemes) as example given below

I. Compound words:

1	replaces = re place s,	befriended= be friend ed	psychology= psych ology
2	retroactive= re tro act ive,	televise = tele vise	endearment= en dear ment
3	changeable =	unreconstructed =	mistreatment =
4	previewer =	misleads =	holiday =

II. Backformation

Activity 8.16

Instructions: Fill the missing words of backformation in the blank spaces.

No.	Noun	verb
1	administration
2	recognition
3	registration
4	remedy
5	abduction
6	absorption
7	advisor
8	orientation

8.4.2 Revision: Phrasal Verbs

Short Note:

Phrasal verbs are expressions made up of verbs and prepositions. They are important in both spoken and written English since they give strength to the message. Notice that most phrasal verbs have different shades of meaning. Though studying and understanding each meaning is difficult, you need to study the most frequently used and use them in your verbal communications wherever or whenever the situations require them.

Activity 8.17

Instructions: Using the examples on Phrasal Verbs (1-5), make your own sentences in the following table.

No.	Phrasal Verb	Meaning	Example
1	come about	happen/occur	Can you tell me how the accident come about?
2	aim at	to target.	The magazine is aimed at teenagers.
3	big up	exaggerate the importance.	He bigs himself up all the time.
4	care for	like.	I don't care for alcoholic drinks; I prefer water.
5	carry on	continue.	Carry on quietly with your work until the expected results come.
6	back away	retreat or go backwards.
7	add up	to make a mathematical total.
8	come around	change one's mind
9	come away	become separated from
10	come along	accompany
11	come back	return

Activity 8.18

Instructions: Read each of the sentences given below and write the phrasal verb that substitutes the underlined part by choosing from the lists given in the box.

I have visited both Abbo Wonsho indigeneous forest and Lake Hawassa recently. I have walked around the beach of the lake and enjoyed the different animals swimming on it and the evergreen trees that have clustered it. Though I always hear that Ethiopia has lots of lakes, I have never seen such beautiful and tourist frequented lake which is economically of great resource to several dwellers of the city. As I think, it is because of its popularity, the shore of the lake has been busy since I arrived there. Based on the information I have received from one busy young boy, any person who has ever come to Hawassa City, never goes back to her/his home without visiting this lake. During my visit, however, I have been a bit worried over one thing. Though the lake is one of the wonderful tourist attraction sites, it has not yet been given due attention with regard to its sustainability and neatness. I have observed several people eating different fruits and throwing the unwanted part to the lake. I have enjoyed the beauty and the spectacular scenery of the lake for about two hours taken photographs, written a diary and left the place with an inerasable memory.

short note

Present perfect tense is used when we have to talk about:

4. Do you think that being multilingual advantageous or disadvantageous for multicultural countries like Ethiopia? Mention as many advantages and disadvantages as you can (if any). Exchange answers with your partner.

Cognitive Benefits of being Multilingual

Many languages from one source (Representation of Multilingualism)

Multilingualism has widely recognized social and career benefits. But did you know you can also reap the huge cognitive benefits of being multilingual? It's difficult to know exactly how many people are multilingual, but recent studies estimate that over half the world's population is multilingual to some extent. When a person is multilingual, they reap the social benefits of communicating with a whole new set of people, as well a numerous career benefits of being bilingual.

Reading: Cognitive Benefits of being Multilingual

But there are other significant benefits to speaking more than one language: The cognitive benefits of being multilingual reach further than most people realize. Your memory and learning abilities change over time. Your brain itself even becomes more efficient and actually physically restructures itself.

Read on to discover some of the many cognitive benefits of being multilingual!

1. A better innate understanding of how language works

Because learning a second (or third, or fourth) language brings your attention to the mechanics of the two languages, (including how they differ), multilingual people tend to understand things like grammar, conjugations, and sentence structure better than monolinguals. These people can more quickly pick up on the structure of any language and clearly understand how it can be used.

Multilingual people tend to be more effective communicators, more exact editors, and more compelling writers, because they better understand how languages function, including in their native language.

2. Less mental decline in old age

Many studies have demonstrated that the more cognitive energy that elderly people expend every day, the less cognitive decline

Reading: Cognitive Benefits of Being Multilingual

they experience overall. It turns out that this is especially true when they expend that energy using multiple languages.

In fact, several studies have demonstrated that bilingualism can delay the onset of dementia and Alzheimer's disease by an average of five years! Even better, bilingual patients who do develop Alzheimer's tend to display less decay in cognitive abilities than monolingual patients with even less brain degeneration.

3. A more efficient and better developed executive control system in the brain

When you are multilingual, you constantly switch between languages without thinking about it. Perhaps this is why multilingual people have more efficient and better developed executive control systems. This is the part of the brain that controls your ability to switch your attention and exercise working memory.

A more developed executive control system allows multilingual people to better perform on tasks that require high-level thought, multitasking, and sustained attention. Perhaps this is why multilingual people are often seen as more intelligent than peers with similar innate intelligence, education, and background.

4. Greater cognitive flexibility and problem-solving skills

Because learning a new language requires the brain to learn that the same exact thought can be expressed in multiple ways, multilingual people demonstrate more cognitive flexibility. This makes them more creative when solving problems, as they can more easily perceive situations in different ways and maintain or manipulate these perceptions to suit the task at hand. These people tend to solve complex problems in more creative ways than their monolingual peers, no matter what kind of problem is being solved.

5. Improvements in learning abilities

As mentioned earlier, multilingual people have more developed executive functions. One important executive function is inhibition, the ability to discard irrelevant or unimportant stimuli and focus on the key stimuli. Inhibition is key to learning new information and skills, as it allows you to focus on new information while reducing interference from the information that you already know, as well as similar concepts. Since multilingual people have better-developed inhibition, studies demonstrate that they not only learn a third or fourth language more quickly, but also even develop any learned skill faster.

To sum up, the cognitive benefits of multilingualism can potentially outweigh the massive effort of learning a new language. This is especially true when you find an effective and simple way to develop your linguistic skills.

9.4 Writing: Letters Writing

9.4.1 Writing Informal letter

Informal letters are personal letters that are written to let your friends or family members know about what is going on in your life and to convey your regards. An informal letter is usually written to a family member, a close acquaintance, or a friend. The language used in an informal letter is casual and personal.

Writing: Letters Writing

Keep the following points in mind when writing an informal letter:

- The letter always begins with the sender's address on the top left-hand corner or the right-hand corner.
- Next, write the date below the sender's address on the right or left-hand corner.
- The date is followed by an appropriate salutation such as "Dear ___."
- The letter should include an introduction, body and conclusion.
- Conclude the letter with an appropriate complimentary close such as Best wishes, Love, Lots of love.

A model Informal Letter

Name: Kuma Baysa.

Address: Gununo Sore.

Date: 25/2023

Dear Friend:

How are you? I am very fine here. I want to share the experiences that I had during our summer vacation. Our examinations were too difficult that I was so busy in study; and I really needed to relax. This vacation was a bonus to me as I was able to enjoy as well as learn something new. My grandparents took me on a trip to Gununo for three days and the climate was sunny. It was my first time that I ever visited the oxen market. I had a lot of time of enjoying in having fruits and vegetable in addition to drinking delicious soup. After that, I joined the football training team at Gununo sport club. The training was very interesting and I feel that you will like the football team too. I will share my experiences with you when I come back home. I am waiting to see you my friend.

Hoping to hear from you soon.

Take care.

Yours Lovingly,

Name: Ashango Semu

9.4.2 Writing a Formal Letter

A formal or business letter is a formal way of communicating between two or more parties. This kind of letter can be informational, persuasive, motivational or promotional.

There are three major elements of writing a formal letter. The most important element of writing a good letter is your ability to identify and write to your audience. This means that you need to avoid using technical words that your audience is unlikely to understand. The next element is that you make sure you present your objective in a clear and concise manner. Do not be vague about your objective; most people will not have the patience to sit there and guess at the meaning of your letter, or the time to read a long-winded letter. Thus, just get to the point without going into unnecessary details. The last important element to remember is to remain professional. Even if you are writing a complaint letter, remain polite and well-mannered, simply state the problem(s) along with any other relevant information and be sure to avoid threats and slander.

Elements of a formal letter

A formal letter has six elements as listed below:

1. Heading: It carries the writer's name, address and date.
2. Salutation: Salutation is a greeting you present to your readers. It often starts out with the word 'Dear' followed by colon. Titles of people are often used.
3. Inside address: It carries the receiver's name, address and date.
4. Body: The phrasing should be simple, direct and supported by relevant details taking into account the three elements presented above.
5. Closing: A way of signaling the end of the letter. It usually ends with expressions such as 'Sincerely', 'Sincerely yours' followed by a comma.
6. Signature: The last element which is signed in hand using a pen.

Formats of a formal letter

There are two major kinds of letter writing formats. They are presented as follows:

1. Full block format: All the elements of the letter are placed against the left hand margin.
2. Modified block format: The same as full block format with two exceptions: the date line, closing and signature are placed on the right hand margin.

Activity 9.10

Instructions Using the above information on formats of formal letters, write the following two activities. Then, peer editing strategy before submitting to your English language teacher.

Note: Do not forget to put all the elements in their correct places accordingly with the format that you have just chosen.

1. Write an application letter to the Director of an agricultural company for the post of an agricultural supervisor.
2. Write a letter to the Police Commissioner complaining about the noise at night in a hotel in your neighborhood.

4. What would you do if you _____?

9.5.2 Articles: Definite and Indefinite

An article is a word used to modify a noun, which is a person, place, object, or idea. Technically, an article is an adjective, which is any word that modifies a noun. Usually adjectives modify nouns through description, but articles are used instead to point out or refer to nouns. There are two different types of articles that we use in writing and conversation to point out or refer to a noun or group of nouns: definite and indefinite articles.

Definite Article

Let's begin by looking at the definite article. This article is the word 'the', and it refers directly to a specific noun or groups of nouns. For example:

- the freckles on my face
- the frog in the pond
- the breakfast, burisame-chukame on my plate

Each noun or group of nouns being referred to - in these cases freckles, frog, and the breakfast, burisame-chukame - is direct and specific.

Indefinite Articles

Indefinite articles are the words 'a' and 'an.' Each of these articles is used to refer to a noun, but the noun being referred to is not a specific person, place, object, or idea. It can be any noun from a group of nouns. For example:

- a Bajaj from the garage
- an event in history

In each case, the noun is not specific. The Bajaj could be any Bajaj available for purchase, and the event could be any event in the history of the world.

Article Usage with Examples

The article choice depends on the sound at the beginning of the noun that is being modified. There is a quick and easy way to remember this.

If the noun that begins next to the article begins with a vowel sound, the appropriate indefinite article to use is 'an'. A vowel sound is a sound that is created by any vowel in the English language: 'a', 'e', 'i', 'o', 'u', and sometimes 'y' if it makes an 'e' or 'i' sound.

For example:

- an elephant in the zoo (this noun begins with 'e,' which is a vowel)
- an Ethiopian woman in the picture (this noun begins with 'e,' which is also a vowel)

Grammar

If the noun that comes after the article begins with a consonant sound, the appropriate indefinite article to use is 'a'. A consonant sound is a sound that comes from the letters that are not the vowels in the English language.

For example:

- a cow in the field (the noun the article modifies begins with 'c,' which is a consonant)
- a tree at the school compound (the noun the article modifies begins with 't,' which is also a consonant)

I. Students, look at these sentences.

1. I have English book.
2. I want you to give me red pen.
3. Look at board now.

II. The above sentences can be re-written correctly as:

1. I have an English book.
2. I want you to give me a red pen.
3. Look at the board now.

The bolded words added before each noun in the above sentences are called articles. Articles are normally used before nouns. They point out the nouns being talked about.

The article 'a' means one. It is used with nouns that begin with consonant sounds. The article 'an' also means one. The article 'an' is used with nouns that begin with vowel sounds. However, there are exceptions. Look at the following examples:

a European, a uniform, a union, a one-eyed person an heir, an honorarium, an honest person, an hour

The article 'the' is used before singular, plural, countable or uncountable noun. Note that there are also expressions that are always preceded by the article ‘the’.

the teacher, the teachers, the milk, the Sahara Desert, the Awash River, the earth, the old(old men/old women), the guitar, the piano, the first, the second, the last, largest, the smallest

Activity 9.14

Instructions: Use a, an, or the where necessary in the text given below.

I see _____ (1) man with long moustache in the picture. _____ (2) man was once a police officer. I saw him this afternoon for _____ (3)second time while he was walking to _____ (4)market to visit how people in the area are doing business. ____ (5) more he toured in the market. ____ (6)more he could learn about the culture of the people. Students, you are now going to learn about tenses that normally help you to talk about the past, present, and the future actions. Thus, can you mention the tenses that are used to talk about the present? Well, tenses that are used for such purposes are: present simple, present continuous, present perfect and present perfect continuous (in some way). In this section, however, you are going to practice the present simple tense.

Grammar

 Activity 9.15

Instructions: Write down five sentences that describe your everyday activities. The first one has been done for you as an example.

1. I wash my hands and face.
2. _____
3. _____
4. _____
5. _____
6. _____

 Activity 9.16

Instructions: Construct five sentences that express actions and state of beings that are naturally true. The first one has been done for you as an example.

1. The heart pumps blood to different parts of the body.
2. _____
3. _____
4. _____
5. _____
6. _____

Activity 9.17

Instructions: Students, what do you do tomorrow ? Write down five sentences. The first one has been done for you as an example.

1. I go to the clinic tomorrow.

2. _____

3. _____

4. _____

5. _____

6. _____

- What can you generalize about the structural patterns that are commonly used in each of your sentence with the main verb? Explain this to your neighboring partner.
- What kinds of ideas did you generally address through present simple? Explain this to your neighboring partner.

Present simple is primarily used to express habitual actions, general truth and future planned actions. Thus, in exercise 1, you attempted to construct sentences expressing habitual actions. Similarly, in exercise 2, you have constructed sentences addressing general truth. As you have seen, the main verb may or may not take (-s) depending on the nature of the subject. Thus, if the subject is singular, the main verb takes (-s). However, no (-s) is used when the subject is plural including the pronoun, 'I'.

Activity 9.18

Instructions: Answer each of the following questions using your own simple present tense sentence. The first one has been done as an example for you.

1. What do you do on Sundays? On Sundays, I go to church.

Grammar

2. What does she play in the pitch every afternoon? She _____
3. How often do you wash your clothes? I _____
4. What do you do next Friday? We _____
5. Do plants prepare their own food? Yes / No, they _____
6. Where do you live now? Now I _____
7. Do you often eat raw meat? Yes / No I _____
8. What is your father's name? My _____
9. What is your mother-tongue? My _____
10. Are you monolingual or multilingual? I _____

Notes:

Negative and interrogative sentences of present simple can be formed using the verb to do (do - with plural subjects and does - with singular subjects).

Example 1 (singular subjects)

1. She washes her hair twice a week. (affirmative)
2. Does she wash her hair twice a week? (question)
3. She does not wash her hair twice a week. (negative)

Example 2 (plural subjects)

1. The janitors clean the office every morning. (affirmative)
2. Do the janitors clean the office every morning? (question)
3. The janitors do not clean the office every morning. (negative)

II. Simple past

Activity 9.19

Instruction: Write down five simple past sentences that describes past actions. The first one has been done as an example for you.

1. Yesterday, I helped my mother with housework.
2. _____
3. _____
4. _____
5. _____
6. _____

Expressing Past Habits with Used to

Do you remember activities that you habitually did when you were a child? Write down five of them in the spaces given below using the expression 'Used to'. The first one has been done as an example for you

1. When I was a child, I used to play with mud.
2. _____
3. _____
4. _____
5. _____
6. _____

Students, what did you notice about the forms of the verbs and the time expressions when you construct the sentences in the above two situations. Exchange ideas with your partners and compare your sentences with your partner's. Have you constructed negative and interrogative forms of sentences apart from affirmative ones? If so what kinds of structural differences did you notice?

Note

interrogative and negative forms of simple future can primarily be expressed using the modal verb to do 'will' or other types of modals such as 'may' and 'can'. Look at these examples.

1. We will go to church on next Sunday. (affirmative)
2. Will we go to church on next Sunday? (question)
3. We will not go to church on next Sunday. (negative)

Activity 9.20

Instructions: Re-write each of the following sentences using the correct form of past simple verb in the bracket. The first one has been done as an example for you

1. The Director (visit) the school last week.
Answer: The Director visited the school last week.
2. She (take) the entrance exam and (join) the university last year.
3. My brother (smoke) cigarettes when he was young.
4. After she graduated from the college, she (become) a midwife.
5. My daughter (can speak) three languages before she joined the college.
6. As soon as the police (arrive), the criminal had left home.
7. He scored good grades before last semester, but last semester his grade (not be) good.
8. My sister (not communicate) with the people in the market effectively when she bought her new dress as she is monolingual.

III. Simple future

Students, tenses are not only used to express present and past actions as you see above, but also future actions too. Thus, using future tenses, we can talk about the future. Future actions can be expressed through three tenses: simple future, future continuous and future perfect. However, in this section, you are going to learn about simple future tense.

Activity 9.21

Instructions: Construct your own five simple future sentences.

The first one has been done as an example for you

1. I will wash my clothes tomorrow morning.

2. _____

3. _____

4. _____

5. _____

6. _____

Students, what did you notice about the forms of the verbs and the time expressions when you construct the sentences? Exchange ideas with your partners and compare your sentences with your them. Have you constructed negative and interrogative forms of sentences apart from affirmative ones? If so, what kinds of structural differences did you notice?

Notes

interrogative and negative forms of past simple can be expresses using the verb to do 'did'.

Examples

1. My wife visited her hometown last year. (affirmative)
2. Did my wife visit her hometown last year? (question)
3. My wife did not visit her hometown last year. (negative)

Grammar

Tasks on tenses

1. Dear students, you have just learned three tenses. Which tense do you think is most dominantly used in the reading passage entitled, “Cognitive Benefits of Multilingualism”? What do you think is the primary reason? Discuss it with your partner and report the answers to the class. Don't forget that your reports should be supported by reasons and evidences.
2. Do you remember the most dominant tense used in the listening text? Explain why such type of tense needs to be dominant unlike other tenses?

Activity 9.22

Instructions: The following sentences have been written wrongly. Make corrections and rewrite them. The first one has been done as an example for you.

1. Did your English teacher gave you an assignment tomorrow? Wrong

Corrected: Did your English teacher give you an assignment yesterday?

2. His sister does not helps her mother with housework.
3. The Minister will came last week to visit the school.
4. Will you attend the meeting next Tuesday?
5. Before I got married, I buy a house.
6. Water boiled at one hundred degree centigrade, but freezed at zero degree centigrade.
7. Water boiled at one hundred degree centigrade, but freezed at zero degree centigrade.
8. Do the farmers use fertilizers to promote crop production?
9. Currently she spoke three local languages, but in the past she speak four languages.

10 Next year, my daughter will take the entrance exam.
A: Where are you born?

B: I am born in Dilla town.

11 I use to smoked cigarettes when I was young, but now I did not.

9.5.4 State verbs: Thoughts and opinions

Students, have you ever heard and read out anything about state verbs. If so, exchange ideas with your partner and then be ready to define these verbs to the class. You can even define such verbs depending on the word 'state' as a clue. In addition, we hope that you may grasp useful information by working on the following preliminary activities.

Activity 9.23

What do you think is wrong with each of the following sentences? Be in small group and re-write the sentences by making the necessary corrections depending on the forms of verbs.

1. I am thinking that being multilingual is advantageous.
2. Are you believing that Ethiopia is advantageous being multicultural country?
3. The teacher is hoping that most of the students will pass the exam.

Have you attempted to correct all the above sentences? We have great hope now that you have adequate clues to define state verbs. Thus, what are state verbs?

State verbs can be defined as verbs that are not normally used in continuous forms. Thus, all of the above sentences are wrongly written as they are all constructed using present continuous tense instead using present simple. In this regard they can be correctly re-written as:

Vocabulary

1. I think that being multilingual is advantageous.
2. Do you believe that Ethiopia is advantageous being multicultural country?
3. The teacher hopes that most of the students will pass the exam.

Students, state verbs are of different categories: verbs of the senses, wants, likes / dislikes, thoughts, opinions, belongings, etc. In this section, however, you are going to focus on verbs of thoughts and opinions. Verbs of thoughts mainly include: think, understand, know, realize, recognize. Similarly, verbs of opinion mainly include: believe, hope, feel, see.

Thus, knowledge of the features of state verbs as stated above is of great value. Now, express your thoughts and opinions constructing correct sentences using each of the above state verbs (thoughts and opinions).

9.6 Vocabulary

Students, in this section you are going to learn some language words. Do you have any idea why such words are said to be language words?

Just express your feelings to your partner. Such words are said to be language words because they are commonly used in settings where we talk about languages. The listening and reading texts can be taken as such settings. This is because you may encounter some of the words within the texts. Here are some major language words:

1. Mother-tongue/first language
2. Multiple languages

- | | |
|---------------------------------|------------------|
| 3. Diversity | 7. Plurilingual |
| 4. Bilingual/bilingualism | 8. Communication |
| 5. Polyglot | 9. Multicultural |
| 6. Multilingual/multilingualism | multiculturalism |

Activity 9.24

You can now see the extent to which the above words are characterized to be language words. As this unit primarily is based on language and cultural issues, you can find some of the words in the listening and reading texts.

Construct sentences using your own ideas with each of the words. You may refer to a dictionary particularly for those which are missing from the texts. For those which are found in the texts, you had better reach the meanings using contextual clues.

9.6.1 Word formation: Borrowing words

Borrowing words are the process of combining the beginning of one word and the end of another word to form a new word or completely taken from other countries, such as French, Italy, Latin, etc.

Example: breakfast + lunch = brunch

French borrowed word: chancellor, country, court, crime, defendant, evidence, government, jail, judge.

Latin borrowed words: agile, abdomen, anatomy, discuss, excavate, expensive, fictitious, gradual, habitual, etc.

Greek borrowed words: Atmosphere, climax, comedy, data, history, parasite, pneumonia, skeleton, etc.

Activity 9.25

Instructions: In English words are formed in variety of ways: borrowing, affixation, clipping, blending, compounding, and derivation. In this section, however, we will focus on borrowing. Mention as many borrowed Amharic words from English as you can that are currently being used directly or in modified forms.

Example: television, jacket, gas, mango, etc.

1.	4.	7.
2.	5.	8.
3.	6.	9.

9.6.2 Phrasal verbs

Students, you may have noticed that there is no definition given for phrasal verbs in this section. This is because one of the best ways to learn phrasal verbs is to see them in context and then figure out the meaning by yourself. It seems that if you do this, you can get a clear understanding of the idea of phrasal verbs.

Activity 9.26

Instructions: refer to a dictionary and construct meaningful sentences using the phrasal verbs listed below:

have on	hear of
head back	hear up
head for	help out
head toward	hit on hear about	held against

Unit 10. Digital Vs Satellite Television

Learning Outcomes:

At the end of this unit, you will be able to:

- ✓ listen to a variety of texts, analyse, compare, contrast and process meaning;
- ✓ complement ideas or talk about similarities and differences of things
- ✓ read the passage and associate facts with their own life
- ✓ use different vocabularies from the passage in their communication
- ✓ use modal auxiliary verbs correctly in different sentences
- ✓ structure and write a series of paragraphs to develop essays

10.1 Listening

Activity 10.1

Instructions: You are going to listen to a passage entitled, “Is television Harmful to Children?” Before you listen to the passage, discuss the following questions in groups of three/four and report your answer to the whole class through your group representative.

Fig.35

1. Do you watch TV? How often?

Activity 10.3

Instructions: Answer the questions below based on the lessons you get from the passage and discuss your answers in a group of three/four.

1. Write down major summary from the text you have listened to _____.
2. What do you want to add more to the above listening text? Tell to your classmate.

10.2 Speaking

What's a compliment?

A compliment is an expression of admiration, appreciation, approval, or respect. Giving a compliment is a quick way to show other people that you appreciate them and something they have.

In order to enhance their social life, people often give each other compliments. That means they praise each other on their appearances, performances, personalities, and belongings (house, car, clothes etc.)

Fig 36

In English also, you can give compliments in different ways. Study the following expressions you're beautiful!

you're handsome!
you're awesome!
you're cool!

you're brilliant!
you smell good!
you have a heart of gold!

These are just a few of the many compliments people give one another on a daily basis. While some are given with hidden motives, most are spoken with good intentions. Nevertheless, unexpected compliments can put you on the spot and leave you wondering what to say next.

The list below exists to give you some ideas on how to incorporate some fun and wit into your replies to compliments. A simple “thank you” used to be acceptable, but these days, simple doesn’t always cut it. If you’re looking into in intention to make up your audience, here are some expressions to help you out!

Warning: Sarcasm ahead— use these replies at your own risk.

You can feel free to use any of the replies found here, but please— do so with caution. Some of these may come off as rude or offensive depending on how you say them, who you say them to, or what the context is. Always be gracious and kind whenever you can, and know that you’re better than any compliment in the world.

Look at the examples of compliments and their possible replies mentioned below.

Compliments and Possible replies

No	Complement	Possible reply
1	This office really looks great!	Thank you, it is nice of you to say so.
2	What a beautiful shirt you have on!	Thanks, my brother bought it for me from Hawassa.
3	Your ‘datta’ is spicy and delicious; you are really a great cook!	Do you like them? Thank you, I am happy to hear that from you!
4	Those shoes look good on you.	Thank you, but they are pretty old.
5	I like your hair style.	Thanks, yours is also nice.

Speaking

Look at the examples below.

Model Dialogues

1. Zomma: You have got a beautiful baby.

Mamitu: Really? Thank you to say so!

Zomma: What's its name?

Mamitu: Amelework.

2. Adey: I like your shirt! where did you buy it?

Kumme: Thank you very much. I bought it from boutique in Hawassa.

Adey :How lovely it is! Is it made in Italy?

Kumme: Oh, not dear. It is a product of Ethiopia made in Hawassa Industrial park.

3. Kume: You are smart in this dress.

Bontu: Oh, have you loved it? Thanks. What else do you want to add?

Kume: Your hair style looks great, too!

Bontu: Yours is also nice. Where have you got it cut?

Kume: At Nardos Beauty Salon.

Activity 10.4

Instruction: In pairs, write possible complementary expressions for the situations provided below. The teacher will give you a guide.

1. Look at an object your classmate possessed and compliment him/her for it.
2. Appreciate how your friend uses his or her time for a study. Ask about his experiences and successes.
3. Assume that you have tasted a very delicious food your family member prepared and praise for it.

10.3 Reading

Activities 10.5

Instructions: Discuss the questions given below in pairs.

1. Do you know the different types of televisions before? What are they? Discuss with your partner.
2. What parts can you name from a television?

Activity 10.6

Instructions: Now, read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given below.

The Digital versus Satellite Television

1. A Cable TV, what we call a digital television that comes to the place you are through a cable wire into your home. However, Satellite TV is that beamed down to a dish from a satellite. Cable and satellite both work by allowing you to “tune in” to specific channels within that signal. The big difference is that cable comes into your home through a wire and satellite through the air. When cable began in the 1940s, it provided an analog signal. Satellite channels, which began in the 1990s, offer a digital signal, which includes higher-quality sound and photo. By 2009, all cable systems successfully had converted to only digital, and since then, cable and satellite systems both began increasing their high-definition options and now both types offer them to consumers.
2. Long gone are the days of simple analog television sets, when things were simpler and easier to understand. Technological advancement gave birth to more innovative and cutting-edge siblings of analog television sets. The most confusing one was the contrast between cable and digital television.

3. Being siblings, they had a lot in common but owing to the difference in the generation, there were many differences yet to be discovered. While you may even get the same channels and content, the way information reaches your television is very different between satellite and cable technology. Satellite data signals are transmitted from powerful antennas to satellites orbiting in space and then down to personal satellite dishes in the homes of consumers who contract the service. Cable television, on the other hand, is transmitted through coaxial cables from the service provider to coaxial outlets in the homes of cable TV viewers.
4. Cable TV and Digital Satellite TV are two of the major competitors when it comes to offering quality entertainment. Cable companies such as AT&T, Comcast, Cox cable, U-Verse TV, etc. offer television services that are nothing short in quality from what other satellite TV providers have to offer. Analog television sets of old fashion didn't support as many channels as satellite television service did, especially movie channels and the image quality was never appealing. However, the development of digital TV put a 180° shift to the situation. The newer development used a technology that used digital compressions to convey more refined and high-quality content. Here we explore the main differences between cable and satellite television, read on to find out more.
5. Satellite TV has a higher one-time cost as compared to a cable TV subscription unless you qualify for free equipment or installation offer in return for a yearlong commitment contract. The cable TV network, on the other hand, has a higher infrastructural maintenance cost which reflects in heavier monthly bills. In the longer run, satellite TV takes advantage here by offering more number of channels against each dollar spent.

6. Some satellite TV service providers ask for a mandatory subscription for at least 12 months in most cases. Most Cable companies, on the other hand, don't have any such conditions of committing to a minimum subscription period. Since TV technology keeps improving, satellite or cable companies are in a constant battle to convince customers that they're the preferred choice and the rival media is the worst choice. In some cases, consumers can find things they like and things they're not fond of in both types of TV services, which makes a decision even more of a challenge. Similar satellite packages are available nationwide, but each local cable company may offer its own features and channel lineup.
7. Satellite television actually seems to have been leading, but not by much, in terms of innovation and picture quality. When it comes to entertainment and the content, it's all about what your personal tastes are. There really is no definite answer here as to which provider is suitable for you; until you call your satellite and cable television suppliers and ask questions regarding the current packages on sale.

1. The first television made is called satellite television. (True/False)
2. According to the above text, a cable television is more expensive than the satellite TV. (True/False).
3. When cable began in the 1940s, it provided an analog signal, and Satellite channels began 2009 started increasing their high-definition options and now both types offer them to consumers. (True/False).

Vocabulary

4. Cable companies such as CDS, Chamonix, Uganda cable, Y-Verse TV, etc. offer television services to their customers.(True/False)
5. Analog television sets of old fashion didn't support as many channels as satellite television service did, especially movie channels and the image quality was never appealing. (True/False)

10.5 Grammar

10.5.1 Connectors of Compare-Contrast

Compare means: discuss the similarities between two things; and contrast means: discuss the differences between two things. Some of these words have been used in the above texts. You can go back and see their uses again.

Look at the lists of Connectors below

- I. Words that signal comparison: (also, just as, as well as, like / likewise, both, comparatively, similarly/similar, identical, equivalent, the same as, too, have in common, share the same, in the same manner, in the same way).
- II. Words that signal contrast: (although, yet, while, unlike, however, in contrast to) but, on the other hand, contrarily, whereas, nevertheless)

Grammar

Study how the above linking devices are used in constructing different sentences.

1. Mechanization has increased crop yields, yet production is still inadequate. (Contrast or opposition)
2. The economy is strong, but/ yet there are frequent strikes. (Contrast)
3. Although/ while there are frequent strikes, the economy is strong. (Contrast)
4. In spite of/ despite the frequent strikes the economy is strong. (Contrast)
5. There are frequent strikes; however/ nevertheless, the economy is strong. (Contrast)
6. Just as referring to a dictionary frequently is boring, it might be detrimental to your comprehension of the text. (Compare)
7. Football and volleyball may seem very different sports but in fact they have many things in common. (Contrast)
8. An orange contains many segments that can easily be separated by hand. In contrast, a knife must be used to divide an apple. (Contrast)
9. Television is an important medium to get information. Similarly, radio provides us with different information from different corner of the world. (Compare)
10. Writing is an important language skill that all students should develop. In the same way reading is a core language skill that expands the thinking scope of the student. (Compare)

Activity 10.10

Instructions: Individually, join the sentences given below using any of the transitional words listed above.

1. The equipment was expensive. It was unreliable.

2. My uncle has a lot of money. He does not want to buy any furniture..

Grammar

3. This department must reduce expenditure. It needs to install new computers.
4. Sales of the new car were poor. They were heavily advertised..
5. I am well now. I do not feel strong.
6. She has never come here. I invited her many times.

10.5.2 Modal auxiliaries: (ought to, should, must, have to, need to, can, will)

I. ought to and should

In English, we use the modals ‘should’ and ‘ought to’ to give advice.

Study the following conversation between Yimer and Tuji.

Yimer: I’ve got really bad toothache. What should I do?

Tuji: Oh you should try my dentist. He’s really good. You ought to ring now and see if he can fit you in.

Use

You give advice when you suggest actions to other people. Using the word should is a common way of asking for and offering advice in both formal and informal situations.

Form

- Should is a modal verb. It is followed by the infinitive of the main verb without to.

Sentence	You should take more exercise. You ought to ask for some time off work.
Negative	Liyu oughtn’t to eat a lot of sweet things. You shouldn’t work so hard.

Question	Should I take the tablets before or after meals? Should I see him now?
----------	---

- Should and ought to are modal verbs which do not change form

	First person	Second person	Third person
Singular	I should go. I ought to go.	You should go. You ought to go.	He/She should go. He/She ought to go.
Plural	We should go. We ought to go.	You should go. We ought to go.	They should go. We ought to go.

Common errors

- For should, using to before the main verb or adding -ing to the main verb:

She should to get it from the chemist. × She should get it from the chemist. ✓

He should going home early. × He should go home early. ✓

Activity 10.11

Instruction: In pairs/small groups, give as many pieces of advices as you can using the expressions above.

II. must and have to 10.5.3 Direct and indirect Object

The English verbs are followed by two different kinds of objects - the direct object and indirect object.

Study the following sentences

1. I bought Tirhas some flowers.
2. I bought some flowers to Tirhas.

These sentences contain both direct and indirect objects. Flowers are the direct object and it refers to what I sent. Tirhas is the indirect object and it refers to whom I sent it.

The object of a verb or clause is a noun group which refers to the person or thing that is involved in an action but does not perform the action. The object comes after the verb. It is sometimes called the direct object.

1. She closed the window.
2. Some of the boys noticed me

Some verbs have two objects. For example in the sentence “I gave Ali the book”, ‘the book’ is the direct object, and ‘Ali’ is the indirect object. The indirect object usually refers to the person who benefits from an action or receives something as a result of it.

You can put an indirect object in front of the direct object or in a prepositional phrase after the direct object.

Look at the following sentences

Grammar

1. Bacha told me the truth.
2. She handed the book to the librarian.

Activity 10.14

10.5.4 Transitive and intransitive verbs

Study the following sentences

1. Solomon Barega runs fast.
2. Her tooth ached.

Some verbs do not take an object. These verbs are called intransitive verbs. Intransitive verbs often describe actions or events which do not involve anyone or anything other than the subject. In the above sentences, the verbs ‘runs’ and ‘ached’ are intransitive verbs.

Study the following sentences

1. He is washing clothes
2. She read a novel.

Some verbs describe events that must, in addition to the subject, involve someone or something else. These verbs are called transitive verbs. They take an object, that is, a noun group which is put after the verb. In the above sentences, the verbs ‘is washing’ and ‘read’ are transitive verbs.

Activity 10.15

Instructions: In pairs/small groups, write five sentences using intransitive verbs and another five sentences using transitive verbs.

10.6.2 Punctuations

Students, do you know the sign post which are used to put on the road side how the vehicles and people travel from place to place either minimizing or maximizing their speed? The same hold is true that a punctuation mark is a symbol such as a full stop or period, comma, or question mark that you use to divide written words into sentences and clauses.

Writing

 Full Stop At the end of a sentence	 Comma To separate items in a series	 Colon To introduce a list
 Semicolon To join to independent clauses	 Question Mark To show that it is a question	 Exclamation After an exclamation
 Slash To separate letters, numbers etc	 Apostrophe To show when a letter or a number has been left out	 At sing For email address
 Ellipsis Mark one or more words have been intentionally left out	 Round Brackets To add extra information to a sentence	 Quotation Marks to indicate a phrase to show that someone else has written or said it

It is difficult to write without punctuation. Well, you can, but your writing wouldn't make any sense to your reader; also you may be misunderstood by your readers. Punctuation is as important to your writing as your word choice, syntax, and structure. When any one of these elements is missing, you don't have a coherent piece of writing.

Example: Though many snakes are dangerous, some are with great importance for medical purpose. In this situation if you want to pass an instruction to save the snake the coma in between are very crucial.

Kill it not, save it !.

When the reverse is true, a comma can be put as follows,

Kill it, not save it!

10.6.4 Writing an Expository Texts

An expository essay is an essay that gives an account of explanation on something. It can be developed using a variety of techniques such as: definition, illustration(example), cause and effect, classification, comparison, contrast, process description. One point to remember, it does not mean that the whole part of the essay is fully developed using only one of the techniques. The point is that the dominantly used technique is used to categorize the technique

Writing a Conclusion to a Paragraph

The concluding sentence is the last sentence in a paragraph . Its main function is to summarize (tie together) the ideas in the whole paragraph. A good conclusion is essential for most paragraphs written in different modes because it gives the readers to further understand the main idea discussed in the paragraph, avoid confusions or difficulties if the topic is challenging to understand from the supporting details. When you write an effective conclusion, try to bring the reader back to the main idea, re-examine the topic sentence and re-state it in another way, take a maximum care in connecting the supporting details with the topic sentence. Make sure that your conclusion can give re-enforcement, suggestions, advice and/or insight to your reader. It is also important to understand that sometimes conclusions are left to the reader when the writer thinks that the main idea can be concluded in several ways.

Examples of conclusion starters:

In general, generally, therefore, thus, to sum up, to conclude, to summarize, to make the long story short, briefly, in brief, shortly, in short, finally, etc.

Activity 10.20

Instructions: Look at the concluding sentence in the paragraph given below and then in the same way write a concluding sentence to the paragraph that comes next.

A Sample of a Concluding Sentence in a Paragraph

When people read any article, their purpose can vary from individual to individual. Most readers like to concentrate on introductions and conclusions as these parts of a paragraph often carry the main points in the paragraph. A conclusion is an important part of any piece of writing. It helps to summarize all the essential points of the topic. For instance, if readers face difficulty in understanding the meaning of most sentences in a paragraph, the conclusion comes into the picture and reduces their challenge. In addition, a conclusion is important to get further information about the topic and pose different questions that lead to further reading. In sum, a conclusion is helpful in a paragraph as it can help to bind the whole ideas discussed in the paragraph.

Doping in Sports

Doping, performance enhancing drugs (PED) includes tampering, possession, trafficking, administration, assisting, encouraging, aiding, conspiring a prohibited substance and an anti-doping rule violation. The word is believed to be derived from the Dutch word “doop”, meaning a viscous opium juice. Doping has probably existed in one or another form since the beginning of the competitive sport. Doping in sports is increasing and diversifying involving a variety of serious public health problems. Nowadays, it is common to find it with both professional and recreational sporting people. Even though millions of dollars are being spent in advanced scientific researches, drug detection methods, doping control procedures, educational campaigns, policy advancements, studies conducted internationally and locally depict that the use of such drugs has not yet shown declination for several reasons. The pressing factors that enhance this stimulant are: the financial interests of athletes, coaches and their sponsors, the societal pressure to obtain better results, the media coverage of sports competitions and the human nature. To curb the problem, health professionals, nutritionists and sport scientists have not yet brought significant change despite their constant effort. If the situation continues with the same tempo, the value of sport and the meaning of winning a competition become valueless.

Thus, _____
_____.

Activity 10.21

3. List down all the transitional words that the writer has used to develop ideas in each paragraph.
4. Select any title and write your own expository essay and bring it to class for evaluation.

Loneliness and Its Effects

1. A more narrow definition suggests that loneliness is the distressing feeling of being alone or separated. When a person is not surrounded by other people, spends most of his or her time alone and maintains little-to-no social contact, we can say that she/he has already developed the feeling of loneliness. Prolonged loneliness can be dangerous since it can cause a variety of emotional and physiological problems. However, the good news is that loneliness can be treated effectively mostly with the help of a professional psychotherapist.
2. Every person has a basic need to belong to a certain group; this need is as significant and natural as the need to eat, to sleep, or to feel safe. However, simply belonging on its own does not satisfy the need: it is important that a person can form strong, close, and stable interpersonal relationships and maintain them: only in this case, the sense of belonging will be full. Literarily speaking, loneliness is an emotion which signals that the need of belonging is not satisfied or that we are not getting the relationships or the quality of already existing relationships that we want. However, this may not be always true. For example, a person can have a lot of friends and see them often or he or she can be married and have children, have no problems with colleagues at work: everything is seemingly fine, but the sense of loneliness is still there and it is important to understand why it is present and what is lacking.

3. Everyone probably knows the feeling of isolation when the entire world seems to be behind a glass wall. In a world where communication is one of the requirements of the twenty-first century, extroverted behaviors are deemed healthy and normal and where everything calls a person to belong to a certain group, being and feeling alone often seems wrong. In fact, there is nothing bad in needing solitude. We all need to spend some time on our own. However, when this condition becomes chronic, undesired and when a person feels the impossibility of establishing contact with others, this is already something many people around the world fear strongly.
4. Being in strong and close relationships affects our mental health beneficially; however, being alone for along period of time can lead to a number of negative consequences both on mental and physiological levels. In particular, loneliness can lead to depression, which is a dangerous mental condition on its own, a feeling of hopelessness, low self-esteem, an impaired ability for social interactions and work, suicidal tendencies, poor sleep, the sense of defeat and helplessness. These sensations form a vicious circle nurturing each other. They aggravate the situation of a lonely person, preventing him or her from getting out of this span on his or her own. Not only the emotional sphere but also bodily functions are affected by loneliness. Studies show that lonely people face cardiovascular diseases more frequently than those enjoying strong and stable relationships with other people. Other effects include the loss of weight, hormonal imbalances, the inhibition of the immune system, low resistance to infections and inflammations. All these, however, does not mean that a person starts experiencing all these negative effects every time he or she feels lonely.
